KIDNAPING TRIAL OF MRS. MUENCH OPENS TOMORROW

J. J. Wolfe to Begin Prosecution at Mexico, Mo., as Anderson Cannot Leave Hospital.

STATE CONTENDS SHE IS 'FINGER WOMAN'

It Will Allege Defendant Suggested Dr. I. D. Kelley as Likely Victim for Abduction.

Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench, star of the bizarre Muench-Ware baby case which has absorbed the attention of the city for two weeks, will face another dramatic situation tomorrow at Mexico, Mo., when she is to appear on her $25,000 bond for trial on the capital charge of complicity in the kidnaping for ransom of Dr. I. D. Kelley in 1931.

Illness of Prosecuting Attorney C. Arthur Anderson of St. Louis County, which will keep him in Missouri Baptist Hospital for several days at least, has not altered the State's determination to proceed with the trial, delayed for months by the dilatory motions of the large battery of defense lawyers.

Wolfe to Handle Case.

John J. Wolfe, Associate Prosecutor, after conferring yesterday with Anderson at the hospital, said he had been instructed to direct the prosecution, with the aid of Assistant Prosecuting Attorney John H. McNatt, and the Audrain County Prosecuting Attorney, Joseph M. Bone.

Wolfe and McNatt are thoroughly familiar with the case, as they handled the trial of Felix McDonald, a co-defendant of Mrs. Muench, who was convicted and sentenced in the kidnaping. Anderson, after the trial of Angelo Rosegrant, who was sentenced to 20 years in prison, was injured last October when his automobile was forced off a county highway in a murderous attack late at night, disabling him so that he was unable to attend the McDonald trial.

It was a recurrence of the infection in Anderson's broken leg that required him to go to the hospital Friday, and will prevent his appearance at Mexico, at least for the first days of the trial.

The attending physician said yesterday to the Post-Dispatch that Anderson was somewhat better, although his fever was still high. "His condition is not promising for his appearance at the trial," the doctor said. "I don't believe he will be able to go, as indications are that he will be laid up for a week anyway, but I don't want to be positive about that."

Will Baby Be in Court?

In St. Louis, and in Mexico, there has been speculation as to whether the attractive auburn haired defendant will appear in court with the six-week-old infant she says was born to her at the age of 43 after 22 years of childless married life. This is the baby which Anna Ware, unmarried Philadelphia servant girl, claims as the one born to her last Aug. 17, and taken from her that night, an hour or two before the time announced as the time a child was born in the Muench home.

With or without the baby, Mrs. Muench and her legal battery will seek to convince an Audrain County jury of her innocence in the kidnaping plot. The State charges she was the "finger woman"—the one who suggested Dr. Kelley as a likely victim for kidnaping by Rosegrant, McDonald, Bart Davit, and Tommy Wilders. Wilders is still a fugitive; Davit is awaiting trial.

The State, as became known through evidence at the Rosegrant and McDonald trials, will rely largely on the testimony of Adolph Fiedler, former St. Louis County Justice of the Peace. He, admitting guilty knowledge of the crime, turned State's evidence. He was the chief witness before the grand jury which indicted Mrs. Muench.

24 Defense Attorneys.

At one time or another since her indictment 18 months ago, 24 attorneys have appeared for Mrs. Muench. Her present large staff is headed by Clay County Rogers of Kansas City and Pross T. Cross of Lathrop, Mo. Her brother, Supreme Court Judge Ernest M. Tipton, has participated frequently in conferences of defense counsel.

Among the defense counsel are seven Mexico attorneys, retained since the case was transferred out of St. Louis County on Mrs. Muench's application for a change of venue. Verne Lacy, who defend-

Chinese Villagers Fight Pirates At Sea and Rescue 10 Children

20 Still Held by Kidnapers After Raid on Town; Four Outlaws Killed, Three Captured and Their Junk Wrecked.

By the Associated Press.

HANGCHOW, Sept. 28. — A strange battle at sea between peasants, aided by water police, and a band of pirates resulted in the rescue today of 10 of 31 children who had been kidnaped for ransom.

The fight took place off the village of Peihsiang, which the pirates plundered in a raid yesterday.

The peasants and police killed four of the pirates and captured three. One of the three pirate craft was sunk but the other two, carrying 20 children, fled. One child was killed.

After the fight, the villagers renewed their ammunition in preparation for another search for the pirates' junks.

Details of the daring raid on Peihsiang were reported from there today. Forty of the bandits, disguised as beggars and peddlers, entered the village and quickly overpowered the 10 policemen, none of whom had firearms in working condition. After looting the town the outlaws raided the village school, carried off every child in it and escaped to sea in three junks, but only after a running fight.

The enraged village men and police followed in force, overtaking one of the pirate craft while the others fled further out to sea.

DYNAMITE HOUSE BLOWS UP NEAR LEBANON, PA.; 11 HURT

Homes of 1000 Persons Damaged So They Are Unsafe for Occupancy.

By the Associated Press.

LEBANON, Pa., Sept. 28.—A dynamite storage house at a stone quarry in suburban West Lebanon exploded tonight with a shock felt 30 miles away. Eleven persons in Lebanon were hurt slightly by flying glass.

The storage house, a frame shack, was a half mile from the nearest house and police said they considered it unlikely there was anyone at the place itself.

Virtually every window in Lebanon was broken, and as far away as Lancaster, 30 miles to the south, and Reading, an equal distance eastward, windows were shattered.

Police said the homes of 1000 persons in West Lebanon were unsafe and instructed the residents not to return to them. The houses in many cases were twisted and shaken on foundations, plaster was knocked off, walls were weakened, and doors blown from hinges.

NEGRO ARRESTED FOR DRUNKENNESS LYNCHED BY MOB

Taken From Sheriff Near Vienna, Ga., When Being Removed to Another Town for Safekeeping.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, Ga., Sept. 28.—Lewis Harris, 50-year-old Negro, was lynched near here last night by a mob which overpowered Sheriff Bos Vinson of Dooly County as he was taking the Negro to Fitzgerald, Ga., for safekeeping. Harris had been arrested on a charge of drunkenness.

Feeling had been running high since the arrest of the Negro last Sunday night. He was being removed to Fitzgerald by Sheriff Vinson as a precautionary measure when Vinson was halted by four automobiles filled with men who took the prisoner from the Sheriff.

Harris was hanged to a tree on Shady Mount road four miles from here. His body bore several bullet marks but it was not determined whether Harris was shot before he was swung from the tree.

Speaking in the absence of her husband tonight, Mrs. Vinson said Harris was captured Sunday night after being trailed by bloodhounds from a Negro gathering where the Sheriff had attempted to make an arrest.

"The Sheriff went to the Negro meeting on receiving a report of a disturbance there," Mrs. Vinson said. "When Mr. Vinson attempted to arrest the Negro he gave a container of liquor to his son and the Sheriff caught the boy. Then Harris put a gun against the Sheriff's back and demanded that he release the boy, at the same time calling Mr. Vinson the worst thing he could think of."

She said the Sheriff later returned with the dogs and trailed the Negro to a place nearby where he was arrested. She said Harris denied that he had drawn a pistol on Vinson or had cursed him.

ETHIOPIAN RULER REPORTED TO APPEAL TO ITALIAN KING

London Newspaper Says Haile Selassie Urged Victor Emmanuel to Prevent War.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—The Sunday Pictorial printed a front page story today without a date line, saying Emperor Haile Selassie had sent a personal letter to King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, in which he appealed in "touching terms" to the Italian monarch not "to allow their two Christian countries to go to war against one another."

SUNSPOTS INCREASE SUDDENLY

Largest Number for Two Years Now Visible.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Astronomers at the Naval Observatory found this week abnormal groups of sunspots moving across the surface nearest the earth. It is the largest collection of sunspots in about two years.

These spots, which vary from a few hundred miles to 50,000 miles in diameter, are still a mystery. They are known to change in a cycle of about 11½ years and to have definite effects on the magnetism of the earth.

Daylight Saving Time Ends.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (Sunday).—Daylight saving time ended at 2 a. m. today. At that hour clocks were turned back to 1 a. m., restoring the hour lost last April when the hands were moved forward an hour. Approximately 35,000,000 persons in the United States and Canada observed daylight saving time this year, the Merchants' Association of New York said.

HOWARD'S EX-WIFE SAYS $100,000 IS GIFT, NOT ALIMONY

Offers Letter Written Dec. 12 Which She Asserts Accompanied Bonds — "Deep Love" Expressed.

PAIR DIVORCED MAY 22 THIS YEAR

She Testifies He Struck Her After Decree Was Granted—New Court Action Over Children.

Miss Elvira Royle Howard, former wife of Clarence H. Howard, son of the late multimillionaire steel manufacturer, testified at Clayton yesterday that $100,000 in bonds which he gave her constituted a gift prior to their divorce, rather than gross alimony, as he contended. She obtained her decree May 22, last.

Mrs. Howard, who is resisting his motion to modify the divorce decree to prevent her from taking their children, Shirley Claire, 8 years old, and Marilyn Ann, 6, from the jurisdiction of the court, introduced in evidence a letter bearing his signature, which she said he gave her with the bonds Dec. 12 last.

What Letter Said.

It read:

"Dearest Elvira:

"It has given me a great deal of pleasure to express my deep love for you in today making you a present of 100 General Steel Castings Corporation bonds, having a par value of $100,000.

"You have been a very sweet wife in our 11 years together, and I hope the ownership will make you very happy. Please see that at your death these bonds or their equivalent go to Shirley and Marilyn. Best love."

Mrs. Howard, who will return to the stand before Circuit Judge Mueller tomorrow, testified that her husband told her to put the note in a safe deposit box and not to lose it. She said he had remarked previously "Elvira, I'm going to make you a present," and hadn't mentioned alimony.

Mrs. Howard observed that her husband had been "worrying" about the $10,000,000 lawsuit of Frank Howe, University City inventor, against his late father and the steel corporation, and had said he, Howard, "was liable to lose everything."

Wants to Go East.

Mrs. Howard testified she desired to take the children to Summit, N. J., near her friends, where she planned to open metal craft classes. She studied metal craft and sculpture at Colby College, Me., she said. She described the educational and social advantages at Summit as equal to those prevailing here, and said that Shirley had been made unhappy at school here "because the other children were talking about the divorce."

Before telling of her financial arrangements with Howard and the care of the children, she asserted that he struck her "many times," and described a quarrel with him, after she had obtained a divorce, at the Howard residence, 3 Dromara lane, McKnight Village, which she had continued to occupy.

She Threatened Arrest.

It was this quarrel, on June 19, she said, that made her decide to leave St. Louis and to inform Howard she would "have him arrested" if he visited the house again.

Mrs. Howard testified that on this occasion he entered the house, using his key, as he had done before. She was scantily clad, she recalled, but met him in the hallway, refusing him permission to go upstairs, since on previous occasions he had "thrown some of my things from the window."

But he "pushed me up thes tairs step by step," she related, while his chauffeur waited below.

"He twisted my wrist," she continued, "and when we reached the top of the stairs he kicked me in the abdomen and knocked me over four chairs piled up there. I tried to hit him with a coat hanger, but he dodged every time. I screamed for the chauffeur, but he didn't come."

What Chauffeur Saw.

The chauffeur, Marvin Ellis, employed by Howard's mother, testified he saw Mrs. Howard Jr. hit her husband with a magazine and knock his glasses off on the visit of June 19. He said Howard grabbed her wrist, heard her object to his ascending the stairs, but heard no screams. Howard was still there when he left, he said.

Another witness, Mrs. Franz Arzt, wife of a physician, of 7155A Amherst avenue, said she had known the Howards for six years, and that June 19 Mrs Howard telephoned her to come to the McKnight Village home. When she did go, she

AAA DEFENDED BY ROOSEVELT IN TALK TO FARMERS

Crop Control 'Democracy in Good American Sense of Word,' He Says at Fremont, Neb.

By the Associated Press.

FREMONT, Neb., Sept. 28.—President Roosevelt unfurled his first issue in the 1936 re-election campaign today by replying to challengers of his agricultural program.

Roosevelt asserted there had been a $5,300,000,000 increase in agriculture income over the 1932 level, and pointed to the agricultural adjustment act as a prime aid.

He said the effort of the AAA to provide co-operation among farmers and crop control "is the true function of Government under our Constitution."

"The Government's part in this program," he said, "is merely to supply the unifying element that the farmers themselves, in their past efforts, found so essential to success. It is democracy in the good American sense of the word."

Reasons for Gain.

He attributed the agricultural readjustment to "many factors:" "Our monetary policy was one. The drouth was another. Increased demand for products caused by the economic revival was another, and the operations of our agricultural adjustment administration was still another."

Speaking from the rear platform of his special train, Roosevelt looked into the faces of a huge throng extending over the station grounds and beyond to the town streets.

In the background of this flat country were the vast fields, visible for miles.

The President's train stopped at Grand Island, Neb., at 3:12 p. m., where 12,000 persons were waiting. In a brief talk he said he was pleased to see the improvement in Nebraska as compared to three years ago. He spoke from the observation car.

At North Platte, Neb., where 15,000 assembled, the President was joined by Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming; Governor Johnson of Colorado; Senators Costigan and Adams of Colorado; Mayor Stapleton of Denver; Paul Prosser, Colorado Attorney-General; and John Carroll, Denver attorney.

The Westerners said one of the first things to be discussed was the proposed $8,000,000 Caddoa dam project on the Arkansas River.

Tribute to Norris.

Opening his speech at Fremont, the President expressed delight at coming to the home state of "one of a half dozen greatest Americans —Senator George W. Norris."

Gov. Cochrane and Senator Burke of Nebraska stood beside the Chief Executive. Mrs. Roosevelt was with him. Dan Stephens, former Representative, introduced the President. "Is it surprising," Roosevelt asked, "in the light of this improved income, that the farm implement factories in Illinois and

ROOSEVELT TO DEDICATE BOULDER DAM TOMORROW

Practically Complete Except for Power Units; President's Speech About 1 P. M.

By the Associated Press.

BOULDER CITY, Nev., Sept. 28. —President Roosevelt will dedicate the world's greatest dam Monday to the service of the Southwestern agricultural and industrial area.

The ceremonies, which more than 20,000 persons are expected to attend, will be held on the Nevada abutment of the 727-foot high Boulder Dam, now practically complete except for installation of power units.

President Roosevelt will start his speech between 11 a. m. and noon (1 p. m. Central time). During the morning, he will be taken on a tour of inspection of the $165,000,000 project, which eventually will create a lake 115 miles long and nearly 600 feet deep at the lower end in Black Canyon of the Colorado River.

An 85-mile lake, maximum depth about 290 feet, already has been backed up behind the dam.

Gov. B. B. Moeuer of Arizona has declared a holiday in that State. Las Vegas citizens are planning to dress in pioneer days costumes.

"COUNT" LUSTIG RECAPTURED AFTER ESCAPE FROM JAIL

Man Wanted on Counterfeiting Charge Taken in Pittsburgh by Federal Agents.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 28.—An automobile ride of two blocks ended in the arrest today of Robert V. Miller, alias "Count" Lustig, wanted in New York on counterfeiting charges and for escaping from the Federal House of Detention in New York by sliding down in a bed sheet.

C. K. Fierstone, head of the Pittsburgh division of the Bureau of Investigation, said the arrest was made by Department of Justice agents and secret service men. Miller had left a North Side rooming house in Pittsburgh and was headed for Chicago at the time, Fierstone said.

The "Count" escaped from New York Sept. 1 and agents here began a search for him bout a week ago. Several were watching the rooming house when Miller came out and entered the car.

The agents gave chase and stopped the automobile after two blocks. Fierstone said Miller had made no statement.

AL SMITH A SAINT—IN KOREA

MARYKNOLL, N. Y., Sept. 28.—News of the banishment of "Saint Al" from a hamlet in Korea came today to the Maryknoll Mission, headquarters of the Catholic Foreign Mission Society.

A friend sent a newspaper rotogravure picture of Alfred E. Smith to a New York missionary and the priest pasted it on a wall of his mud hut in the tiny town of Hiken in Korea. Later the priest found a native woman praying before the picture. She asked for the name of the "saint." "It is one of whom many in America have recourse," explained the priest. The picture has been taken off the wall.

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 28. — Twenty persons witnessed the lashing of two Townsent (Del.) men in the New Castle County workhouse today. The men whipped were W. Blackburn, 39 years old, and Frank Layton, 28. Each received 20 lashes and 10 years in prison for robbing two stores.

MUSSOLINI SAYS BRITISH INTERESTS ARE IN NO DANGER

East African Conflict Would Be Localized, He Declares in New Cabinet Communique.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Sept. 28. — Speaking through a communique of the fifth and closing September cabinet session today, Premier Mussolini sought to localize the apparently imminent Ethiopian conflict by an agreement with Britain. The communique said:

"Italy's policy has no immediate or remote aims which could injure Great Britain's interests."

The Cabinet made these points:

1. Italy offers to make accords with Great Britain.
2. Italy warns the League Assembly not to interfere. (The Council is now negotiating for a settlement.)
3. Italy spurns Emperor Haile Selassie's proposed neutral zone and his suggested withdrawal of troops from his frontiers. The communique called the Ethiopian offer one for a strategic purpose, not a pacific one."
4. Troop movements are "being accelerated."

Britain's 400,000 tons of warcraft are still on the Mediterranean, but the Cabinet announced the first step has already been taken by Italy to negotiate with Britain "accords that harmonize with the legitimate interest of England in East Africa."

A sentence in the communique explained Italy's abstention from action at Geneva. It said the government "would take no initiative on the basis, or in an atmosphere, where its rights are prejudicially misunderstood."

At the same time the Cabinet commuique said that the ministers would not abandon the League until the League itself assumed full responsibility for measures against Italy.

Crown Prince Umberto reviewed departing troops at Naples, while Mussolini conducted the Cabinet meeting in Rome. Several war measures were adopted by the Cabinet, including an increase of military education in the public schools. Pay of soldiers will be boosted, on an unannounced scale, "in case of the declaration of a state of war in East Africa." Stricter censorship laws were adopted.

Text of Communique.

The text of the Cabinet communique follows:

"Il Duce gave an ample report of developments in the situation since the last Cabinet meeting. All men of good faith in this world have recognized Italy's right in rejecting suggestions by the (League) committee of five.

"The proposals advanced not only took no account of Italy's necessities for expansion and security but completely ignored all treaties which at different times, from 1889 to 1906 and 1925, have recognized the priority of Italy's interest in Ethiopia.

"The Italian Government will not take any initiative in a field or in

LIGHTHOUSES HIT BY HIGH WINDS

Havana Reports 300 Injured at Cienfuegos — High Seas Said to Have Wiped Out Town of Casilda.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 28.—Red Cross relief trains speeded evacuation from the treacherous Everglades sections tonight but the tropical hurricane which had raged toward Miami for 17 hours suddenly veered off and headed up the Atlantic Coast, 40 miles off Florida's east coast.

The Weather Bureau said that Miami and cities along the lower Florida east coast, believed earlier to be in the direct path of the storm, the hurricane which had taken 27 lives as it ripped across Cuba and Jamaica.

Hurricane warnings all along the Florida coast were taken down at 11 p. m. and storm warnings hoisted from Palm Beach north to Charleston, S. C., to warn ships in the path of the storm

Some Flee in Autos.

Meanwhile disaster workers at Belle Glade, Fla., notified national Red Cross headquarters that 80 per cent of automobile-owning residents of the Lake Okeechobee area already had fled.

Refugee trains authorized by the Red Cross arranged to take 5000 persons to Sebring. The Red Cross there prepared to meet their food, clothing and medical needs.

Nelson Howard, Red Cross disaster worked, reported he had left for Sebring and would meet the trains as they arrive, with a physician ready to board each. All refugees will be sheltered temporarily in passenger coaches and box cars.

The Miami weather station, in a bulletin at 7:17 p. m., said: "Center of storm now moving north northeastward and will pass east of Miami. Winds will not reach hurricane force at Miami."

75-Mile An Hour Wind.

The Fowey Rocks Lighthouse reported a northeast 75-mile wind at 7:30 p. m., with a barometer reading of 29.30. At the time of the weather bulletin here the wind was blowing 30 miles an hour and the barometer read 29.42.

Cuban officials, after checking advices reaching Havana from the 150-mile path of the storm which struck there last night and today, said 17 bodies were in the morgue at Cienfuegos. It is estimated there are 300 injured there with approximately 1000 homes destroyed or badly damaged.

High seas were pounding the north coast of Cuba from Caibarien to Havana as the storm moved out to the Atlantic. Stormy conditions were reported throughout the island.

Town Reported Destroyed.

A dispatch to naval headquarters reported the town of Casilda on the south coast destroyed.

At Jacksonville army engineers closed hurricane gates at Moorehaven and other points on Lake Okeechobee. The gates were built at the entrance of canals and are designed to prevent disastrous floods which have in the past taken a heavy toll.

A great dike has been thrown around much of the lake since the 1928 storm.

With the first warning of the hurricane, the work of evacuating those who were in exposed places along the keys was rushed. Motorboats and trucks were used to take them to safer ground.

In Miami a new relief organization was set up for quick action. Physicians and relief workers were held in readiness for emergencies.

Preparations Made.

As the wind began to whip up the waters in usually placid Biscane Bay early in the afternoon, residents here hastily battened down

ROOSEVELT TOUR FORMAL OPENING OF 1936 CAMPAIGN

LAFFOON FIRST BOSS TO BREAK AWAY

Governor's Refusal to Meet President, Aftermath of Latter's Mixing in Kentucky Politics.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—With President Roosevelt touring the West and the Republican Executive Committee establishing an office in Chicago, the 1936 presidential campaign was formally launched this week. There will be no "breathing spell" in politics for the next year.

Democratic leaders have tried to minimize the political aspect of the President's "holiday trip" to the Pacific Coast, and this, of course, was a natural development. They could not openly admit that they were worried over the administration's waning popularity. The announcement of an agricultural speech in Nebraska and the comical Ruby Laffoon episode in Kentucky, however, disclosed that the President and his political aids are greatly concerned whether the administration will have the support of two powerful voting factions in 1936—the farmers and the political bosses.

The Row in Kentucky.

The Laffoon mix-up revealed how the President had played a dangerous game in taking a hand in local political affairs this summer, and while he backed the winner in the Kentucky governorship primary, he left some very sore heads among the vanquished. A politician does not write the kind of telegram Gov. Laffoon sent to Marvin McIntyre, the President's secretary, unless he is hopping mad.

The importance of the Kentucky family quarrel is obvious. Kentucky is the only state to hold an off-year election, and the results will inevitably be interpreted as having great bearing on the popularity or unpopularity of the present national administration.

Gov. Laffoon is one of the Democratic old guard who believes in the convention system of handpicking candidates and he thought he had the political machine greased to give Thomas S. Rhea, State Highway Commissioner, the Democratic nomination for Governor. Rhea, a veteran in politics, is in his sixties.

President Takes a Hand.

The younger element in the party, led by Lieutenant-Governor A. B. Chandler, 34 years old, nicknamed "Happy," realized they didn't have a chance against the Laffoon machine. They fought the convention nominating system and demanded a primary. The row between the old and the new factions became so bitter that Robert W. Bingham, American Ambassador to Great Britain, and publisher of the Louisville Courier Journal and the Times, left his post in London to direct the fight of Chandler's nomination for the governorship.

Roosevelt, acting as a politician and not as President, took an unusual course in the state fight. The Democratic State Committee had the power to decide whether the candidates should be selected by the convention or the primary method. Apparently dominated by the Laffoon crowd, the State Committee was prepared to choose the convention method. Thereupon, according to reliable reports in Washington, Roosevelt called in Senator Barkley of Kentucky and advised him to appear before the committee and urge the primary method. Barkley, it is said, had a letter from the President indorsing the primary plan.

Primary Forced.

The committee, however, spurned the Roosevelt-Barkley plan, and voted to go ahead with the Laffoon proposal for a convention. Someone had the idea of having Laffoon and Rhea come to Washington so that the national leaders could see that Rhea was all right. But as soon as they had left the state, Chandler, as acting Governor, called a special session of the Legislature and rushed through a law compelling the selection of candidates by the primary method.

In this primary, Rhea received the highest number of votes in a field of six candidates, with Chandler second. The old organization crowd insisted on a run-off primary between Rhea and Chandler. In this second primary, Chandler won by 25,000 votes.

In the meantime, the Republicans, with virtually no friction, nominated former Representative King Swope as their candidate for the governorship. Swope, who is 42 years old, is now a Circuit Judge and has been active in American Legion affairs.

If the G. O. P. Should Win.

Many local issues and personalities always influence Kentucky politics and whether a Republican victory would really be a blow to the national administration is highly problematical. There is no doubt, however, it would be so interpreted in every state in the Union. That is why Roosevelt, the politician, tried to bring Chandler, Laffoon and Rhea together. Chandler was willing, but Laffoon and Rhea openly rebuffed the President.

Kentucky, like Missouri, cannot be counted definitely in the Democratic or Republican column. Kentucky went overwhelmingly for Roosevelt in 1932—and overwhelmingly for Hoover in 1928. It gave Coolidge a majority in 1924 and went to Cox by a mere 4000 in 1920.

Laffoon is the first boss who has openly broken with the President. Others, like Tom Pendergast of Missouri and Mayor Kelly of Chicago, may not be so enthusiastic for the New Deal program, but they have had enough attention from Postmaster General Democratic National Chairman Farley to stay in line. It is Farley's job to keep them satisfied.

The agricultural question has given the Democratic and Republican leaders a grave and confused look, and both parties will be in a stew if the United States Supreme Court should find the AAA as unconstitutional as it found the NRA.

Republicans and the Farmer.

The Republican National Executive Committee at its meeting this week recognized the importance of the farm problem by deciding to establish a campaign office in Chicago under the direction of Harrison E. Spangler, a lawyer of Cedar Rapids, Ia. Although this meeting was dominated by such members of the Old Guard as National Committeemen Charles D. Hilles of New York, J. Henry Roraback of Connecticut and Chairman Fletcher of Pennsylvania, it did not dare find fault with the AAA benefit payments. Col. Frank Knox of Chicago, now Illinois' favorite son, got the cure on the farm question when he advanced the export county plan as against the AAA benefits. He immediately drew fire from Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas, another presidential possibility, and others from the Middle Western farm belt who fear that the Republicans are playing with fire in attacking the AAA. It will be interesting to see what Spangler offers in destructive and constructive criticism.

The Republicans must have the farm states to win in 1936 and as yet they have not worked out a farm plank. Even the "Grass Roots" meetings in the East have refused to go on record against the hundreds of millions of benefit payments for crop curtailment. All reports coming into Washington from the Middle West are to the effect that the farmers will give their votes to the party that offers them the most—and the Republicans haven't decided on an offer.

War Chest Filling Up.

The gloom cast by the farm problem was lightened, however, by Chairman Fletcher's announcement that he expected little trouble in getting ample funds for the 1936 campaign. The Republicans had to cut down their Washington staff to a mere skeleton force through lack of funds after the 1934 Democratic landslide. With many business men, especially in the East, indignant over the regulatory laws of the last session, contributions are now coming in and the Republican National Committee has changed from red ink to black.

The Democrats are still in the hole to the tune of about $400,000. Chairman Farley will have to clear up this deficit if he is to avoid some invidious and odious comparisons.

POLICYHOLDERS' PLEA DENIED IN FIRE RATE CASE

Group Seeking to Intervene to Oppose Compromise Is Told Circuit Court No Longer Has Case.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 28.—The petition of a small group of policyholders to intervene in pending litigation over a 16 2-3 per cent increase in fire insurance rates in Missouri, in opposition to a proposed compromise agreed on by State Insurance Superintendent R. Emmet O'Malley and the companies, was denied today in Cole County Circuit Court.

Judge Nike Sevier, in denying the intervention, said his court no longer had jurisdiction of the case, since the companies have perfected an appeal to the Missouri Supreme Court from his ruling last May, holding for the policyholders on every point involved in the rate suit.

The Court also overruled motions filed on behalf of the same group of policyholders for modification of the original judgment, in order to permit an increase in appeal bond, and for distribution to policyholders of about $1,750,000 of excess premiums impounded by the Circuit Court. Such a distribution order was issued by the Court last May and is involved in the appeal.

Court Defers Ruling.

Attorneys for the group of policyholders already have been granted leave by the Supreme Court to intervene in that court and file briefs in opposition to the compromise proposal. The compromise was submitted to the Court about a week ago by counsel for O'Malley and the companies in connection with the pending appeal and was taken under advisement by the Court.

The compromise also is pending for a decision by a three-judge Federal court in Kansas City, in which 137 companies have suits pending to enforce the higher rates. About $9,250,000 in excess premiums collected by the companies have been impounded in the Federal Court. The State court case involved 73 other companies.

In a memorandum opinion today, Judge Sevier recalled, in very definite language, that he had thrown the compromise proposal out of his court, in the form of a supplemental petition, when it was filed by O'Malley and the companies last May. Judge Sevier took this action when he held for the policyholders in the rate suit.

Comments on Ruling.

"Believing the superintendent was acting beyond the scope of his authority in making the purported order and proposed settlement," Judge Sevier said today, "the Court of its own motion, struck such supplemental amended petition (containing the compromise proposal) from the files of the clerk of the court.

"By that ruling this Court definitely intended to and did express its views as to the validity of the proposed settlement contained in the supplementary petition, and that ruling is a matter of record in this court."

Judge Sevier also stated in his memorandum that his ruling of last May determined the case, on the merits, against the companies and for the policyholders.

While the Judge would not enlarge on this comment as to his former ruling, it apparently was in answer to statements attributed to insurance company representatives, after the decision last May, that the compromise proposal was not submitted to Judge Sevier and that it was not "considered by or passed upon by Judge Sevier." These statements were made in newspaper advertisements and in a circular issued to company agents by the rating bureau for the companies.

Pendergast for Compromise.

The compromise proposition has the approval of Boss T. J. Pendergast of the Kansas City Democratic machine, who has stated he passed along word to Gov. Park, O'Malley and Attorney-General McKittrick to accept it. McKittrick never has approved the compromise plan.

Under its terms the policyholders would be allowed to get back 20 per cent of the approximately $11,000,000 of excess premiums collected by the companies during the more than five years of litigation and now impounded in the courts. The other 80 per cent would be split among the companies, their agents, lawyers for the State and companies, and other purposes, some of which have not been disclosed publicly. The companies also would receive nearly half of the original increase of 16 2-3 per cent in rates.

The policyholders, who would pay all of the expense and fees and get back only one-fifth of the increase exacted from them, also would be deprived of a final decision in the courts on the legal questions involved in the cases, as the compromise, if finally approved, calls for dismissal of the cases.

Up to the time the State administration entered the compromise agreement, the State had vigorously resisted the rate increase in the courts, contending the companies were not entitled to any increase.

PRO-GERMANISM ISSUE IN VOTE TODAY IN MEMEL

Nazis and Lithuanians Anxiously Awaiting Results of Balloting on New Landtag—Quiet Prevails in Territory.

By the Associated Press.

MEMEL, Sept. 28.—Memel was quiet tonight as preparations were completed for tomorrow's election of a new Diet. The actual voting was expected to pass off quietly, officials said, and if real trouble occurs it will be when the results are announced several days hence.

With its 68,000 voters, most of them Germans, Memel has become a bone of contention between Germany, which owned the territory before the World War, and Lithuania, which seized it and now exercises sovereignty over it.

The pro-German party now has 25 of the 29 seats in the Landtag (Diet of Provincial Assembly). Lithuania is fighting to cut down this majority, while Germany, remembering its victory in the Saar, wants to strengthen its claim on Memel.

Test of Democracy.

The election will provide a test of the guaranteed democracy of Memel, under Lithuanian sovereignty but with autonomous rights.

An example of the sensitiveness of both Germans and Lithuanians was the protest by the German election committee over the arrest of a 15-year-old butcher boy. The official Lithuanian version was that the boy was caught destroying Lithuanian election posters and had been hired by local Nazis to do so.

Candidates are divided into seven lists, with 29 candidates each, the number of seats in the Landtag.

One group is the "Einheitsliste," a combination of all German parties, with the retention of autonomy as its platform. Others represent specific interests such as those of farmers, trademen, workers, etc.

How Voting Is Done.

Each voter will be give a book with the names of all candidates, from which must be torn 29 pages. Votes of each candidate will be totaled and credited to the proper list.

The voting will begin tomorrow at 8 a. m. and close at 8 p. m. Elaborate preparations have been made to bring invalids and cripples to the voting booths. One-handed persons will receive aid in tearing leaves from the ballot blocks.

German criticism of Lithuanian policies has centered about the fact that the previous Landtag was made virtually inoperative because Lithuanian members, in the minority, would not attend meetings.

In the last election, May 4, 1932, German parties received 52,868 votes, or 80.3 per cent, Lithuanian parties, 11,961, or 18.1 per cent.

Hitler's Recorded Speech Re-Broadcast on Eve of Election.

BERLIN, Sept. 28.—Adolf Hitler, through a re-broadcast of his recorded speech at the recent Nurnberg Nazi convention, made a final pre-election appeal tonight to Germans in Memel.

His warning was repeated to the League of Nations to "turn its interests to making respected Memel territory's autonomy. . .before the events can assume forms which some day might only be regretted from all sides."

Stations interrupted scheduled programs to send Hitler's words throughout the nation and into Memel. The records were replayed as orginally taken, with applause, so that German thought Hitler was again giving an actual address.

HURRICANE VEERS AWAY FROM MIAMI; 25 DEAD IN CUBA

their storm windows and hammers were heard throughout the business and residential section.

The first word of the extent of the storm's destruction came from naval headquarters at Havana. It was announced that the cruiser Veinte de May in the harbor at Cienfeugos, reported 25 dead and 300 injured in that city. It was reported later that only 13 bodies were found.

It also was announced 1000 houses were destroyed in Cienfeugos, Santa Clara Province, and that the town of Casilda was destroyed by the high seas.

From Kingston, Jamaica, it was reported two persons had been killed in the storm, the tail of which raked Jamaica last night. It was estimated there the banana crop had been damaged $2,500,000. Road and bridge damage was placed at $200,000. Torrential rains accompanied the storm.

150-Mile Wide Swath.

Cutting a swath 150 miles wide through three Cuban provinces, the hurricane roared into the sea from the northern coast early in the afternoon, observers reported, and moved northward to menace Florida.

The British steamship Wanderer wirelessed to Fort Lauderdale that it was aground on Point Del Birril, off the south coast of Cuba. It was not a distress signal, the ship reporting merely that it was aground. The Wanderer is a British freighter of 5079 tons gross register and is owned by Charente Steamship Co., Ltd., of Liverpool. It was bound for Caracas, Venezuela.

Hundreds Flee.

Hundreds of refugees from towns in the three Cuban provinces struck by the storm had moved into Havana before the winds had reached hurricane strength.

They recalled that in November, 1932, another hurricane came along almost the same path to kill 3000 persons.

Special trains carried more than 1500 refugees from Santa Cruz Del Sur into Havana during last night. The towns of Casilda—reported destroyed—Jucaro and Tunas de Zazas, Trinidad, previously were evacuated.

Sheriff D. C. Coleman here mobilized his deputies at the courthouse for continuous duty until danger has passed. Miami policemen off duty were told to remain at home for emergency calls. Hialeah and Coral Gables police were ordered on constant duty at their stations.

Cuba Warns That All East Coast of Florida Is Endangered.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Sept. 28.—The Belen National Observatory announced early tonight the tropical hurricane which swept Cuba today is "nearing the east coast of Florida, endangering the entire section."

Belen Observatory had announced at 9 a. m. that the hurricane, which blew in from the south, was "leaving the northern coast of Cuba, near Key Varien, traveling north or north-northwest, and will be dangerous this afternoon or tomorrow morning to the eastern part of Florida and the Florida canal."

(The "canal" apparently referred to the Florida straits, between the peninsula and the Bahamas and Cuba.)

Havana was isolated from most of Eastern Cuba. Coastal cities to the south had been evacuated partially last night before the catastrophe broke on the frightened inhabitants.

Special Train for Refugees.

Refugees on special trains rolled into Havana and then were unable to learn the fate of relatives and friends left behind.

Lieutenant-Colonel Abelardo Gomez at Santa Clara, capital of that province, advised by private radio that the storm hit the area with full force. He was unable to contact Cienfuegos.

An Associated Press correspondent at Cienfuegos reported that 17 bodies of storm victims were in hospitals and the morgue there tonight. Officials said the death list would not exceed that figure in the city and immediate vicinity.

Military authorities took charge at nightfall to prevent looting. Rifle fire was heard in sections of Cienfuegos, which was without lights, but was believed to be warning shots fired to discourage looters.

Airplanes were grounded and pilots here refused to fly to the troubled zone. Visibility was of the worst. Rains fell steadily.

"I found no dead or injured in the towns of Sancti Spiritus, Arabos, Esperanza, Aguica, Malaca, Santo Domingo and Mordazo," Jose Garcia, an Associated Press photographer, reported.

HUEY LONG FACTION GAINS IN NEW ORLEANS

Democratic Regulars There Agree to Back Allen Ticket in January Primary.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 28.—Held in check by Huey Long laws which stripped the city administration of its powers and vested that authority in the Gov. O. K. Allen administration, the New Orleans old regular Democratic organization today decided to support the State administration ticket in the Jan. 21 primary.

The formal surrender to the Allen forces was announced in resolutions passed today in a caucus of the old regular ward leaders at their Choctaw Club headquarters and meant that they would support Judge Richard W. Leche for Governor and the entire Allen ticket.

The old regulars merged their forces with the Long organization shortly before the assassination of the Senator, but they were left out of the caucus meetings by both the Long and the anti-Long factions in the framing of tickets.

Since then, the shattered forces of the once powerful city machine have sent emissaries to the two rival factions and sought trades of New Orleans voting strength for repeal of the laws by which Long set up a dictatorship in New Orleans.

But Robert S. Maestri, State Conservation Commissioner in the Allen administration, emerged as the whip of the followers of Senator Long and demanded that there be no repeal until after the January primary.

All attempts in the ranks of the old regulars to break his political grip failed and the capitulation of the New Orleans regular Democrats was made complete in today's caucus. No mention was made of the deal agreed on at the caucus.

In the meantime the anti-Long forces, headed by Representative Cleveland Dear, candidate for Governor on a platform of repeal of the dictatorship laws and restoration of local self-government, were actively engaged in making up their full ticket with which to oppose the administration's choice.

Mason Spencer, another anti-Long candidate, was in the field working to build up an organization of his own.

WON'T SALUTE FLAG

New York and the automobile factories of Michigan, and the steel mills of Pennsylvania are springing into activity?

"Now, with export surpluses no longer pressing down on the farmer's welfare, and with fairer prices, farmers really have a chance for the first time in this generation to profit from improved methods."

Conception of Constitution.

Turning to the constitutional argument over AAA impending in the courts and on the political stumps, Roosevelt described his conception of the constitution embodying this effort as:

"To promote the general welfare, not by interfering unduly with individual liberties, but by bringing to the aid of the individual those powers of government which are essential to assure the continuance of the inalienable rights which the constitution is intended to guarantee."

"I like to think," he said, "that agricultural adjustment is an expression, in concrete form, of the human rights those farmer patriots sought to win when they stood at the bridge at Concord, when they proclaimed the Declaration of Independence, and when they perpetuated these ideals by the adoption of the constitution.

"Methods and machinery change, but principals go on, and I have faith that, no matter what attempts may be made to tear down, the principle of farm equality expressed by agricultural adjustment will not die."

Saving in Interest.

The President stated the readjustment of loans through the Farm Credit Administration had brought a saving this year of $55,000,000 in interest alone to 850,000 farmers.

He said the next effort was to improve prices for commodities sold by the farmers. He believed the new monetary system did that job.

Pointing to "the longer future" he said this agricultural program included prevention of soil erosion and floods, encouragement of forestation, and elimination of unprofitable sub-marginal lands from production.

The crowd interrupted with applause when the President declared one of his first moves sought "to free our monetary system of bondage to a sufficient extent to permit money to serve the people rather than to force people to serve money."

He was applauded on the statement of increased farm income, on his declaration that "farmers really have a chance for the first time in this generation to profit from improved methods."

FARM VALUES DOWN 31 PCT. SINCE 1930

38.7 in Missouri — Drop Despite Increases in Number and Acreage.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—A 31 per cent drop in the value of farms since 1930, despite increases both in number and acreage, was disclosed today by the agricultural census.

Earlier reports showed that there are 500,000 more farms than in 1930, and 68,400,000 more acres in cultivation.

The statistics disclose, however, that the value of the 1930 acreage was $14,995,495,980 greater than the acreage in 1935. Census figures gave the value for 1930 as $47,879,838,358 and that for 1935 as $32,884,342,378.

Officials said reports to the Census Bureau showed that some farmers had mortgages larger than the present value of their land.

In 15 states, the average decrease in farm values was more than 30 per cent. In two of these—Iowa and South Dakota—it was above 40 per cent. The Iowa decrease was 41.7 per cent, South Dakota's 46.1.

Six other big Middle Western producing states showed decreases of more than 30 per cent: Illinois, 33.8; Kansas, 35.2; Minnesota, 34.9; Missouri, 38.7; Nebraska, 37.3; Oklahoma, 36.9.

Seven other states also fell into the bracket between 30 and 40 per cent decreases. They were: California, 31.9; Colorado, 33.2; Maryland, 32.3; Mississippi, 34.6; Nevada, 33.6; Virginia, 30.7, and West Virginia, 30.5.

Most of the other states had decreases ranging between 20 and 30 per cent. Two New England states showed increases, but in neither was farming classed as the major industry. Connecticut had a gain in value of farm lands of 24.8 per cent and Rhode Island of 2.1. The first state has 32,000 farms and the latter 4000.

Agricultural experts said the value of farm lands fluctuated according to farm income and that both were now on the upgrade, after reaching bottom in 1932. They recited farm income statistics for the 1930-34 period to show that the spread between income was about the same as between land values in the first and last years.

The agricultural share of the national income for those years was fixed at: 1930, $6,320,000,000; 1931, $4,659,000,000; 1932, $3,582,000,000; 1933, $4,557,000,000; 1934, $5,287,000,000.

MRS. MUENCH AVOIDS CLAIMING IN COURT BABY AT HOME IS HER OWN

HER LAWYER DIFFERS WITH JUDGE ON ISSUE

Court Declares It Is Parentage of Child, Her Attorney That Only Point Is Whether It Is Anna Ware's.

There is no pleading before this Court wherein respondent Nellie Tipton Muench claims to be the mother of any child.

This significant admission, from a motion filed Friday night on behalf of Mrs. Muench in the St. Louis Court of Appeals, furnishes the key to her attitude toward the habeas corpus suit filed by Anna Ware, unwed mother, to get custody of the baby now in the Muench home which Anna declares is her child.

It emphasizes the fact that with one exception, no definite and unequivocal statement has been made, by or for Mrs. Munech, that she bore the baby boy now in her home.

Before and since Anna Ware filed the suit in which she declared that the child in the Muench home was actually the Ware baby, Mrs. Muench's action with respect to the child has been by inference to establish that she herself had borne the baby. In statements to the press, including the lengthy one in the Globe-Democrat yesterday morning, the unqualified statement that she gave birth to the child has been lacking, and only the inference has been there.

Birth Certificate.

The one exception has been the filing of the birth certificate, required by law, wherein it is stated that the baby was born of Mrs. Muench and her husband, Dr. Ludwig O. Muench. Filing of a false birth certificate is a misdemeanor.

In the habeas corpus proceeding in the Court of Appeals, the effort of counsel for Mrs. Muench has been directed toward confining the inquiry to a single issue—is or is not the child in the Muench home the son of Anna Ware?

Any inquiry which would have the effect also of determining whether or not Mrs. Muench herself bore the child, has been characterized by her counsel as completely beside the point, and not an issue.

Judge's View of Issue.

This contention has been urged upon the Court in the face of an entirely different statement of the issue of the case as defined by Judge William Dee Becker in a hearing last Wednesday. At that time, Judge Becker said from the bench that "the ultimate issue raised for the determination of this court is the parentage of this child and its custody."

Judge Becker urged counsel to think whether it might not be advisable that Dr. and Mrs. Muench, then absent, appear in court, "and produce the child, whether it be their child or that of the petitioner (Anna Ware).

"You think that over from this angle," he continued, "in the ultimate end and sooner or later that question is bound to be determined. Whether we meet the issue squarely, and at once, or whether, by reason of asking a little time, in the ultimate end, where the court has once started a proceeding of this kind, it is fair to presume that this court is not going to stop until that issue sought to be determined here is definitely and ultimately determined."

Referring again to the child in the Muench home, Judge Becker said to counsel:

"I point these things out because, as I say, this is not between two litigants; this is a matter here involving ultimately and solely one issue, the parentage of the child, which can only be brought out by the proceedings; it is ultimately bound to come down to this, to the parentage of one child."

Defense Counsel's Argument.

To this last statement counsel for Mrs. Muench rejoined with the statement: "Whether the child is the child of Dr. and Mrs. Muench is wholly extraneous to this issue." This contention was repeated and emphasized in the motion filed on behalf of Mrs. Muench Friday even to the extent that the Court was asked to strike from Anna Ware's reply her statement that Dr. and Mrs. Muench claim that Mrs. Muench is the mother of the child in their home.

The Court was asked to expunge this statement "for the reason that no such claim is made in the return of respondents (the Muenches) and that there is no issue involving the parentage of Nellie Tipton Muench as to any child in this habeas corpus hearing; the only question being are these respondents in possession of the child of Anna Ware, or have

HER LAWYER DIFFERS WITH JUDGE ON ISSUE

Court Declares It Is Parentage of Child, Her Attorney That Only Point Is Whether It Is Anna Ware's.

There is no pleading before this Court wherein respondent Nellie Tipton Muench claims to be the mother of any child.

This significant admission, from a motion filed Friday night on behalf of Mrs. Muench in the St. Louis Court of Appeals, furnishes the key to her attitude toward the habeas corpus suit filed by Anna Ware, unwed mother, to get custody of the baby now in the Muench home which Anna declares is her child.

It emphasizes the fact that with one exception, no definite and unequivocal statement has been made, by or for Mrs. Munech, that she bore the baby boy now in her home.

Before and since Anna Ware filed the suit in which she declared that the child in the Muench home was actually the Ware baby, Mrs. Muench's action with respect to the child has been by inference to establish that she herself had borne the baby. In statements to the press, including the lengthy one in the Globe-Democrat yesterday morning, the unqualified statement that she gave birth to the child has been lacking, and only the inference has been there.

Birth Certificate.

The one exception has been the filing of the birth certificate, required by law, wherein it is stated that the baby was born of Mrs. Muench and her husband, Dr. Ludwig O. Muench. Filing of a false birth certificate is a misdemeanor.

In the habeas corpus proceeding in the Court of Appeals, the effort of counsel for Mrs. Muench has been directed toward confining the inquiry to a single issue—is or is not the child in the Muench home the son of Anna Ware?

Any inquiry which would have the effect also of determining whether or not Mrs. Muench herself bore the child, has been characterized by her counsel as completely beside the point, and not an issue.

Judge's View of Issue.

This contention has been urged upon the Court in the face of an entirely different statement of the issue of the case as defined by Judge William Dee Becker in a hearing last Wednesday. At that time, Judge Becker said from the bench that "the ultimate issue raised for the determination of this court is the parentage of this child and its custody."

Judge Becker urged counsel to think whether it might not be advisable that Dr. and Mrs. Muench, then absent, appear in court, "and produce the child, whether it be their child or that of the petitioner (Anna Ware).

"You think that over from this angle," he continued, "in the ultimate end and sooner or later that question is bound to be determined. Whether we meet the issue squarely, and at once, or whether, by reason of asking a little time, in the ultimate end, where the court has once started a proceeding of this kind, it is fair to presume that this court is not going to stop until that issue sought to be determined here is definitely and ultimately determined."

Referring again to the child in the Muench home, Judge Becker said to counsel:

"I point these things out because, as I say, this is not between two litigants; this is a matter here involving ultimately and solely one issue, the parentage of the child, which can only be brought out by the proceedings; it is ultimately bound to come down to this, to the parentage of one child."

Defense Counsel's Argument.

To this last statement counsel for Mrs. Muench rejoined with the statement: "Whether the child is the child of Dr. and Mrs. Muench is wholly extraneous to this issue." This contention was repeated and emphasized in the motion filed on behalf of Mrs. Muench Friday even to the extent that the Court was asked to strike from Anna Ware's reply her statement that Dr. and Mrs. Muench claim that Mrs. Muench is the mother of the child in their home.

The Court was asked to expunge this statement "for the reason that no such claim is made in the return of respondents (the Muenches) and that there is no issue involving the parentage of Nellie Tipton Muench as to any child in this habeas corpus hearing; the only question being are these respondents in possession of the child of Anna Ware, or have it under their control, at the time the writ of habeas corpus was issued by this Court."

Penalty for False Affidavits.

Had Mrs. Muench said in her sworn pleadings that she had given birth to a baby, as she has informally stated she did in her home on the night of Aug. 17-18, and were it then to have been proved she never had borne any child, she would have subjected herself to prosecution under a Missouri statute making it a misdemeanor to give a false affidavit.

Statements of fact on information and belief may be made in pleadings in court actions, but the privilege does not extend to sworn statements of fact proved to be false. An attorney may accept the truth of statements of fact as given to him by his client, but he may not, without possible penalty, plead for his client false statements of fact, knowing them to be false.

The law against making false affidavits, Section 3882 of the 1929 statutes, provides a penalty, on conviction, of not less than six months in jail or a fine of not less than $500.

Argument Tuesday.

The entire Court of Appeals—Judge Becker presiding, with Judges Jefferson D. Hostetter and Edward J. McCullen also on the bench—will sit Tuesday morning to hear arguments of counsel on the motion filed on behalf of Mrs. Muench and on other motions pending. Since the hearing is of a purely formal character, the presence of respondents will not be necessary.

In addition to the Muenches, Anna Ware directed her suit against Attorney Wilfred Jones, friend of the Muenches, who arranged for the unmarried mother to come from Pennsylvania to St. Louis to give birth to her baby, saying he would place it with friends for adoption; Mrs. Rebecca Winner, midwife to whose home at 6015 Maple avenue Jones conducted Anna Ware, and where her baby was born; Carl M. Dubinsky, Mrs. Winner's cousin and attorney, and Mrs. Helen Berroyer of 5559 Pershing avenue, said to have been in the Muench home on the night of Aug. 17-18 when Mrs. Muench was reported to have had a son. Mrs. Berroyer, away on vacation, has not been served with the writ.

Dubinsky has filed a motion asking for judgment in his behalf because, he contends, it is not shown by the pleadings that he is a proper party to the suit. Mrs. Winner has filed a motion asking that reference to her participation in the circumstances surrounding the birth be stricken from Anna Ware's reply. These motions also will be argued Tuesday morning.

Anna Ware's Reply.

Anna Ware's reply to Wilfred Jones' return was filed yesterday. In it she admitted Jones' statement that he was not now in custody of the Ware baby, but declared he did have custody on the day of the child's birth, and that with the assistance of a nurse and other persons he caused the baby to be taken from the mother and delivered to the custody of the Muenches.

Jones had declared in his return that Anna Ware's suit should have set forth the name of the father of the child. This, she said in her reply, was not necessary. On her complaint, two warrants have been issued at Doylestown, Pa., charging that the father of the baby is Francis A. Giordon, son-in-law of Mrs. Winner, the midwife.

Health Commissioner J. F. Bredeck, who called on Dr. Muench to substantiate his report of the birth of a child to his wife, said last night that he had received no reply to the communication, which reached Dr. Muench Thursday night.

KIDNAPING TRIAL OF MRS. MUENCH OPENS TOMORROW

ed McDonald and is attorney for Davit, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that he was still employed by Mrs. Muench but would not attend the trial. "They have plenty of lawyers up there," Lacy said. He has not been active lately in behalf of Mrs. Muench.

The Mexico attorneys retained for Mrs. Muench include R. D. Rodgers, former Circuit Judge and State Senator; Frank Hollingsworth, former Prosecuting Attorney and State Senator; W. Wallace Fry, member of the board of examiners of the Missouri Bar Association; J. W. Buffington, former Prosecuting Attorney and now City Attorney of Mexico; Marion S. Francis, George P. Adams, and Frank Edwards. The seven represent more than half of Mexico's 13 practicing attorneys.

Courtroom Seats in Demand.

Audrain County's first kidnaping trial in its history has attracted widespread interest there. Anticipating that the demand for courtroom seats will be greater than the supply, Sheriff E. S. Haycraft will have six deputies on hand to preserve order. The high ceilinged, dark paneled courtroom has seats for 225 spectators.

Circuit Judge W. C. Hughes of Montgomery City, serving his second term on the bench, will preside at the trial in the courtroom where his father, Judge Elliott M. Hughes, sat a generation ago. A portrait of his father hangs above his bench.

Hotels, restaurants and business houses are looking forward to increased business from out of town visitors during the 10 days or so the trial is expected to last.

Special Panel Chosen.

A special panel of 40 veniremen has been selected by Sheriff Harcraft on order of Judge Hughes. Their names will be kept secret until the trial begins. In choosing the jury, attorneys for the State and the defense will examine veniremen until they get a panel of 30 against whom there is no cause for objection on the ground of prejudice or other impediment to their service as jurors. From this panel the State will excuse six, and the defense 12, leaving the final panel of 12 to hear the case.

Familiar Country to Mrs. Muench.

The trial will take Mrs. Muench back to scenes in Northeast Missouri familiar to her girlhood. Daughter of a Baptist minister, the late Rev. William Tipton, she was born at Odessa, near Kansas City, but in infancy was taken to Bowling Green, in Pike County, which adjoins Audrain County on the east. Her father preached in Audrain County churches at times, but few now resident in the county recall him.

When Mrs. Muench was 9 years old the family moved to Columbia, Mo., and there, while a student at Stephens College, she met Ludwig O. Muench, then a student at Missouri University Medical School. They eloped and were married in 1912.

In obtaining the change of venue from St. Louis County Mrs. Muench contended that popular prejudice against her there would make it impossible to obtain a fair trial. Circuit Judge Nolte, after a hearing, sent the case to Mexico for the term of court which began there Sept. 2. Other cases were ahead of it on the docket and by agreement of counsel and the Court when the case was called Sept. 2 it was continued until Sept. 30, after several other dates, not satisfactory to all parties, had been discussed.

HOWARD'S EX-WIFE SAYS $100,000 IS GIFT, NOT ALIMONY

related, Mrs. Howard exhibited bruises on her arm and leg.

Before concluding his testimony Howard responded to questions from the bench, describing his business activities. He said he was a director of the General Steel Casting Corporation, anexecutor of his father's estate, a director of several local companies, and that he attended to his mother's personal affairs.

Active in Boy Scouts.

Describing himself as "active" in the Boy Scouts and St. Louis County Y. M. C. A., Howard observed that he "inherited the Boy Scout thing from my father—he was very interested in it."

His version of the $100,000 payment to his wife was, in effect, that he gave it to her when she broached the subject of a possible divorce, and with the understanding it would represent her alimony "in case she ever desired a divorce."

She created a trust fund with the money, he said, on her own initiative with his assistance, so that she may receive an annual income of about $5500, and it is bequeathed to her children at her death.

$200 Monthly Alimony.

A subsequent stipulation provided she should get $200 monthly alimony for life, or while she remained single, while trusts for their children, previously created by Howard and his father to go to them when they reach the age of 21, were increased to $60,000 each. She relinquished claim to any property held jointly.

Howard testified he was willing to assume a lease of $185 a month on a residence obtained by his former wife at Summit, and increase his monthly payments by $50, if Mrs. Howard would remain in St. Louis with the children, occupying a house of his selection.

Early in his testimony he had estimated his personal fortune at $1,400,000, and said he received a net income of $70,000 last year. Mrs. Howard obtained custody of the children with the provision they would spend summer and Christmas vacations with their father and he might see them at all reasonable times.

TWO JAILED IN TRUCK DEATH OF LEGIONNAIRE

Machine Traced After Killing Near Edwardsville; Manslaughter Warrant Issued.

A warrant charging manslaughter was issued at Edwardsville yesterday against William Roper and Elmer Stratton, both of Decatur, Ill., in the death of Herman W. Wieher, a Legionnaire, who was run down on U. S. Highway 66 Wednesday night while on his way home from the American Legion national convention here.

Wieher, a paperhanger of Waukegan, Ill., started home in the automobile of another Legionnaire, George Hahn, of Waukegan. Near Edwardsville they stopped to repair a tire. Wieher stepped on to the highway and was killed by a truck, which continued on.

Hahn reported part of the license number and said the machine was painted red. A highway patrolman learned that a red beer truck had stuck in the mud north of Edwardsville.

Persons who aided in getting the machine back on the highway had noted the license number, which corresponded to the information Hahn had furnished. The license was traced to a Decatur beer distributor, and Roper and Stratton, who were reported to have had the truck out last Wednesday, were arrested. They are in jail at Edwardsville.

BOTH SIDES IN CANOE MURDER CASE REST

Closing Arguments Tomorrow in Case of Choir Singer at Worcester, Mass.

By the Associated Press.

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 28.—Newell P. Sherman, 26-year-old choir singer, on trial here for the murder of his 22-year-old wife, today admitted illicit relations with the other woman in the case. He stuck to his story, however, that drowning of his wife in a canoe in Lake Singletary on the night of July 20 was an accident.

Both sides rested. Final arguments of counsel will be made Monday and the case will reach the jury probably on the same day.

Esther Magill, 18 years old, for love of whom the State alleges Sherman drowned the mother of his two children, yesterday refused on advice of counsel to say that her affair with the 242-pound scoutmaster had gone beyond the "hugging and kissing" stage.

Today Sherman told the jury all about it, although with considerable reluctance. At times he appeared on the verge of tears as District Attorney Owen A. Hoban demanded the truth about his relations with Miss Magill.

Sherman admitted he had broached the subject of marriage to Miss Magill provided he could obtain a divorce.

Sherman testified that although he earned $23.50 a week in the machine shop in which both he and Miss Magill were employed, he allowed his wife only $1.25 a week plus some money for clothes. At the same time he told of having given Miss Magill $45. He said Miss Magill had acted as a sort of banker for him but he couldn't tell why.

Admitting he had given police at least four different versions of the tragedy, he said he had lied because "I was ashamed of it."

Sherman admitted the truth of a statement contained in his alleged confession that when he and his wife were thrown into the water he had shaken off his wife's dying grip upon his shoulder. He insisted, despite the fact that he was a good swimmer, he acted for self-preservation.

LAWYER BLAMES OTHERS IN KILLING OF FARM WOMAN

Says He Will Seek Action Against Six Companions of New Jersey Deputy Held for Manslaughter.

By the Associated Press.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Sept. 28.—Dissatisfied with the one manslaughter charge already made, counsel for the Crempa family pushed tonight for murder indictments, not only against the one Deputy Sheriff arrested today, but against the six officers who were his companions.

The family insists that the raid on the Scotch Plains home of the Crempas Thursday, when Mrs. Sophie Crempa was killed—a raid bringing to bloody climax the Crempa family's feud with the Chancery Court and the Public Service Electric & Gas Co.—was a seven-man affair, and that the killing was needless and unprovoked.

Charles Remley, 47 years old, of Cranford, the deputy who admitted firing a shotgun three times during the raid, was arraigned today on a charge of manslaughter. He pleaded not guilty and was released on $5000 bail, posted by a fellow deputy. His superiors said he would not be suspended.

To Urge Prosecutor to Act.

Leonard Pontus, attorney for the Crempa family, said he would press his demand for murder indictments when he conferred Monday with Prosecutor Abe J. David. David will present evidence to the grand jury Oct. 8.

David said today he had "no information on which to base any further arrests at this time."

Pontus said he would seek to have charges of murder, atrocious assault and battery with intent to kill, and possibly unlawful entry, placed against each of the seven deputies. He said he had not decided what charges to urge against Sheriff C. Wesley Collins.

It was on Collins' orders that the deputies went to the Crempa home to arrest John Crempa on warrants charging contempt of court and assault. Both resulted from Crempa's defiance of an injunction restraining him from damaging or interfering with the Public Service company's high-tension wires which cross his land.

Reason for the Raid.

The power lines were erected after the utility company secured the right by court condemnation for $800. Opposed to having the wires cross his property, Crempa demanded $150,000 and cut and short-circuited the wires. When the injunction was issued, he ignored it, and until Thursday evaded all attempts of the Sheriff to arrest him for contempt.

Twice wounded in Thursday's raid, Crempa, from his hospital bed, charged the deputies fired on him and his wife without provocation.

Pontus said he had obtained a Chancery Court order for Crempa's release to attend his wife's funeral Monday. Crempa's son, John Jr., arrested for contempt on the eve of the raid, would also be released for the funeral, Pontus said. Crempa's daughter, Camille, 19, arrested in the raid on a charge of atrocious assault, was paroled yesterday.

DRIVER OF BREWERY TRUCK HELD UP AND ROBBED OF $85

Ralph Wendeler Says Armed Man Climber Into Machine at Compton and Lafayette.

Ralph Wendeler, a driver for the Falstaff Brewing Corporation, was robbed of $85 yesterday by a man who climbed in his truck and forced him to drive several blocks before taking the money and fleeing.

Wendeler had parked at Compton and Lafayette avenues to make a delivery. On his return the robber followed him in the truck, pointed a pistol at him and ordered him to drive south. At Sidney street the man took the money and ran.

THEATER REALTY CO. RECEIVER FIGHTS BANKRUPTCY MOTION

With Bondholders' Committee He Seeks Dismissal of Suit; Firm Is Fox Subsidiary.

Motions asking that the involuntary bankruptcy suit against the Theater Realty Co., filed Sept. 17 by the holders of $5500 in defaulted bonds be dismissed were filed yesterday in Federal Court by the bondholders' committee, the receiver, Edmund Koeln, Harry Greenman, president of the company, and a group of bondholders who have $15,500 of the bonds.

The Theater Realty Co. is the Fox subsidiary which holds title to the Fox Theater on Grand boulevard. It has been in receivership in the State courts for four years.

The bondholders' committee said in its motion that it had obtained deposit of $3,142,100 of the outstanding $4,500,000 in bonds, and had agreed on a plan of reorganization. The objectors suggested that the holders of $5500 of so large an issue were not qualified to propose a reorganization plan.

DR. HARMON QUITS M'KENDREE COLLEGE

The Rev. Clark R. Yost of Fairfield, Ill., to Succeed Him as President.

The Rev. Dr. Cameron Harmon, president of McKendree College at Lebanon, Ill., for the last 12 years, resigned yesterday, and his resignation was accepted by the Southern Illionis Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in session at Marion, Ill.

Dr. Harmon's administration was criticised last year by an alumni group following the dropping of the college from the accredited list of the North Central Association. He said last evening that no pressure had been brought to bear for his resignation, and that he had received assurances from the faculty, alumni, and student body that they "were behind me 100 per cent."

He said to a Post-Dispatch reporter, "I'd rather leave when they want me to stay, than stay when they want me to leave." He said he would return to the Methodist ministry, and that he would await an appointment from the Southern Illinois Conference. He was formerly pastor of First Methodist Church, East St. Louis.

His successor will be the Rev. Clark R. Yost of Fairfield, Ill., a district superintendent of the Methodist Church. The Rev. Mr. Yost is a graduate of the college, and has been a member of its board of trustees.

Bishop E. M. Waldorf, in a statement, said he was surprised by the resignation. "Dr. Harmon visited me last night," he said, "with this surprising and startling proposition. I immediately summoned my cabinet to discuss the matter." The cabinet put the matter before the joint board of directors and college visitors, which voted to accept the resignation.

The college, which is the oldest college in the Methodist Church, was dropped by the North Central Association in April, 1934. At the time Dr. Harmon gave the reason for this as the college's poor financial situation and the fact that the association said the grades given to students were too high.

An alumni group subsequently adopted a resolution calling for an inquiry into the college's financial and educational management, and presented the resolution to the Southern Illinois Conference. The conference gave a vote of confidence to Dr. Harmon.

BAVARIAN GOVERNOR URGES RETURN OF GERMAN COLONIES

Cites Example Set by Italy and Japan in Breaking Boundaries to Expand.

By the Associated Press.

DUESSELDORF, Germany, Sept. 28.—Gen. Franz von Epp, Governor of Bavaria, said tonight the return of German colonies lost after the World War as needed to provide work and bread for a growing population.

Addressing a colonial gathering, he said "the question is one of furnishing an ever-growing people with labor and sustenance, and articles such as rubber and cotton which our former colonies produce. Since we do not have devisen (bill of exchange) we cannot buy them, but if we had colonies we would not need devisen."

He cited Italy and Japan as examples of peoples bursting boundaries because of need for more room. "We also can advance a similar claim justly," he said.

MUSSOLINI SAYS BRITISH INTERESTS ARE IN NO DANGER

surroundings where its rights prejudically are not recognized.

"On the other hand, while the League of Nations locks itself in formal labyrinths of procedure, Ethiopia has completed in these days mobilization of all her forces with the intention as declared by Ras (Emperor Haile Salassie) to attack Italy's colonial frontiers.

"The announcement made by the Negus at Geneva about having ordered a 30-kilometer withdrawal of troops absolutely cannot be taken seriously by the Italian Government or by any government worthy of such a name. Such an expedient has a strategic purpose; not a pacific one—to better conceal preparations in the interior and entrench troops in more reliable positions.

"Owing to this situation the departure of our divisions has assumed considerable accelerated rhythm in the last few days.

Outline of Policy.

"Before adjourning the Cabinet laid down the lines of its conduct in the immediate future as follows:

"(1.) Italy will not abandon the League of Nations until the day when the League itself fully assumes responsibility for 'measures' which strike at Italy.

"(2.) After having received a communication in cordial terms of a verbal message from Sir Samuel Hoare (the British Foreign Secretary), conveyed by the English Ambassador to Rome, Sir Eric Drummond, the Cabinet declares yet again—as it has already done at Bolzano—that Italy's policy has no immediate or remote aims which could injure Great Britain's interests.

"The British Government from Jan. 29 until today has been informed in the friendliest manner of the colonial objective of Italy's policy and of the interests which direct the policy, interests which are recognized by Great Britain herself in bilateral accords.

"The British people must know, over and above all anti-Fascist mystifications, that the Italian Government has communicated to the British Government its willingness to negotiate for further accords which would harmonize with legitimate British interests in East Africa.

"(3.) The Fascist Government declares in the most solemn manner it will avoid everything that could extend the Italo-Ethiopian conflict to a wider field.

Greetings to Soldiers.

"Before closing its session the Cabinet sent to its commanders and to the rank and file of the Eritrean and Somaliland divisions its warmest greetings and most fervent best wishes. This greeting was extended to all of Italy's soldiers who are guarding the country on land and sea and in the heavens.

"The Cabinet cities for the gratitude of the nation the 30,000 workmen who through their work in a few months and in extremely difficult conditions have completed technical preparations in our two East African colonies.

"Finally the Cabinet takes note of the calm discipline the Italian people has manifest in these days so filled with events, an attitude which is characteristic of a strong people.

"The Cabinet sees that in this time the truly high spirtiual tension of the Italian people, tempered by 13 years of this regime, is wholly solidified around the ensigns of the Fascist revolution.

"They will soon demonstrate this to the world with a civil mobilization without precedent in history."

Italy's Delegation Departs When Assembly Adjourns.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Sept. 28.—Baron Pompeo Aloisi, chief of Italy's delegation to the League of Nations, departed tonight for Rome, accompanied by Guido Rocco of the Foreign Office. Headquarters of the delegation announced the others would leave tonight or tomorrow.

A spokesman for the Italian delegation said it must not be assumed they are leaving Geneva for good. An observer will be kept here for the time being.

Aloisi yesterday vigorously protested against the action of the Steering Committee in recommending that the Assembly adjourn, subject to immediate call, rather than end its session. This action was carried out today. The Assembly left for home, prepared to reassemble on notice, while the Council of the League, resolved into a committee of 13, labored on a report. Recommendations will be drafted by the Council next week. It reviewed the Italo-Ethiopian conflict today, making a basis for its work.

Before granting the request of Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia for a neutral commission of observers, the Council decided to get Italy's views on the subject. Officials explained it would be difficult, possibly dangerous, for a League group to go to the Ethiopian frontiers unless assurances were obtained from both Italy and Ethiopia that its work would be aided and the membership protected.

Before the Assembly ended its brief meeting Eduard Benes, president, gave warning: "Grave events may still occur in a conflict which the Council has not yet been able to settle."

Ethiopia Gives Notice Italy May Force Her to Mobilize.

ADDIS ABABA, Sept. 28.—Emperor Haile Selassie served notice on Geneva tonight that, if Italy continues her warlike preparations in East Africa, he must, in self-defense, order a general mobilization of Ethiopia's warriors.

Italy's provocative attitude indicates an offensive is near, he told the League. He sent his message after receiving news of the Italian announcement today that the departure of troops for East Africa was being speeded up.

At the same time, he expressed confidence the League would support Ethiopia and prevent her from becoming the victim of aggression.

The declaration in the Rome communique that Ethiopia has completed mobilization with the declared intention of attacking Italian colonies caused indignation and brought bitter denials from official circles.

"Would Be Sheer Insanity."

An official close to the Emperor asserted: "Not only do we declare solemnly before the world the Emperor has not mobilized all his forces, but he has never had the slightest intention of attacking Italy's colonial frontiers.

"To attack a powerful mechanized foe like Italy, equipped with airplanes and the deadliest gas bombs, with our feeble forces, would be sheer insanity. . . . It would cost us the good opinion of the whole world, compromise our case at Geneva and alienate the support of the League, in which the Emperor has never lost confidence."

Ready for Mobilization.

Haile Selassie sent printed proclamations of mobilization today to all his provincial governors, so that the governors can release them immediately if and when Italy's attitude warrants.

It was learned the Empress Mennen, breaking a precedent, will fly to Dessia Oct. 10 to organize hospitals for wounded soldiers. She will be assisted by her German lady-in-waiting, Frau Hertel, who has had medical training in Berlin.

"Best for England to Let Us Go," Paris Paper Quotes Mussolini.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 28.—The newspaper Petit Journal, in an interview in Rome with Premier Mussolini, quoted him today as saying he would not refuse to participate in a tri-Power conference to renew the Stresa Accord (formed by Britain, France and Italy).

"Basically, the best would be for England to let us go, as she has always done for other nations," Mussolini was quoted.

In the interview Mussolini said Britain's participation in 1906 and 1925 agreements showed she at that time had little respect for Ethiopia's independence. "In 1925 I signed with the English Ambassador an agreement which divided, which practically decapitated, Ethiopia," the interview said.

ST. LOUIS BOARD ATTACKS OLD-AGE PENSION SETUP

Offices Closed Until Act Is Shown to Be 'Workable' and State Provides Necessary Funds.

REFUSES TO ACCEPT 'HAND-PICKED' STAFF

Politics Charged in Selection at Jefferson City of Investigators to Replace Volunteers.

A detailed criticism of the State administration of the old-age pension act, and of the law itself, is incorporated in a statement issued last night by the St. Louis Old Age Assistance Board after closing its offices.

The board, consisting of Dr. R. Emmet Kane, Mrs. Fred A. Reid and Charles Hertenstein, was supported in its action by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, which after a hearing resolved that it approved "the resolution adopted by the Old Age Assistance Board to cease operations until such time as that board and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment are convinced that the Old Age Pension Act is a workable act and until necessary funds are provided by the State to carry on the work in an efficient manner."

Charge of Politics.

Recalling that the local board was assured at the beginning of its work that it would have a voice in the hiring of assistants it called attention to announcement from Jefferson City that a school for 35 investigators would open there tomorrow.

"This method of selection without any consultation with the St. Louis Board will not be tolerated," the board members stated, "and we believe we are right in assuming these selections are purely political."

Citing its freedom from political pressure, the board stated its 86 volunteer workers have been engaged on merit alone, although "Democratic as well as Republican leading politicians have stromed our doors, written us letters, rung our telephones, asking for some form of special consideration."

No one has received more attention, the board stated, "than the humblest man or woman who has asked for an application blank or or the most obscure applicant for a job."

Pointing out that it has not resigned, the board said:

"If political preference is to be shown to any worker or applicant the St. Louis board will have nothing to do with any further activity under this act. This board would like to know, and it feels it has a right to know, who selected the 35 fortunates ones who are to be investigators and by what process they were chosen."

Preference for Volunteers.

Referring to the personnel problem, the board said it was assured

ST. LOUIS BOARD ATTACKS OLD-AGE PENSION SETUP

Offices Closed Until Act Is Shown to Be 'Workable' and State Provides Necessary Funds.

Politics Charged in Selection at Jefferson City of Investigators to Replace Volunteers.

A detailed criticism of the State administration of the old-age pension act, and of the law itself, is incorporated in a statement issued last night by the St. Louis Old Age Assistance Board after closing its offices.

The board, consisting of Dr. R. Emmet Kane, Mrs. Fred A. Reid and Charles Hertenstein, was supported in its action by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, which after a hearing resolved that it approved "the resolution adopted by the Old Age Assistance Board to cease operations until such time as that board and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment are convinced that the Old Age Pension Act is a workable act and until necessary funds are provided by the State to carry on the work in an efficient manner."

Charge of Politics.

Recalling that the local board was assured at the beginning of its work that it would have a voice in the hiring of assistants it called attention to announcement from Jefferson City that a school for 35 investigators would open there tomorrow.

"This method of selection without any consultation with the St. Louis Board will not be tolerated," the board members stated, "and we believe we are right in assuming these selections are purely political."

Citing its freedom from political pressure, the board stated its 86 volunteer workers have been engaged on merit alone, although "Democratic as well as Republican leading politicians have stromed our doors, written us letters, rung our telephones, asking for some form of special consideration."

No one has received more attention, the board stated, "than the humblest man or woman who has asked for an application blank or the most obscure applicant for a job."

Pointing out that it has not resigned, the board said:

"If political preference is to be shown to any worker or applicant the St. Louis board will have nothing to do with any further activity under this act. This board would like to know, and it feels it has a right to know, who selected the 35 fortunates ones who are to be investigators and by what process they were chosen."

Preference for Volunteers.

Referring to the personnel problem, the board said it was assured preference would be given to its 86 volunteer workers, who have served without compensation, when funds were available to pay salaries. An agreement made with W. Ed Jameson, chairman of the State Eleeymosnary Board, to provide $1 a day for lunches and carfare was not kept, the board alleged. No member of the board desires compensation or expense money, it stated.

Turning to the administration of the law, the board said the Commissioner planned for one investigator to investigate 4000 applicants while "competent social service workers assure us that an investigator cannot possibly make more than four competent investigations a day."

Under the Commissioner's plan, the board said, it would take an investigator three years and four four months to complete his original assignment.

Says Act Won't Work.

"To recapitulate," it stated. "The St. Louis Board is a unit in concluding that the Old Age Assistance Act known as Senate Bill No. 7 will not work and that it reflects no credit on the intelligence of the Legislature that passed it.

"It provides no salaries for those who actually do the work it requires and does not provide an adequate fund for the relief it promises.

"The St. Louis Board will not accept hand-picked employes of any State agency who will come here to St. Louis to replace the competent help we have trained and developed for a period of a month and who have worked without compensation in the hope that by demonstrating their fitness they would eventually be selected on the recommendation of this board.

"The St. Louis Board will not put itself in the ridiculous position of piling up applications that will not be investigated until many of these old folks have died. If the Commissioner really means to furnish one investigator for every 4000 blanks we have already filled up enough blanks in St. Louis to keep the investigators that will be furnished to us, busy for a year and we have only scratched the surface.

"The members of the St. Louis Board as individuals are jealous of their reputation for honesty and fair dealing, and we will not be a party to holding out false hopes either to prospective employes or to our own old folks who will never get, under the present act, the aid they have the right to anticipate."

TWO ITALIAN ROYAL PRINCES WILL GO TO EAST AFRICA

Both Are Infantry Brigade Commanders; King Supports Mussolini's Plans.

ROME, Sept. 28.—Italy's Royal family, headed by King Victor Emmanuel, is rallying around Premier Mussolini's campaign in East Africa, and some of its princes will fight side by side with the new Fascist aristocracy.

Prince Adalbaerto, the Duke of Bergamo, a cousin of the King, will leave for East Africa tomorrow aboard the Saturnia. Prince Filiberto, Duke of Pistoia, 40 years old, a brother of the Duke of Bergamo, also has volunteered and will be sent out. Both are infantry brigade commanders. Crown Prince Umberto, commander of the military zone of Naples from which nine-tenths of the troop departures have taken place, has supervised barrack life at Naples and personally reviewed tens of thousands of troops before their departure.

Recently at the Bolzano military maneuvers the King demonstrated openly that he supported Mussolini's intentions by remaining to hear Il Duce's speech to his troops, in which he again warned England against sanctions. This was contrary to all custom, since His Majesty invariably leaves before political speeches are made.

TROOPS AGAIN ORDERED INTO HARLAN COUNTY

Gov. Laffoon Says "Reign of Terror" Exists; Local Officials Deny It.

By the Associated Press.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Sept. 28.—National guardsmen moved tonight toward Harlan County for the third time this year. Although Harlan County Judges and peace officers said there was no civil disorder in the soft coal fields, Gov. Laffoon ordered the occupation after hearing United Mine Workers denounce conditions.

Adjutant-General Henry H. Denhardt said "at least half" of his expedition will occupy the county, scene of labor, political and factional strife for 100 years.

Howard Williams, Negro, told the Governor deputy sheriffs beat him Wednesday night, took him to the Virginia line and told him to stay out of the county. Gov. Laffoon said he received many telegrams and telephone calls about Harlan conditions, asking for troops. "From all I can learn," he declared, "a general state of lawlessness exists there." The troops will put down "the worst reign of terror in the history of the county," the Governor added.

Judge James M. Gilbert of the Harlan Circuit said at his Pineville (Ky.) home there was no disorder. He summoned A. J. Pinko, labor organizer, who has been quoted in reports of trouble. Harlan County Attorney H. M. Fuson said at Harlan: "We know of no disorders of any kind." County Judge Morris Saylor said he had checked all sections and that there was no trouble. Saylor said no eviction suits had been filed by coal companies, as charged in complaints disclosed by Denhardt.

"Reign of terror" has been a key word for Harlan County in official documents in Kentucky this year. Gen. Denhardt headed a commission which, after hearings and a field trip, told the Governor a "reign of terror" existed. The report recommended removal of Sheriff Theodore R. Middleton. The removal hearing is still pending.

The Governor adopted the phrase when he sent Denhardt with 700 soldiers to regulate the August primary election. Denhardt is under indictment in Harlan County as a result of that occupation, accused of bringing his troops in violation of an injunction obtained by the Sheriff. Denhardt said the August occupation stopped a plot to "steal" the August Democratic primary for Lieutenant-Governor A. B. (Happy) Chandler, candidate of a faction hostile to the Laffoon administration. Chandler won the nomination.

Fuson's predecessor, Elmon Middleton, who gave legal advice to the soldiers in August, was killed by a dynamite bomb early this month. The assassination became a partisan issue. The Governor's candidate, Thomas S. Rhea, asserted Middleton was killed "for trying to get me a fair election." Harlan County officials said it was because of Middleton's drive against the slot machine racket. Six men have been indicted.

WISCONSIN TAX BILL VETOED

Gov. LaFollette Says Excess Profits Levy Hit Small Taxpayer.

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 28.—With a hint that a special session of the Legislature may be called, Gov. LaFollette vetoed today the so-called excess profits tax on incomes which was designed to raise $2,000,000 for the biennium to aid high schools.

He said the bill, enacted at the regular session which adjourned Friday, would not yield the money "actually needed" and would "impose unjustified hardships" on small taxpayers. He suggested an increase in inheritance taxes of large estates.

TEXAN INDICTED FOR BRIBERY

Son of State Official Accused in Oil Proration Case.

By the Associated Press.

LONGVIEW, Tex., Sept. 28.—The Gregg County grand jury today indicted Frank A. Smith, son of Lon A. Smith, a member of the Texas Railroad Commission, on a charge of giving a bribe.

Young Smith was accused of paying Louis B. Taylor, an employe of the commission, the Texas oil regulatory body, $48 to make a false entry on a proration schedule to increase the quota for wells of the C. & G. Oil Co. Taylor was not indicted.

Prince's Will Gives Her Fifth of Estate — Brothers and Sisters Get Rest.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—To her share of the Woolworth fortune, the former Barbara Hutton stood tonight to add $400,000 from the estate of Prince Alexis Z. Mdivani, her divorced husband.

The Prince, who was killed in an automobile accident in Spain Aug. 1, left a will dividing his holdings equally among his former wife, two brothers and two sisters.

Attorneys who filed the will for probate today declined to discuss the size of the estate, but it was recalled that the Woolworth heiress recently indicated it would amount to £400,000 ($2,000,000). Other reports have placed it as high as $5,000,000.

The Prince made his will Jan. 3, 1934, while he still was married to the American girl, who now is the Countess Curt Haugwitz-Reventlow of Denmark. She obtained a divorce at Reno last May 15, charging cruelty.

In addition to cash and securities, the Mdivani estate includes a Venetian palace presented to him by his former wife after they had stayed there on their honeymoon.

The probate petition, which placed the conventional value of "more than $10,000" on the estate, set forth that the residue included two trust funds created for the Prince the day before the will was executed.

The brothers and sisters who share the estate with the Countess are Serge Mdivani of Beverly Hills, Cal.; David Mdivani of Santa Monica, Cal.; Senora Boussadanna Sert, wife of a Spanish painter, and Mme. Nina Huberich, wife of a Paris lawyer.

Gets Life for Killing Officer.

By the Associated Press.

SANTA ROSA, Cal., Sept. 28. — Al (Two Gun) Chamberlain, aged eccentric, was sentenced to life imprisonment today for killing Police Chief Louis O'Neil. Chamberlain shot a ranch neighbor 13 times last July and then drove here and shot the officer. He explained he was "sore" at the chief for ordering him out of town.

COURT BARS VOTE IN NEW YORK ON CITY-OWNED POWER PLANT

Both Litigants Said to Agree on Immediate Appeal on LaGuardia's "Yardstick" Project.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Mayor LaGuardia's plan for a municipally owned power plant as a "yardstick" for utility rates received a double setback today when Supreme Court Justice Edward S. Dore ordered the proposal removed from the ballots and restrained city officials from spending funds on the project.

The decisions were given in a suit brought by the New York Edison Co. to prevent the city from carrying its proposal to the electorate. Justice Dore said in his opinion that he understood both litigants had agreed to co-operate for an immediate appeal.

Man Killed, Wife Hurt in Shooting.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 28. — Troy Eutsler, 24 years old, a farm hand of Abesville, Stone County, was killed and his wife, Exilee, 20, was wounded in a shooting in a rooming house here today. They came here two weeks ago, looking for work. Mrs. Eutsler asserted her husband tried to kill her, then committed suicide. Police found powder burns on the hands of both and learned Eutsler was shot twice, instead of once as his wife said. The woman was wounded three times.

LANDSCAPE DETAILS OF NEW BABLER PARK

Architects' Plans for Memorial Tract Announced—Some Work Already Done.

Plans of landscape architects for development of Dr. Edmund A. Babler Memorial State Park, in the hills of western St. Louis County, were announced yesterday by State Game and Fish Commissioner Wilbur C. Buford.

Some of the work has been done already by two Civilian Conservation Corps camps of 350 youths, the first of which was established in the park more than a year ago. Buford has applied to the Works Progress Administration for about $850,000 for additional construction, which has been approved by Matthew S. Murray, State director of the WPA, but awaits approval at Washington.

The park, 138 acres larger than Forest Park, comprises 1518 acres, lying south of Centaur, and adjoining Wild Horse Creek, Pond and Rieger roads. The landscape plan was prepared by Harland Bartholomew & Associates, St. Louis; Hare & Hare, Kansas City, and Chance S. Hill.

Most of Land Given to State.

Jacob L. Babler, former Republican national committeeman, and his brother, Henry J. Babler, gave nearly all the land to the State in memory of their brother, the late Dr. Edmund A. Babler. A small area was condemned by the State to round out the lines and protect the prospective main entrance. The Bablers, who have no other land in the vicinity, have retained access under life leases to about 450 acres along the southern and eastern portions of the land they gave the State.

Entrance to the grounds is from Wild Horse Creek road, on the west side, at present, but this will be closed. The only public entrance, under the plan, will be a new one from Pond road, at the southeast corner, about a mile and a half from the pavement of Etherton road.

Average length of the park from north to south is 1 2-3 miles and width from east to west 1½ miles. Elevations range from 100 feet above sea level alongside Wild Horse Creek to 380 fet on the ridges at the south end, the difference of 280 feet being typical of Ozark landscape.

Statue to Dr. Babler.

The first feature of the plan calls for a memorial statue of Dr. Babler, to be donated by Jacob Babler and to be erected within a triangle of drives, about one-third of a mile from the prospective entrance. Other provisions are:

A circuit drive around the park, traversing rugged portions of the terrain, and avoiding the valleys as much as possible. It will be about 5½ miles long, reaching all the principal points. Beside it at intervals will be eight automobile parking areas, located for convenient access to the hiking trails. There will be no other public roads.

Fourteen miles of footpaths, interlaced over the whole park.

Bridle paths measuring about 6½ miles, consisting of one circuit of the whole area and a cutoff across the middle of the park.

Stable for rental horses on a little knoll at the south end.

A 25-acre lake for boating and winter sports at the foot of the main valley, next to Wild Horse Creek road.

T-Shape Swimming Pool.

Swimming pool near the middle of the valley. This will be T-shaped, each leg measuring 150 feet, with one section reserved for divers. A wading pool and playground for children will be nearby. Wells will be dug for the water supply. The State probably will charge for use of the pool.

Refectory, designed in Swiss chalet style, to serve meals all year in pleasant fashion at reasonable prices. It will be on a hill above the lake, to the east, with a view of nearly a mile of the valley. Sandwiches would be served at the boat and bath houses.

Outlook tower of stone, about 200 feet high, on a ridge of 360-foot elevation, far above the south end of the main valley. This and other structures will be buit of limestone taken from an extensive quarry on the place.

Several picnic shelters along the trails and possibly outlook shelters on the east ridge, overlooking the nearby Missouri River, and on the west ridge, with a view of Wild Horse Creek Valley.

Toboggan slide 1000 feet long, beside the lake.

Work Done to Date.

Work done by the CCC so far, under direction of Commissioner Buford and the National Park Service, has included: Several miles of foot trails; digging of two wells; road construction; clearing of the grounds; riprapping banks of the creek; quarrying; construction of a garage and service building and of a keeper's lodge. The application to the WPA covered the following things desired for immediate construction: roads, stable, bridle paths, bath house, swimming pool, refectory, the lake.

A service road will be built to Wild Horse Creek road but will be closed to the public ordinarily. Space beside it for a second swimming pool, for the future, has been laid out.

Jacob Babler announced last month that he and other members of his family were planning to set up a perpetual trust fund, which they might start at $500,000 and build up to $3,000,000, for maintenance and development of the park.

BLANKE CO. RECEIVER'S PLEA TO SUE GRANTED

Purpose to Obtain Interest in 6558 Acres of Land in Chambers County, Tex.

Permission was granted yesterday in Circuit Court for Chilton Atkinson, as receiver for the C. F. Blanke Tea & Coffee Co., to file suit here against A. G. Blanke, a stockholder of the company, and several members of his family to obtain an interest in 6558 acres of land in Chambers County, Texas.

The land was appraised at $152,490, but, according to a statement by Atkinson, has a potential value in excess of $1,000,000. It is in what is known as "Anahuac District," in the center of valuable oil deposits. Several oil wells, the receiver said, have been brought in in the surrounding vicinity since last March.

Others to be named in the suit were Blanke's wife, a son, Albert G. Blanke Jr., and a daughter, Mrs. Minard T. McCarthy. The son and daughter were said to have been granted leases by their father.

Contention of Receiver.

Atkinson contends that the tea and coffee company is entitled to a beneficial interest in the property amounting to 80 per cent, which should be included among the assets of the receivership estate. Claims against the company amount to $210,000, while present assets amount to $15,000.

The receiver's petition for authority to file the suit disclosed he has already filed suit in the District Court of Chambers County, Tex., for possession of the property. The purpose of this suit was said to be to prevent any transfer of title until the claim can be adjudicated. The receiver asserted the reasonable annual rental value of the property was $25,000.

Statement by Family's Lawyer.

Norman Begeman, attorney for the Blankes, told a Post-Dispatch reporter there was no real controversy as it was conceded the Blanke Co. is entitled to an interest. He said he had been conferring with the receiver and the latter's attorney, Albert Chandler, in reference to an adjustment.

Title to the land was originally held by a land development company which issued bonds in 1906. The Blanke Co. was the principal purchaser of the securities. Begeman said A. B. Blanke purchased the property at a foreclosure sale some years ago. The land, which had been non-producing, he explained, appeared valuable now because of an oil boom in surrounding territory. He said his clients had no intention of disposing of the title.

Atkinson was appointed receiver last May by Circuit Judge Baron. He succeeded C. F. Blanke, founder of the firm, and Leo F. Laughren, who were appointed joint receivers in July, 1932. They listed the Texas property among the assets of the concern but said the beneficial interest was 60 per cent.

When Atkinson was named receiver the court ordered the firm to cease business. Its quarters were at 904 South Fourteenth street.

FEMININE CREW NEARS HOME

French Society Women Returning From Four-Year Voyage.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Sept. 28. — After making a round the world voyage lasting four years, the French sailing ship, Femme, "manned" entirely by women, from the captain to the cabin girl, has now put into the port of Vigo, on the northern coast of Spain. Before finally setting sail for France, the ship will carry out maneuvers off the "coast of death," as this inhospitable section of the Spanish sea coast is called.

The Femme is a training ship for girls and young women who wish to qualify for a master's certificate. The captain is the wife of a French naval officer, and the crew of young Amazons all belong to the best French society.

FALL-WINTER PROGRAM AT CITY ART MUSEUM

Lectures for Adults, Talks and Story Hours for Children Open to Public.

The fall and winter program of lectures and story hours by the educational staff of City Art Museum in Forest Park was announced yesterday. Admission to all these activities is free to the public.

Miss Mary Powell, supervisor of education, will conduct a series of museum hours for adults on Tuesday mornings at 11 o'clock, with each talk repeated on Friday mornings at 10 o'clock. This series is planned to cover during the year the collections in all the galleries and the special exhibitions. The talks this week will deal with an exhibition of water colors by Cleveland artists. In the following weeks this month Miss Powell will discuss significant artists in the development of French plainting, J. B. S. Chardin, Eugene Delacroix, Auguste Renoir and Paul Cezanne.

Lectures on Prints.

On Wednesday afternoons at 2:30 o'clock Miss Powell will offer a series of talks on prints. This week's talk will be "The Character of Prints." On Thursday afternoons at 2:30 o'clock a series on printings and drawings will be given by Miss Jessie B. Chamberlain. The process of print making will be the subject of this week's talk.

Gallery talks intended for those unable to attend the museum on other days will be given by Miss Chamberlain on Saturday afternoons at 3:30 o'clock. Each month will be devoted to the art of a particular country—Holland in October—and one talk each month will deal with the special exhibition then at the museum.

A story hour for children of school age will be conducted by Miss Powell each Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Legends and stories from history and literature of various times and countries will provide the subject matter and each talk will be related to some objects in the museum's collection.

Talks for Older Children.

For older boys and girls there will be a series of talks on Saturday afternoons at 2:30 o'clock by Miss Jaquelin Ambler. October subjects are stained glass, Titian, tapestries and a demonstration of figure painting.

Each Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock there will be an hour devoted to drawing and museum games. Children attending this program will be divided into suitable age groups.

Last Day of Exhibition from St. Louisans' Collections.

The exhibition of 24 old masters lent from private St. Louis collections, which has been at the Art Museum since July 14 will be taken down after today. About 86,000 have seen the exhibition since it was installed.

Nearly half of the pictures are portraits of the English school of the late eighteenth and early nineteenth century. Included also are pictures attributed to Franz Hals, El Greco, Rembrandt, Raphael, Van Dyck, Jan Brueghel and others.

HOMICIDE VERDICT IN DEATH OF WOMAN KILLED BY AUTO

Coroner's Jury Blames Driver Who Fled; Two Other Fatalities Declared Accidental.

A Coroner's verdict of homicide was returned yesterday in the death of Miss Veronica Lannigan, 5256A Waterman avenue, a telephone operator, who was killed Thursday night by an automobile, the driver of which sped away.

Miss Lannigan, apparently, was struck by an eastbound automobile as she attempted to cross Washington boulevard at Kingshighway in the rain. No one saw the car strike her, but she was found lying in the street. Her purse was missing, and police thought it had become lodged on the automobile which hit her.

Verdicts of accident were returned at the inquests in the death of Mrs. Sam Dricker, 3051A Glasgow place, and Miss Matilda Pounds, 6110 Pershing avenue, killed by automobiles Thursday night.

CANVASS FOR Y.M.C.A. FUND BEGINS TUESDAY

Solicitation for Advance Gifts to Precede General Campaign — $140,000 Sought.

A drive to raise $140,000 for the Y. M. C. A. in the city and St. Louis County will begin Oct. 14, with the advance gift campaign opening next Tuesday.

Sam W. Greenland is chairman of the general campaign, while Henry B. Pflager is chairman of the advance gift division, in which about 100 volunteer workers will convass 1200 firms and individuals before the general campaign opens.

About 1400 canvassers will receive final instructions Oct. 11 at the Downtown Y. M. C. A. The $140,000 goal is based on minimum requirements for the 12 branches of the Y. M. C. A. to finance free and below cost activities during 1936.

The five departments of the Y. M. C. A. Jefferson College will be in complete operation tomorrow. The enrollment is larger than last year, when 1275 students took the day and evening courses. Students are offered instruction in commercial art and design, commerce and finance, radio and technology. Through the co-operation of business firms a plan is being worked out to enable students in the day course of commerce and finance to alternate between classroom and a job. The course covers five years and leads to a degree of Bachelor of Business Administration. The "Y" night high school is the only one in the State offering subjects fully accredited toward college work.

More than 700 of the finest dairy cattle in America have been entered in the twenty-sixth annual National Dairy Show which will open Oct. 12 at the Arena. There will be more than 200 commercial and educational exhibits dealing with various phases of the dairying industry.

The show will continue through Oct. 19. In one of the side buildings there will be exhibitions of poultry, pigeons, rabbits and eggs.

Cattle judging will be held daily, except on Sunday, with cash awards totaling $15,150. The judging will be conducted in the main show ring during the forenoons and early afternoons. Each afternoon at 3 o'clock there will be a two-hour program of entertainment.

Byrd's Herd to Be Shown.

Among the entertainment features will be demonstrations by 4-H clubs, a milking contest, and an exhibition of the Guernsey herd which Admiral Byrd took to Little America to supply milk for his Antarctic expedition. With the herd is "Iceberg," the bull which was born in the Antarctic.

The four children of Mrs. Gilbert W. Goodnight of Knobmaster, Mo., her two nephews and a niece, all of whom have been consistent winners at Missouri State Fair health contests, will be presented as "America's champion health family," and Mrs. Goodnight will tell how she has raised such a healthy family.

In the corridors of the main Arena building there will be an exhibition of paintings depicting rural life in America, and booths for home economics demonstrations by St. Louis school children.

A Two-Ton Cheese.

Educational exhibits are being prepared by the Bureau of Dairy Industry, the universities of Missouri and Illinois, the National Dairy Council, and the Illinois Department of Agriculture. The Wisconsin Department of Agriculture will send 10,000 pounds of cheese to the show, including one American cheese weighing two tons.

Railroads have granted a reduced railroad fare to St. Louis for the occasion. Tickets to the show will cost 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children.

EX-POLICE CAPTAIN E. J. PHILLIPS DIES

Half Century on Force, Active in Establishing Playgrounds; 85 Years Old.

Edward J. Phillips, retired Police Captain, 5597 Page boulevard, died yesterday at Jewish Hospital of infirmities of age. He was 85 years old, and had retired from the Police Department in 1925 after 50 years of service.

Capt. Phillips was born in Buffalo, N. Y., coming to St. Louis with his parents when he was 12 years old. In 1895, after he had been on the police force for 20 years, he was made a Captain, commanding Carondelet Station. He was retired from active duty in 1921 and made a special police investigator.

He was instrumental in the establishment in 1901 of playgrounds for children in the public parks, and successfully advocated several reforms in institutions for delinquent children. He was active also in the campaign for municipally-owned bath houses in the poorer districts of the city.

Surviving are two sisters, Miss Minnie Phillips, with whom he resided, and Mrs. Daisy Heist, Oak Park, Ill., and a brother, Dr. Robert M. Phillips of Chicago. Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Tuesday at the Kron undertaking establishment, 2707 North Grand boulevard, with burial in Calvary Cemetery.

ROOSEVELT'S VIEWS ON RIVER MEMORIAL

Senator Barkley Quotes Him as Hopeful Some Plan for U. S. Aid Can Be Worked Out.

United States Senator Alben W. Barkley of eKntucky last night told a Post-Dispatch reporter of his conversation with President Roosevelt, on the President's special train Friday afternoon, regarding the proposed $30,000,000 Jefferson Memorial improvement of the St. Louis river front. He talked also with Secretary Ickes and Relief Administrator Hopkins, who were on the train.

Speaking by long-distance telephone from Versailles, Ky., Senator Barkley, chairman of the Congressional Commission on the memorial, said:

"The President, Secretary Ickes and Mr. Hopkins are all for the project without reserve. But the President did not feel that he should issue an executive order making the whole $22,500,000 available at once. This seemed to be required by the terms of the enabling act, governing the city's $7,500,000 bond issue.

"It is unfortunate that the Enabling Act, as now interpreted by the city's legal counsel, seems to put the city in the position of fixing the terms under which the Government shall grant money. The President hopes some plan can be worked out by which this situation can be cleared, and the Government can allot funds for a year's work, possibly $10,000,000 or $12,000,000. At the end of that time, if there were not another public works appropriation, it would be up to Congress to appropriate funds for competition."

Senator Barkley said that, before the bond issue election, an understanding was reached at Washington that, if the city voted its bond issue, an allotment of funds for one year would be made. It then developed that, as understood by Government officials, the bond Enabling Act required that "before the city puts down $1, the Government shall pnt down $3." This seemed to call for the $22,600,000 in one year, though the work could not be done within that time.

Senator Barkley's talk with the President was before the shorter conversatio nheld with Mr. Roosevelt on the same subject by Mayor Dickmann, Senator Bennett Clark, President Dysart of the Chamber of Commerce, and others from St. Louis, in the President's car at East St. Louis Friday night. The President told the St. Louisans, "I know what you have come for," and tod them he was interested in the river front plan. He asked the Mayor to "get a construction of the law," meaning the city Enabling Act—that would make it possible to proceed.

HITLER DECREE GRANTS RIGHT TO CREATE ONE REICH CHURCH

Power Bestowed on Hans Kerrl After Reichsbishop Mueller Failed in His Efforts.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 28—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler stepped into the church-state dispute today with a decree empowering Hans Kerrl, head of the Department of State Affairs, to take any action necessary "to protect the stability of the German Evangelical Church."

The decree would enable Kerrl to create a single Reich church, which Reichbishop Ludwig Mueller failed to do because of opposition from the Protestant Confessional Synod. The new order gives Kerrl power to set up a church and prevent all pastors who refuse to join from preaching.

The decree signed Sept. 24, even before the Prussian confessional convention where possible compromise measures with state-church leaders have recently been discussed, strongly indicates that the ultimate aim of the Government is a unified church to wipe out differences between confessional adherents and Nazi German Christians.

With the issuance of the decree Hitler takes a position for the first time between his own Reichsbishop and the confessional synod, removing some of Mueller's powers in an effort to achieve a state church.

DR. D. E. MORROW, DENTIST, DIES OF HEART DISEASE

In Active Practice at 78; Funeral Services Will Be Held Tuesday.

N., stationed in Hawaii. The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Alexander undertaking establishment, 6175 Delmar boulevard.

FINANCIAL STRESS KEENLY FELT BY CHURCH HOSPITALS

President Jarrell Pictures Plight at American Protestant Association Convention.

Financial difficulties in the last three years have seriously affected the operation of most of the voluntary and church hospitals in the country, the Rev. Dr. Charles C. Jarrell of Athens, Ga., president of the American Protestant Hospital Association, said last night at the fifteenth annual convention of the association at Hotel Jefferson.

"The problem has been," the speaker said, "how to equate inflated debts with deflated revenues. All that economy could accomplish, consistent with efficiency, has been done."

"The ability of the public to contribute to the support of these hospitals has diminished," he continued, "the paying ability of the patients has decreased, and surpluses have been practically exhausted."

At the same time, he said, the charity load had been increased and prices had risen.

Giving Habit Undermined.

"In addition to all this," he said, "a shift in public thinking is threatened. The tax appeal is gathering momentum. The 'get' psychology is menacing the good old American ideal of lift and lend a hand. The giving habit of the people may be undermined for at least another year by the creation of bureaus that promise to 'do it all,' and tax philosophies that threaten to 'take it all.'"

"In the meantime, tax-supported hospitals are crowded and the voluntary hospitals, which are strained to the breaking point, face a future which is not altogether certain. In 1934 there were 103 voluntary hospitals closed because of a lack of funds."

To meet the emergency, Dr. Jarrell suggested that trustees and administrators of these hospitals go to the people for support "as the destiny of the voluntary hospital lies in its giving service to earn a voluntary support from the public." He also advised that they devise means so that people may enter the hospitals when in need.

E. E. King New President.

Dr. Jarrell, who is a district director of the Methodist Church, South, retires as president of the association Monday. He will be succeeded by E. E. King, superintendent of Missouri Baptist Hospital here. Other speakers were Robert Jolly, president of the American Hospital Association, and Robert E. Neff, president of the American College of Hospital Administrators.

Dr. Charles S. Woods, superintendent of St. Luke's Hospital, Cleveland, spoke on sources of revenue for the voluntary hospitals. He urged financial aid from public funds to cover the expense incurred in caring for indigent patients.

"These persons, who cannot be turned away, are too poor to pay for the service, and nobody wants to pay for them," he said. "It is then the obligation of the community, through its Government, to reimburse the hospital." He said the payments should be made without political interference, and should not be in the form of subsidy, but only to cover the cost of care of the patients.

Group Hospitalization.

Bryce Twitty, superintendent of the Baylor University Hospital, Dallas, Tex., led a round-table discussion in the afternoon on the group hospitalization plan. He told of the plan operated at the university hospital, by which 14,000 employed persons were paying 50 cents a month for 35 days of hospitalization.

Other speakers yesterday were Miss Carolyn E. Davis, Portland, Ore.; J. G. Norby, Minneapolis, and Miss Fannie Forth, Indianapolis. Sessions of the convention will continue tomorrow morning.

Six allied organizations will hold conventions this week. The American College of Hospital Administrators opens its meeting today and will continue tomorrow. The American Hospital Association and the American Association of Medical Social Workers will open their conventions tomorrow and continue until Friday. On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday there will be meetings of the American Occupational Therapy Association and the National Association of Nurse Anesthetists. The Children's Hospital Association will meet Wednesday. Sessions will be held at Hotel Jefferson, Hotel Statler and Municipal Auditorium.

Text of Roosevelt's Speech to Farmers in Nebraska

By the Associated Press.

FREMONT, Neb., Sept. 28.

THE text of President Roosevelt's speech here today follows:

I am glad to be in Nebraska again. It is almost exactly three years ago that I visited farms in this state and saw farmers threshing 30-cent wheat and shelling 20-cent corn.

Much has happened during the three years that followed. Then, the prices of farm products were falling lower and even lower as markets vanished and surpluses accumulated; farm buildings and equipment were deteriorating month by month; soil fertility was being sapped as farmers struggled to raise enough bushels to meet their debts and taxes. Country schools were closing and, most disheartening of all, thousands of farmers were losing their homes by foreclosure.

This was true not only in this part of the great West, but in practically every state of the Union—north, east, south and west.

The man-made depression was, as we know, followed in many parts of the country by the most severe drouth in our recorded history.

Message to the Farmers.

I am taking the opportunity of stopping here in Fremont to deliver to you a message of thanks. Through you I deliver that same message to farmers and farm families throughout the nation.

We all know the heroic story of the pioneers. We know the hardships and the troubles they suffered. If ever we need demonstration that the pioneering spirit that originally settled this country still lives, unshaken and undiminished, the farmers of America have proved it in the years through which we have just passed. I well realize the suffering and the desolation. I know the faith and hope, the patience and courage you have shown. For this I applaud you; for this I extend the thanks of the nation to the farmers of the nation.

Three years ago I did not promise the millenium for agriculture, but I did promise that I should attempt to meet that intolerable situation in every way that human effort and ingenuity made possible. I said that I should do my best, and that if my efforts proved unsuccessful, I should tell the country frankly and try something else. But that was not necessary.

A Condition, Not a Theory.

I was not meeting a theory, I was meeting a condition. Foremost among the efforts of my administration when we came into office were practical means to improve the situation on the farms of this country.

I recognized in March, 1933, that efforts to improve agriculture should of necessity be two-fold. We should attempt, first, to lift the immediate burdens by raising farm prices and by lightening the burden of debt. Second, I pledged myself to long-term efforts extending beyond these immediate emergency measures to stabilize American agriculture by long-term planning.

Even before I went to the White House I put into practice a theory which older and more cynical persons told me was impossible. Up to that time the farmers of America had been unable to choose by any substantial majority between three or four plans aimed at restoring farm purchasing power and farm prosperity. People in Washington told me that you could never get farmers as a whole to agree to anything. Nevertheless, at the famous conference, representatives of every section of the country and of farm organization, held in Washington in the spring of 1933, a very large majority of the farm leaders agreed on what you and I know as the agricultural adjustment plan.

After Two Years' Trial.

This plan has been in operation for only two years and a half. You know its general results. You know that there have been many imperfections in it and that we still have much to learn in providing better administration for it, in amending it from time to time, and in fitting it into world conditions, which each year show tremendous changes.

The plan itself was, as you know, based on the co-operative efforts of the farmers themselves and on the broad economic theory that the industrial part of the population of the nation could not prosper and return people to work unless the agricultural part of the nation were in a position to purchase the output of the industrial part. It was based on knowledge of the fact that for the farmers of the nation the long, downhill road to depression began not in 1929, but in 1920, that from that date on through the so-called boom days of the 1920s the debts of the farms and farmers mounted while their assets and earnings slid down hill.

Coming back to you after three years, I experience the extreme plesure of recognizing that the co-operative efforts in which the farmers themselves, the Congress and my administration have engaged, have borne good fruit.

Debt Burden Lightened.

The problem of the early days of the administration was not only to raise crop values from starvation levels, but also to save farm families from actual loss of their homes and their chattels.

The burden of agricultural debt, it is true, has not been eliminated, but it has been decisively and definitely lightened. Loans have been made through the Farm Credit Administration to nearly half a million farmers since May, 1933. These loans amount to more than $1,800,000,000. Eighty-seven per cent of this great sum was used to refinance existing farm indebtedness: The annual interest saving of farmers whose debts have been refinanced is about one-quarter of the interest previously paid. Over 850,000 farmers are making savings this year on interest alone of more than $55,000,000. The interest rate which farmers have to pay on the farm mortgage debts refinanced by the Farm Credit Administration is the lowest rate in history.

Second Effort for Farmers.

My second effort in the immediate improvement of the farmer's position was to get him not only a relatively but an absolutely better return for his products.

In approaching this problem we moved on two fronts; first, to free our monetary system of bondage to a sufficient extent to permit money to serve the people rather than to force people to serve money. I deliberately chose to disregard those who said that before a balance could be produced in our economic life, almost universal bankruptcy would be necessary through inflation. I held, as I now hold, that the appropriate measures to take were rather to improve prices, particularly in farm commodities, to such an extent that the things the farmer had to sell would enable him to buy the things that he needed to support life and to afford him a fair degree of security.

From the summer of 1929 to the time when I took office in 1933, the prices of farm products, that is, the things that the farmer had to sell, had declined by 62 per cent, while the prices of the things the farmer had to buy had fallen 35 per cent. Thus, the farmer, on the average, had to use twice as many bushels of wheat, twice as many bushels of corn, twice as many hogs, twice as many bales of cotton, twice as much of all of his products, in order to buy the same amount of things that he needed. The closing of that gap was an important objective of this administration, and we shall bend our efforts to hold the gains that have been made. The gap which was the measure of the farmer's despair and distress, after two and a half years of effort, in large part has been closed.

Factors in Readjustment.

Many factors were involved in this readjustment. Our monetary policy was one. The drouth was another. Increased demand for products caused by the economic revival was another, and the operations of our agricultural adjustment administration was still another.

I need not tell you of the origins and the purposes and the methods of the agricultural adjustment act. That is history, and, I submit, honorable history. Moreover, the farmers know how the act has worked. They know from the contents of their own pocketbooks that their income has been increased. The record is there to prove the case—an increase of one billion dollars in farm cash income in 1933 over 1932; $1,900,000,000 increase in 1934 over 1932, and an etsimated $2,400,000,000 increase in 1935 over 1932. That makes a total increase of $5,300,000,000 over what the farmer's income would have been if the 1932 level had been continued.

Is it surprising, in the light of this improved income, that the farm implement factories in Illinois and New York and the automobile factories of Michigan, and the steel mills of Pennsylvania, are springing into activity? Is it any wonder that smoke is pouring once more from chimneys long smokeless? Is it any wonder that workers long without regular jobs are going back to work? Now, with export surpluses no longer pressing down on the farmer's welfare, and with fairer prices, farmers really have a chance for the first time in this generation to profit from improved methods. With agriculture on the way to a condition of prosperity, it is possible now for the farmer of the country, in co-operation with their Government, to look to the longer future.

The Farmers' Plight.

Three years ago, in the desperate, struggle to keep want from the threshold, farmers, no matter how much they might have wished to adopt cropping practices that would conserve and build the fertility of their soil, were compelled to raise more bushels of wheat and corn or pounds of cotton and tobacco than their land properly could sustain through the years. But with this compelling necessity now passed, they can put scientific crop rotation systems into effect and save their soil fertility. That, my friends, is of equal interest in Pennsylvania and in Kansas and in Maine and in Georgia.

The dust storms that a few months ago drifted from the Western plains to the Atlantic Ocean were a warning to the whole nation of what will happen if we waste our heritage of soil fertility, the ultimate source of our wealth and of life itself.

I have not the time to talk with you in detail about what the Government is trying to do to prevent soil erosion and floods, to encourage forestation, to give people the opportunity voluntarily to move off submarginal land and on to adequate land where they can make both ends meet—in other words, to use every square mile of the United States for the purpose to which it is best adapted. That in its accomplishment is a project of 100 years. But for the first time in the history of the nation, we have started on that project because for the first time we have begun to understand that we must harness nature in accordance with nature's laws, instead of despoiling nature in violation of her laws.

Most Important Gain.

Perhaps the most important gain of all is the development of the farmer's ability, through co-operation with other farmers, to direct and control the conditions of his life. Programs now in effect under the Agricultural Adjustment Act are planned and operated by the farmers themselves through nearly 5000 county production control associations, which are manned by more than 100,000 committeemen and which number among their members more than 3,000,000 adjustment contract signers.

The Government's part in this program is merely to supply the unifying element that the farmers themselves, in their past efforts, found so essential to success. That, it seems to me, is the true function of government under our Constitution—to promote the general welfare, not by interfering unduly with individual liberties, but by bringing to the aid of the individual those powers of government which are essential to assure the continuance of the inalienable rights which the Constitution is intended to guarantee. It is democracy in the good old American sense of the word.

Policy Evolving.

The Government's policy toward agriculture has been evolving ever since the time of George Washington. I know it will continue to evolve and I hope no one thinks that the present machinery is perfect and cannot be improved. What counts is not so much the methods of the moment as the pathways that are marked out down the years.

I like to think of the agricultural adjustment act not merely as a temporary means of rescue for a great industry, but as the expression of an enduring principle carved in stone by a nation come to maturity—a nation which has forever left behind the old irresponsible ways of its youth, a nation facing the realities of today and prudently taking thought for the morrow. I like to think that never again will this nation let its agriculture fall back into decay, that instead the farmers of America will always be able to guard the principles of liberty and democracy for which their farmer ancestors fought. I like to think that agricultural adjustment is an expression, in concrete form, of the human rights those farmer patriots sought to win when they stood at the bridge at Concord, when they proclaimed the declaration, and when they perpetuated these ideals by the adoption of the Constitution.

Principles Endure.

Methods and machinery change, but principles go on, and I have faith that, no matter what attempts may be made to tear it down, the principle of farm equality expressed by agricultural adjustment will not die.

You who live in this section of Nebraska occupy what is very nearly the geographical center of the United States—as much land west of you as lies east of you, as much land north of you as lies south of you. It is, therefore, fitting that at this place I should again pay tribute through you to the great farming population of the United States and those dependent on them for the splendid courage through long years of adversity which you have shown—to the pioneering spirit that would not quit, that made the best of wellnigh hopeless conditions—that had enough faith in yourselves and in your country to keep your balance, your perspective, your good nature, and your continuing hope. Today you are marching along with heads still held high. Your hope has materialized, at least in part. Your faith has been justified. Your courage has been rewarded.

The Princess said she expected to continue on to Santa Barbara, Cal., "probably tomorrow, after looking over Reno and seeing whether or not I like it." She indicated that she probably would seek a divorce "somewhere—maybe in Mexico" within a month or so. The Princess, heiress to an oil fortune, and the Italian nobleman were married in Italy four years ago.

TRADE IN ST. LOUIS GRADUALLY IMPROVES

Commerce Department Reports Warm Weather Retarded Retail Sales.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Unusually warm weather retarded retail trade in Missouri's Federal Reserve cities, St. Louis and Kansas City, during the week ended Wednesday, the Department of Commerce reported today in its weekly survey of 33 major cities.

General retail and wholesale business in St. Louis maintained "a gradual improvement," which began in mid-August, the report said, but department stores reported a 17 per cent decrease in sales from the record in the corresponding week of last year and a 16 per cent decrease compared with the total of the previous week.

Industry moved forward with seasonal upturns in iron and steel and other classifications earlier than in recent years. Purchasing in rural areas has been stimulated by liberal crop yields and high prices for farm products. Bank deposits reached a new high record, with demand for credit for mercantile and industrial interests turning upward moderately for the first time in months.

Some gains were noted in employment and payrolls. Lumber and textile industries "show betterment."

The 226 placements by the Missouri State Employment Service included 20 with the PWA and two with the WPA. Employment applications on file total 47,790.

Building continued more active than a year ago, while freight traffic showed greater than ordinary seasonal increase.

While warm weather acted as a deterrent to retail sales in Kansas City, the volume remained above that of the corresponding week of 1934. Wholesale volume continued above that of the preceding week and of the corresponding week of last year. Ready-to-wear sales were stimulated by wholesalers' and retailers' mid-fall selling events.

Bank clearings continued to rise, with a substantial increase in demand for commercial loans for expansion purposes.

SUEZ CANAL CO. NOT THINKING OF CLOSING, BUT OF PROFITS

Question Not to Be Considered at Month-End Meeting of Board, Oct. 7.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 28.—Officials of the Suez Canal Co. indicated today closing of the canal in case sanctions are applied against Italy is out of the question so far as they are concerned. Controlling shares in the canal are in commercial hands.

"The question of eventually closing the canal will not even be considered at the routine month-end meeting of the board Oct. 7," said an official.

Great Britain's members of the board, representing 40 per cent of the stock holdings, are expected to attend "as usual." It was pointed out that only 10 of the 32 members of the board are British, and no shareholder is allowed more than 10 votes, regardless of the amount of his holdings.

Instead of thinking of closing the canal, the directors are expected to talk about profits from Italy's heavy shipments of men, munitions and supplies, which promise to boost dividends. They will hear receipts for the first three weeks of September were 48,200,000 francs (about $3,120,000), or 10 per cent higher than the 43,780,000 francs for the corresponding period in 1934. The year's receipts to Sept. 20 are 625,720,000 francs (about $40,346,000) which is a 2 per cent increase over the corresponding period last year.

WALL STREET MANIFESTS A BETTER TONE DURING WEEK

Securities Markets Steady and Then Firm After Wave of Selling the Previous Period—Industrial, Other News.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—While Wall Street kept its eye on the European storm warnings this week, the barometer of financial sentiment rose appreciably.

Securities markets steadied and then firmed after the wave of selling the previous week, as the reports concerning business counterbalanced for the time being the uneasiness over the international political situation.

Surveys showed wholesale and retail trade widening their gains over last year, steel operations rose .6 of a point to 48.9 per cent of capacity despite the continued lagging of motor demand because of model change-overs. Power production improved more than seasonally.

Meantime the stock market assumed a considerably more confident tone, working its way up gradually from the lows reached the previous week.

Caution, however, was evident in share dealings, and volume in the stock exchange dropped off to around the 1,000,000-share mark daily, while toward the end of the previous period, when the market was declining, turnover was nearly twice that figure.

Not least among the encouraging developments of the week was what international banking quarters thought was a somewhat more conciliatory attitude by Italy, in the Ethiopian dispute, but the clouds by no means disappeared from the European horizon. Furthermore, the Holland guilder remained shaky in foreign exchange dealings.

Reserve Council Comment.

Among favorable analyses of the domestic business situation which appeared during the week was that of the Federal Reserve Advisory Council.

Bond refunding operations continued at a fairly active pace, and listed bonds generally improved.

Commodity markets wavered somewhat, after the buying of the past week or two attributed in part to war fears. The movement of raw and semi-finished materials generally showed fair indications of autumn expansion, however, particularly in primary textile markets. The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index of cotton mill activity jumped to 94.6 per cent of the 1929-30 average, compared with 87.4 the previous week.

Industrials led the rebound in shares, but utilities improved as well, as power production continued to expand. Rails were somewhat hesitant, as freight movement failed to continue the more than seasonal improvement of the previous week.

Dull Week-End Trade.

Stocks at short week-end session slid along a level groove with only the alcohols, some of the motors and scattered specialties attracting modest buying demand.

In terms of the Associated Press average of 60 stocks, the market was unchanged at 49.4. Volume totaled 519,020 for the two-hour session.

Brokers said that the failure of the list to move in either direction tended to reflect the disposition of the financial community to await clarification of both the foreign situation and domestic trade.

Wall Street analysts pointed out that the day's news had produced little change in the way of market influence. It was further said that the bulk of the buying represented the accumulation of shares by those hopeful for the domestic industrial outlook. Selling, on the other hand, was said to have consisted principally of liquidation of in-and-out traders who wanted to be clear of the market in the event of any unforeseen week-end changes in the Italo-Ethiopian situation.

Trading in the liquor sector was comparatively brisk, heralding the approach of seasonal gains in consumption. Furthermore, some quarters said the alcohol companies were in a favorable statistical position. Schenley Distillers bounced up to 41½, a new high for the year, and closed 1⅜ higher at 41⅜.

Two of the Favorites.

One of the specialtites in favor was Greyhound, which reached a new high for the year at 66¼ on the official report of co-ordination of bus and rail service in co-operation with the New York Central.

Buying of American Bank Note, preferred, netted a gain of 1 point at 62. Wall Street expectations are that the outlook for financing will bring a demand for security certificates.

The bond market was mixed with fluctuations narrow. U. S. Government loans improved somewhat.

Cotton closed 15 cents a bale higher to 10 cents lower.

In the foreign exchange division the pound sterling closed one-quarter of a cent lower at $4.91½. The French franc was .00⅛ of a cent higher at 6.59⅛ cents. A rally of .12 of a cent in the guilder reflected momentary relaxation of fears over the outlook for the Dutch fiscal position. The guilder's closing price of 67.65 cents was around the theoretical gold shipping point for that currency.

Closing price and net change of the 15 most active stocks: Hudson Mot., 14¼, up ⅞; Gen. Motors, 46⅛, up ⅜; Murray Corp., 17, up ⅝; Chrysler, 72⅞, up ¼; Stewart-Warner, 14⅝, up ⅜; Libby, McN. & L., 8⅛, up ½; Parmalee Trans., 2⅛, up ⅝; Kelvinator, 14¼, up ½; Schenley Dist., 41⅜, up 1⅜; Studebaker, 5¾, unchanged; Nat. Distill., 30¼, up ⅛; Libby Owens F., 39½, up 1; Stand. G. & E., 2⅞, up ⅛; Radio, 7⅝, unchanged; United Elec. Coal, 5, up 1.

COMMODITY INDEX AVERAGES

Other statistical data showing economic trend.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Industrial activity, as measured by the Associated Press weekly index, advanced sharply this week. The index stood at 71.0 compared with 70.1 last week and 56.5 in the same week last year.

Better than seasonal performance was registered by every component of the index save total carloadings, which gained slightly less than the seasonal expectancy.

The residential building index pushed into new high ground for the year as the volume of contracts placed showed a contra-seasonal betterment. Automobile output recovered somewhat from last week's low point as production on new models began. Steel mill activity, cotton manufacturing and electric power production also improved.

The index, based on 1929-30 as 100, and adjusted for seasonal variation, follows with the corresponding index figures for its component parts:

	Latest Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.

PROPOSE 4 FOR 1 SPLIT-UP OF COCA-COLA CO. STOCK

Meeting of Stockholders Called for October 27 to Vote on Measure.

By the Associated Press.

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 28.—The board of directors of the Coca-Cola Co. today voted to recommend to a meeting of stockholders on Oct. 27, a split-up of the present outstanding 1,000,000 common shares into 4,000,000 shares. If approved the increased capital stock will be distributed among common stockholders of record at a date to be fixed later.

Redemption of the Class "A" stock is also understood to be under consideration. This $3 dividend issue was put out in 1929 as a dividend to common stockholders. There are 800,000 shares outstanding, including reacquired shares, callable in whole or part on any dividend date on 30 days' notice at $52.50.

The company offered to purchase 72,180 shares of the "A" stock at the call price on July 1, and might redeem a similar amount on the next dividend date, Jan. 1. These shares, also listed on the New York Stock Exchange, were quoted yesterday at $54.87. They did not sell today.

The common stock, listed on the New York Stock Exchange, closed today at $244 a share, up $1 from Friday's quotation.

The action of the directors had been forecast several days ago and was attributed principally to the fact that, at the present high per share quotation, trading in the issue is greatly restricted. Officials of the company were said to believe that a wider market would be more beneficial to shareholders generally.

The existing common stock is without par value, although it is carried on the company's balance sheet at $25 a share. The Coca-Cola concern's capital and profit and loss surplus, after deducting treasury stock, amounted to $45,955,458 as of Dec. 31 last. This included $4,000,000 assigned to the class "A" share of no par at the rate of $5 a share.

STOCK EXCHANGE WILL CLOSE HOUR LATER AS DAYLIGHT SAVING ENDS

WITH the ending of daylight saving time in New York, Chicago and other cities Sunday and the resumption of standard time trading hours on the New York Stock Exchange Monday, the daily session hours will be one hour later, St. Louis time. The closing quotations will not be available for as early an edition of the Post-Dispatch as during summer months.

The St. Louis Merchants' Exchange, which operated under daylight saving time, also will resume standard time, the grain market opening daily at 9:30 a. m. and closing at 1:15 p. m., standard time. The St. Louis Stock Exchange session hours will continue as during the summer.

INCREASED RUN OF CASH CORN SENDS FUTURES LOWER

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—Abrupt increase of arrivals of corn today in Chicago apparently foreshadowed success of efforts to avert threatening month-end corn market price upheavals here Monday.

Confronted with likelihood of more plentiful supplies to facilitate settlement of September contracts, corn traders became rather liberal sellers today and corn values tumbled in some cases 2 cents a bushel. Belated liquidating pressure on September wheat both at Minneapolis and Duluth did much also to make Chicago wheat quotations average lower.

Corn closed nervous, ¼@1⅜ cents under yesterday's finish, Dec. 57¾@⅞c, wheat ⅛@½c down, Dec. 98@98⅛c, oats ⅛@⅝c off, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to 10 cents advance.

To the surprise of many grain market observers, Chicago receipts of corn today totaled 137 cars. This was in sharp contrast with but 52 cars a week ago and also decidedly surpassed the aggregate on the corresponding day last year. Tending further to pull corn prices down was comment indicating that the greater part of the 1935 new corn crop is no longer in danger of severe damage by frost.

Successive jolts to wheat traders came from breaks of nearly 4 cents a bushel in September wheat at Minneapolis and of full 5 cents collapse in durum wheat at Duluth. Minneapolis advices reported some slackening of flour trade. Much notice at times was taken, too, of reports of further moisture today in parts of Argentine drouth territory. Something of an offset, however, was relative firmness of the Liverpool and Buenos Aires wheat markets.

Bulls in wheat contended Argentine rains were altogether inadequate and extreme high temperatures menacing. Emphasis was also given to talk of persistent tense political conditions relative to Italy and Ethiopia.

Oats prices were dominated chiefly by behavior of the corn market.

Provisions responded to reports that price setbacks had stimulated a better inquiry for lard.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 32,644,000 bushels, corn 6,913,000. Open interest in wheat was 117,085,000 bushels, and in corn 26,576,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Sept. 28.—Wheat and corn futures on the local market followed in wake of prices on the Chicago Board at week end session being lower at close.

Winnipeg wheat opened ⅛@⅜c up and early was ¼@½c off. The close was ¼@⅝c net lower.

Liverpool wheat closed unchanged after opening ⅜@½d lower.

Local wheat receipts, which were 63,000 bu., compared with 51,000 a week ago and 27,000 a year ago, included 29 cars local and 13 through. Corn receipts, which were 1500 bu., compared with 12,000 a week ago and 22,500 a year ago, included 1 car local. Oats receipts, which were 34,000 bu., compared with 16,000 a week ago and 28,000 a year ago, included 17 cars local.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was ½c lower. Market was little changer, with supplies small and demand quiet. Mills furnished the main outlet, taking the better grades. Elevators bought low grades. Hard wheat was nominally ½c lower. There were no offerings. No. 2 was figured at about $1.17. Corn was nominally lower. Only one car was offered, but with buyer and seller apart, it remained unsold. Oats were 1@2c lower. Receipts were somewhat larger, but holders were unwilling to let go at bids made and only a few cars changed hands.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—Gold to the amount of £8,836,189 (approximately $43,385,000) was shipped from the United Kingdom to America during the period Sept. 10-26, customs' returns disclosed today.

Exchange dealers expressed the belief that this represented hoarded as well as re-sold gold, as the amounts exported exceed the imports for the same period.

During the past week silver to the value of £1,458,516 (approximately $7,161,000) went to the United States.

That the flow of gold from France to the United States is continuing was indicated by the fact that the liner Bremen, sailing from Cherbourg late today, was to pick up there a consignment valued at 35,000,000 francs (approximately $2,310,000.)

WEEK'S METAL REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Non-ferrous metals ruled steady to firm last week.

Tin prices advanced to new highs for the movement owing to strength at London, where continental demand has accounted for scarcity of prompt and October tin. Premiums prevailing at London over New York were said to have attracted a reshipment from the local to the English market and some English buying was reported here.

Following the recent active purchases in anticipation of price advances, domestic copper consumers still were buying moderate quantities last week at the basis of 9 cents a pound for electrolytic.

Increased industrial activity and predictions of a favorable outlook for the electric industry were said to be responsible for the demand. Moderate sales to Europe were reported at unchanged prices.

Demand for lead was fairly well sustained following the advance of $3 a ton last week. Some large producers reported that metal production for September and October had been completely sold with the result that a waiting list for November delivery was developing pending the opening of books next month.

Zinc was quiet after heavy sales in the previous week and supplied consumers needs well ahead and accounted for a large accumulation of unfilled orders on smelters' books. The undertone was steady at unchanged prices.

Antimony prices were advanced ½ cent a pound owing to firmness on the Chinese market.

Little net change was expected in steel operating schedules, which were ruling around 51 per cent of capacity, until automobile manufacturers actively start production of new models. Some delay has been experienced but optimism for the fourth quarter still centers around prospective activity of the automobile industry. Miscellaneous buying is sustained and some support is received from structural projects, mostly representing public works.

INCREASED RUN OF CASH CORN SENDS FUTURES LOWER

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—Abrupt increase of arrivals of corn today in Chicago apparently foreshadowed success of efforts to avert threatening month-end corn market price upheavals here Monday.

Confronted with likelihood of more plentiful supplies to facilitate settlement of September contracts, corn traders became rather liberal sellers today and corn values tumbled in some cases 2 cents a bushel. Belated liquidating pressure on September wheat both at Minneapolis and Duluth did much also to make Chicago wheat quotations average lower.

Corn closed nervous, ¼ @ 1⅜ cents under yesterday's finish, Dec. 57¾ @ ⅞c, wheat ⅛ @ ½c down, Dec. 98 @ 98⅛c, oats ⅛ @ ⅝c off, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to 10 cents advance.

To the surprise of many grain market observers, Chicago receipts of corn today totaled 137 cars. This was in sharp contrast with but 52 cars a week ago and also decidedly surpassed the aggregate on the corresponding day last year. Tending further to pull corn prices down was comment indicating that the greater part of the 1935 new corn crop is no longer in danger of severe damage by frost.

Successive jolts to wheat traders came from breaks of nearly 4 cents a bushel in September wheat at Minneapolis and of full 5 cents collapse in durum wheat at Duluth. Minneapolis advices reported some slackening of flour trade. Much notice at times was taken, too, of reports of further moisture today in parts of Argentine drouth territory. Something of an offset, however, was relative firmness of the Liverpool and Buenos Aires wheat markets.

Bulls in wheat contended Argentine rains were altogether inadequate and extreme high temperatures menacing. Emphasis was also given to talk of persistent tense political conditions relative to Italy and Ethiopia.

Oats prices were dominated chiefly by behavior of the corn market.

Provisions responded to reports that price setbacks had stimulated a better inquiry for lard.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 32,644,000 bushels, corn 6,913,000. Open interest in wheat was 117,085,000 bushels, and in corn 26,576,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Sept. 28.—Wheat and corn futures on the local market followed in wake of prices on the Chicago Board at week end session being lower at close.

Winnipeg wheat opened ⅛ @ ⅜c up and early was ¼ @ ½c off. The close was ¼ @ ⅝c net lower.

Liverpool wheat closed unchanged after opening ⅝ @ ½d lower.

Local wheat receipts, which were 63,000 bu., compared with 51,000 a week ago and 27,000 a year ago, included 29 cars local and 13 through. Corn receipts, which were 1500 bu., compared with 12,000 a week ago and 22,500 a year ago, included 1 car local. Oats receipts, which were 34,000 bu., compared with 16,000 a week ago and 28,000 a year ago, included 17 cars local.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was ½c lower. Market was little changer, with supplies small and demand quiet. Mills furnished the main outlet, taking the better grades. Elevators bought low grades. Hard wheat was nominally ½c lower. There were no offerings. No. 2 was figured at about $1.17. Corn was nominally lowe.r Only one car was offered, but with buyer and seller apart, it remained unsold. Oats were 1 @ 2c lower. Receipts were somewhat larger, but holders were unwilling to let go at bids made and only a few cars changed hands.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—Gold to the amount of £8,836,189 (approximately $43,385,000) was shipped from the United Kingdom to America during the period Sept. 10-26, customs returns disclosed today.

Exchange dealers expressed the belief that this represented hoarded as well as re-sold gold, as the amounts exported exceed the imports for the same period.

During the past week silver to the value of £1,458,516 (approximately $7,161,000) went to the United States.

That the flow of gold from France to the United States is continuing was indicated by the fact that the liner Bremen, sailing from Cherbourg late today, was to pick up there a consignment valued at 35,000,000 francs (approximately $2,310,000.)

WEEK'S METAL REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Non-ferrous metals ruled steady to firm last week.

Tin prices advanced to new highs for the movement owing to strength at London, where continental demand has accounted for scarcity of prompt and October tin. Premiums prevailing at London over New York were said to have attracted a reshipment from the local to the English market and some English buying was reported here.

Following the recent active purchases in anticipation of price advances, domestic copper consumers still were buying moderate quantities last week at the basis of 9 cents a pound for electrolytic.

Increased industrial activity and predictions of a favorable outlook for the electric industry were said to be responsible for the demand. Moderate sales to Europe were reported at unchanged prices.

Demand for lead was fairly well sustained following the advance of $3 a ton last week. Some large producers reported that metal production for September and October had been completely sold with the result that a waiting list for November delivery was developing pending the opening of books next month.

Zinc was quiet after heavy sales in the previous week and supplied consumers' needs well ahead and accounted for a large accumulation of unfilled orders on smelters' books. The undertone was steady at unchanged prices.

Antimony prices were advanced ½ cent a pound owing to firmness on the Chinese market.

Little net change was expected in steel operating schedules, which were ruling around 51 per cent of capacity, until automobile manufacturers actively start production of new models. Some delay has been experienced but optimism for the fourth quarter still centers around prospective activity of the automobile industry. Miscellaneous buying is sustained and some support is received from structural projects, mostly representing public works.

FINANCIAL NOTES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Net operating income of the Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania totaled $1,007,939 during August compared with $974,666 in the same month a year ago.

Deliveries by dealers of Dodge and Plymouth motor cars and trucks in the week ended Sept. 21 amounted to 4335 units against 5021 in the preceding week. Truck and commercial car sales along in that period amounted to 1479 units compared with 1586 in the week before.

A special meeting of stockholders of General Refractories has been called at Philadelphia for Oct. 26 to vote on a proposal to reduce the stated capital to $11,647,565 from $13,996,095. The action is to be taken to comply with Pennsylvania laws concerning dividends and surpluses.

John M. McNerney, secretary of Owens-Illinois Glass Co. of Toledo said today that negotiations are continuing for acquisition of the assets and business of the Libbey Glass Mfg. Co. and a definite announcement on the transaction is expected to be made shortly.

Virginia Electric & Power Co. stockholders have formally approved the issuance of $38,000,000 of 4 per cent bonds to refund $33,000,000 of outstanding 5s and to finance the expenditure of $2,000,000 to $2,500,000 on the company's power plant.

Refined sugar exports by the United States for the first eight months of 1935 totaled 59,588 long tons, which was an increase of 16,799 tons or 39.3 per cent over the shipments of the same period last year, according to Lamborn & Co., sugar brokers. The export movement for this period was said to be the largest of any corresponding time since 1929.

A New York Cotton Exchange membership has been sold for $9000, a decrease of $2000 from the last transaction.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—The week's record of dividend actions shows 37 favorable changes against 33 the week before, Standard Statistics Co. reports. Unfavorable announcements, at six were the same as in the previous week.

Zinc Higher on Joplin Market.

By the Associated Press.

JOPLIN, Mo., Sept. 28.—A $1 increase in zinc concentrate prices this week on the Joplin market put the price for float grades at $30 and coarse grades at $31. Lead prices held unchanged at $47 a ton for carload lots. Reversing the situation of a few weeks ago, Tri-State producers gained a victory with a curtailment threat. Although several smelters refused to meet the price, the sale, amounting to 7160 tons was all of the ore available at that price level. Some producers were holding ore for $32 a ton. Curtailment of production is scheduled to start next week, with 13 mines and five mills to shut down.

IRREGULAR TREND TO BOND MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Backward tendencies in low-priced rail issues and foreign loans gave the corporate bond market a broad stripe of irregularity today.

While losses were in no case large, declines far outnumbered advances in these two groups and the trend in utilities and industrials was by no means uniformly higher. United States Government bonds, however, had a steady tone and small gains yere in the majority at the close.

Trading in both corporation and Government issues came almost to a standstill. Transfers of $3,650,000 were the smallest for a Saturday session since Aug. 31 when $3,306,000 changed hands. The turnover in Governments accounted for $300,000 of this. The Associated Press averages were from .1 of a point higher to .02 of a point lower.

Murray Body 6½s provided the only fireworks of the session with a jump of 7¾ points to 170 before yielding one point near the end to close at 169¾, up 6¾ points on balance. This was within 3⅛ points of the year's high at 172⅛ and 67¾ points above the year's low of 98. The bonds have a convertible feature and have provided the bond market with some of its widest individual moves this year during the past few months.

Home Owners' Loan 2¾s were the most active Government bond and closed 1-32nd higher at 98.29. Other guaranteed obligations ended 1-32nd lower to 5-32nds higher and Treasury loans fluctuatel equally as narrow with the majority in the plus column.

Some improvement was made by Italian loans, but other foreign issues, including Denmark 4½s and Japanese 6½s were lower.

COTTON MARKET NARROW WITH TRADE FEATURELESS

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—The cotton market, holding within range of 5 or 6 points, showed no important feature today. The close was steady at an advance of 3 points on October, but generally net unchanged to 2 points lower.

There was some buying at the start on relatively steady Liverpool cable and unfavorable features in the weather news, but it was supplied at slight advances by selling orders from the South and scattering liquidation. Hedging became somewhat more active later but it was taken by a continued demand from the trade.

Relative firmness of October was attributed to scarcity of offerings and a little covering or trade buying.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 77,000 bales against 111,00 last year.

Memphis Spot Cotton.

MEMPHIS, Tennnn., Sept. 28.—Spot cotto had a steady tone. Middling closed at 10.20c, unchanged from yesterday. Sales amounted to 14,408 bales.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 28.—Spot cotton closed steady 2 points down. Sales 4716; low middling 9.91; middling 10.66; good middling 11.11; receipts 14,406; stock 456,353.

U. S. AGRICULTURAL EXPORTS REMAIN LOW, REPORTS SHOW

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Reports to the division of foreign crops and markets indicate that United States Agricultural exports remain low.

For the month of August, the index of United States exports of farm producted amounted to 44, the lowest monthly index in more than two decades and less than one-half the pre-war average.

The decline was general, all groups except tobacco being lower in comparison with July and all except fruit in comparison with August a year ago.

With cotton excluded, the decline was more pronounced, the index dropping to 35 as compared with 37 the preceding month and 55 during August a year ago.

The cotton index for August was 68 which was below those of the two preceding months and was the lowest August index since 1931. However, exports compared favorably with most of the monthly exports last season.

Total cotton exports for the month amounted to 253,000 bales of which 59,000 bales went to Japan, 43,000 to the United Kingdom, 36,000 to France, 30,000 to Germany, 24,000 to Italy and 16,000 bales to Poland.

Estimates of the 1935 wheat production in 41 countries now total 3,044,059,000 bushels as compared with 2,949,473,000 bushels harvested by these countries in 1934.

The first official estimate of areas sown to grain in Argentina for the 1935-36 harvest show marked decline from the revised figures of last year. In the case of both wheat and rye, a 25 per cent reduction is indicated.

The British Board of Trade has announced a total of cured pork import quota of 140,514,000 pounds for the last quarter of 1935. This amount is to be divided among the principal suppliers in the usual proportional allotments and is exclusive of the adjustment which may be in order on account of over or under shipments during the preceding period.

The 1934-35 grain season in the Soviet Union is well on its way toward completion, although no final crop estimates are available, local reports indicate considerably larger yields, particularly in the South, than those in 1934.

More than 87 per cent of the harvest has been cut, 60 per cent threshed and the grain procurements are well under way.

TRADE TRENDS

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—More price changes were made last week in the markets for heavy and fine chemicals than have been made for some time, according to the "Oil, Paint & Drug Reporter." Advances predominated numerically, the publication says, but the weight of changes was on the other side, chiefly because of a reduction in zinc oxides. Business continued to expand, the paper says.

Furniture—The furniture industry is continuing to experience a pronounced revival, according to a leading statistical house that specializes in that field. Orders booked during August showed an increase of 73 per cent over the same month last year and business booked for the first eight months of the year averaged 42 per cent better than in the same period a year earlier, the firm says in its latest analysis.

Glass—Demand for glass products continues to mount steadily, according to reports from leading manufacturers. Nearly all products are feeling the effects of increased demand, the trade was told, although some lines have enjoyed a wider expansion than others. Buying is more steady in the building field, as indicated by heavier shipments of window glass against contracts which, in some plants, exhausted production.

Steel—A private survey of the steel industry made for New York financial interests says it is the general impression among representative steel men that motor manufacturers will begin to take their requirements within two or three weeks. Several of the large companies were reported to have more business booked for September delivery than they booked for August, notwithstanding the motor letup.

Tobacco—The average price of U. S. type 31 air cured burley tobacco during the week ended Sept. 28 was 16.1 cents a pound compared with 16.7 cents in the preceding week and 9.4 cents in the same week a year ago, according to H. A. Stich, tobacco economist.

How Coincidence Runs Through Muench Baby Story and Kelley Kidnaping Trial Preliminaries

(Reprinted From Yesterday's Post-Dispatch)

Copyright, 1935, by the Pulitzer Publishing Co.—All rights reserved under Federal protection of property rights in news.

Considering the dates of episodes and incidents in the Kelley kidnaping trials and the incredible Muench baby story together, the chronology presents an illuminating backdrop for the finale of the bizarre drama which has absorbed the attention of the city for two weeks.

A double stage is being set—one at Mexico, Mo., where the attractive red-headed woman who is the star of the spectacle will go to trial tomorrow on the capital charge of complicity in kidnaping for ransom, and in the St. Louis Court of Appeals where the same defendant will be called upon later for what proof she has that the baby she claims to have borne at the age of 43, after 22 years of childless married life, is not in fact the child of another.

After all dilatory motions had been exhausted by attorneys for Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench, even including an extraordinary one seldom resorted to, the defendant, sister of a Judge of the Missouri State Supreme Court, was left to realize the inevitable; that at last she must face the State's case before a jury and that the time would be soon.

Two Defendants Convicted.

Mrs. Muench was indicted March 13, 1934. Prosecuting Attorney Anderson of St. Louis County and his staff were busy throughout 1934 organizing their evidence and trying the two principal male defendants, Angelo Rosegrant, alias "Dago," alias "Lover," and Felix McDonald, a prisoner in the Missouri penitentiary, convicted of robbery in connection with an attempted kidnaping subsequent to the Kelley case. It suited their purpose to leave Mrs. Muench to the last since they were unable to try all defendants together, the defendants having exercised an advantage the defense has over the State in all criminal cases, and elected to be tried separately.

McDonald, the second to be tried, was convicted Jan. 30, 1935. From that day on, Prosecuting Attorney Anderson, his Associate, John Wolfe, and Assistant John McNatt, and the other members of the staff, were ready and eager to try conclusions with the battery of lawyers, retained for Mrs. Muench, which included several men locally famous.

Legislator Employed.

But instead of announcing ready, as the State hoped, two days before the trial date Feb. 19, Mrs. Muench engaged Edgar J. Keating, a lawyer of Kansas City and also a member of the State Legislature. The obvious purpose was to postpone the trial, since the State law makes it mandatory on a Judge to grant a continuance to any defendant represented by a State Legislator while the Legislature is in session. Since it was not known at that time when the Legislature would adjourn, the Court postponed the trial to April 15.

But before this later date arrived Mrs. Muench filed another dilatory notice. She informed the Court that instead of going to trial, she would apply for a change of venue from St. Louis County on the ground that the community was so prejudiced against her she could not receive a fair trial. Application, therefore, was made April 13, and in order to hear this application the Court pushed the trial date forward another month, or to May 13. This was the limit of delay obtainable in St. Louis County.

It was clear at the beginning of May that even if the change of venue should be denied, the hearing on it would run into early summer, and it was a foregone conclusion that the trial would not be held during the hot months but would go over to early autumn.

Change of venue was granted by the Court and the case sent to Audrain County. Automatically, trial there could not be called until the opening of the next succeeding term, or Sept. 2.

All technical means of delay having been exhausted in St. Louis County, continuance at Mexico was not to be relied upon except on the ground of serious illness of the defendant or a vital witness—and then only for a few days. Therefore, the time when the State's case must be faced in court could be approximated with certainty.

Developments in May.

It was in the month of May then that the conjunction of ideas and events came which ultimately resulted in the fascinating coincidence that Mrs. Muench, when at last she should have to face a jury, could avail herself of the comforting presence of a baby in her arms.

It was in the month of May that persons outside the defendants' camp heard from her that she was to have a baby. On or about May 12 Dr. and Mrs. Muench told Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Wall of 5374 Delmar boulevard that Mrs. Muench was going to have a baby the last of July or early in August. This was the reason, they said, for negotiating with the Walls for the possible rental of an apartment on Delmar boulevard. They represented that the expected event in the family would necessitate larger quarters than they had in their home at 4736 Westminster place.

This fact was not published but it reached the office of Prosecuting Attorney Anderson.

It was in May that Mrs. Muench stopped Dr. Marsh Pitzman in his car, after he had kept away from her for seven months, and told him the glad news.

Quest for Baby by Jones.

It was also in the merry month of May that Wilfred Jones, lawyer and intimate friend and adviser of the Muenches, began the quest for a baby for "adoption by a childless couple," friends of his. This fact came from Jones himself to Post-Dispatch reporters. He also told reporters it was in this month these friends first asked him to find one.

On May 13 Mrs. Muench's case was called for trial and again continued for her, this time to June 24 because the Legislature was still in session. This continuance made it certain no trial would be held for months because of the hot weather.

On June 9 Mrs. Mary O'Connell, midwife, called on Miss Christine Krout, 1429 Hills terrace, who had advertised a baby for disposal, and arranged for a "Mrs. Miller" to call later and engage the baby. This "Mrs. Miller" did. Subsequently she was identified as Mrs. Rebecca Winner of 6015 Maple avenue, retired midwife.

On June 15 Jones introduced himself to Miss Krout as the third party, who was to take the baby, and thereafter he took personal charge of prenatal arrangements. The expectant mother, Miss Estelle Oberg of Minneapolis, who had come to St. Louis to be piloted through her wretched situation by the experienced Miss Krout, a public masseuse, met Jones and placed herself in his hands. At this time the baby's birth was expected in about two weeks, or the first of July. Jones expressed the wish to Miss Krout that it might come earlier. He did not say for what reason or how much earlier. However, his requirements had no influence on nature and the child was born June 29 at City Hospital. The child was registered under the name of Price, said to be that of its father.

Mrs. Muench in Court June 17.

On June 17, two days after Jones had called on Miss Krout, the hearing of Mrs. Muench's motion for a change of venue began in Judge Nolte's court at Clayton. She was present, and in view of the information which had reached the Prosecuting Attorney's office, was closely scrutinized by many eyes. There were no external signs to verify her stated expectancy of motherhood.

Miss Oberg returned to the Krout home with her child in about a week and there, on July 10 or 11, Jones received the baby, took it away in an automobile in which there was a woman. This woman has not yet been identified.

On July 11 Dr. Aaron Levy, formerly a friend of the Muenches, was called to their home by Dr. Muench and there treated the Price baby, but the infant was too far gone to be saved. On Dr. Levy's advice it was immediately removed to the Jewish Hospital, where he continued to treat it, but, despite all that could be done, the infant died July 16, five or six days after Jones took it from its mother. (Miss Krout has not been able to fix the date exactly as July 10 or 11 when Jones took the infant.)

Dr. Levy reports Mrs. Muench, as well as her husband, were very solicitous about the infant. They made no explanation of its presence in their home, nor did he ask any questions about this extraordinary situation, he said. However, he says he did not observe any external signs of pregnancy at this time, which was only about five weeks before the alleged birth of a child to Mrs. Muench.

Ware Baby Born Aug. 17.

The next episode in the baby chronology is the birth of Anna Ware's baby at Midwife Winner's home, 6015 Maple avenue, on Aug. 17. Jones, as he has freely stated, had begun active search for a second baby, for the same friends, as soon as the Price child died.

Anna Ware, the Pennsylvania servant girl, the father of whose child she has sworn to be a son-in-law of Mrs. Winner, at that time had agreed with Mrs. Winner's daughter, her employer, to come to St. Louis for disposal of the child. The two things "click" as perfectly as if the adroit Jones himself had personally arranged them.

Anna's child was born about 6:30 a. m. Jones took a woman dressed as a nurse to the house about 10 or 11 o'clock that night and she took the child away.

Two days later, or Aug. 19, reports reached the newspapers that there was a baby in the Muench home. The report was consistently denied there until the 21st, when Mrs. Muench admitted over the telephone that she had a baby. Later in the day she admitted a reporter who chronicled the familiar "Mother and baby doing fine." Dr. Muench also formally announced the alleged event.

A few days later Dr. Muench filled out one of the record cards of the Health Department prescribed by law and gave himself as the attending physician at the reported birth. When asked about this report, it being most unusual for a physician to attend his own wife when numbers of others were available, he declared there was one other doctor in attendance, but that he would keep his name secret because of the notoriety that had recently attached to his family.

Whether any baby will be present when the trial of Mrs. Muench opens Monday only that day can tell.

SURVEY OF RACKETEERING STARTED BY GOVERNMENT

Federal Agents to Canvass Jewelry, Poultry and Trucking Industries in Particular.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, announced today that his agents are making a nation-wide investigation of organized crime's invasion of business and the extent of racketeering. "The field," he said, "is pretty wide open now, because kidnaping, extortion, bank robbery and crimes of that type are pretty generally under control."

Joseph B. Keenan, Assistant Attorney-General, said the year-old Federal racketeering law "is circumscribed by obvious sharp limits." He said, however, that it would permit the Government agents to move against racketeers whenever their actions affected goods or business moving across state lines.

Hoover has made a survey of conditions in New York, where a special investigation into widespread racketeering was ordered recently by Gov. Lehman. He said the bureau's survey will be directed primarily toward such lines of business as jewelry, poultry and trucking.

Keenan said that in large citie near state borders, the field is op for Federal prosecution.

Amos 'n' Andy will be on KSD hereafter at 6 p. m. Mondays through Fridays. This change was made possible by co-operation of the National Broadcasting Co. in making available a wire circuit on the five evenings a week from the Chicago studios to St. Louis. As the change in time in New York City automatically advanced the schedule for Amos 'n' Andy to 10 p. m. and KSD must go off the air for an hour from 10 to 11 o'clock weekday nights because of having to share time, it looked for a while as if St. Louisans would have to tune through the static to pick up the famous pair on distant stations. However, when NBC headquarters was informed of the disadvantage under which this would place listeners in St. Louis and vicinity, it immediately took steps to remedy the situation. So now listeners in this region will be able to hear Amos 'n' Andy during the dinner hour.

Louise Groody, the musical comedy actress; Blanche Ring, Guy Robertson, a favorite of Muny Opera audiences, and Joe Weber, of the team of Weber and Fields, are billed for Ted Hammerstein's Music Hall which will open on KSD at 7 o'clock tomorrow night.

Gertrude Niessen, the radio singer, who made such a "hit" in Muny Opera here the past season, will sing with Ben Bernie and his orchestra at 8 p. m. Tuesday on KSD.

The return of Fred Allen, Portland Hoffa and the Mighty Allen Art Players to KSD's Town Hall Tonight is set for 8 p. m. Wednesday.

Changes on KSD.

FRANK CRUMMIT, who succeeded Jim Harkins as master of ceremonies of the Town Hall Tonight during Fred Allen's absence from the program, has been engaged with Conrad Thibault, the baritone, and Harry Salter's orchestra, on a new KSD program at 9 p. m. Wednesday. Carol Deis, National Radio Audition winner some years ago and now a radio star, will be a member of the supporting singing group. Thibault is best known for his work on the Thursday night Show Boat.

Morton Downey is to sing on Paul Whiteman's Music Hall Thursday night on KSD. Others billed are Ernest Hutcheson, the pianist; Sheila Barrett, impersonator, and Ruth Brent.

Lanny Ross, the tenor, will take full charge of the Show Boat next Thursday evening. Frank McIntyre, who has been playing "Cap'n Henry," will remain in the cast, and no immediate change of policy for the program seems to be planned, although the Westerners, four men and a girl, who were on the Show Boat a few weeks ago, have been added.

Mills Brothers.

THE Mills Brothers, back from a tour of Europe; Art Kassel's orchestra, and Hal Totten, the sports announcer, will open on KSD at 9:30 Friday night. Grace Dunn, who has been singing in Chicago with Kassel, will be the soloist.

Ida Bailey Allen, the commentator on food and cooking problems, will begin a thrice-weekly series on KSD this week—at 10 a. m. Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays.

The O'Neills, a dramatic serial formerly on the CBS network, will be carried on KSD at 2:45 Mondays through Fridays, next week.

Tom Mix's Adventures will be back on KSD at 5:30 tomorrow, Wednesday and Friday in transcription form.

Eddie Duchin and his orchestra will have a different type of program Tuesday evening.

Little Orphan Annie will become a KSD feature at 5:45 p. m. Mondays through Fridays, as a transcription program.

BEGINNING today, all network programs on KSD, and also on KWK and KMOX, will come an hour later than for the past six months. The change in time accompanies a considerable rearrangement of schedules, addition of numerous programs and the return to the air this week and next of many radio favorites.

Now it is stated that Jolson's contract for the Saturday night period on KSD has been renewed until the first of the year.

Bing Crosby's contract to replace Paul Whiteman on KSD's Thursday night, beginning in December, is rumored to be for more than two years. Whiteman, it is said, is to head a big radio show in January on the WJZ net, Sunday nights.

New 1936 Buick Cars, Completely Restyled, Introduced in St. Louis

All Models Speedy — Hydraulic Brakes—Built-in Trunks on All Sedan Types.

New Buick cars for 1936, in four separate lines, were introduced yesterday, and now are on display by dealers throughout St. Louis and this territory. Prices are lower than in 1935, and one of the lines brings a standard production car in the $1000 class having the qualifications of a specially built racing auto.

Two straight eight valve-in-head engines of Buick design developing 93 and 120 horsepower, are the power plants for the four lines of cars. Among other features are new streamlined styling with a speed motif throughout, solid steel "turret top" Fisher bodies, slanting "V" type windshields, anodized alloy pistons of light weight and the hardness of cast iron, sealed chassis, improved independent front wheel suspension and hydraulic brakes.

The four series are the Buick Special, the Buick Century, the Roadmaster and the Limited. Numeral designations are Series 40, Series 60, Series 80 and Series 90 respectively.

The Buick Series 40 Special is a 118-inch wheelbase car powered by a 93-horsepower engine. Somewhat heavier than last year's lowest priced Buick, it duplicates the exceptional performance of that car. Top speed is 85 miles an hour.

Fourteen Body Types.

The Buick Century 120-horsepower eight engine and 122-inch wheelbase chassis. Average top speed of the Century under proving ground tests is 95 miles an hour.

The Roadmaster series includes two six-passenger body types on a 131-inch chassis. Likewise powered by a 120-horsepower engine it has a top speed of 90 miles an hour with equivalent performance throughout the driving ranges.

Buick Limited models are a 138-inch wheelbase chassis, and are designed to accommodate six and eight passengers. Top speed of the Limited series is 87 miles an hour.

A total of 14 body types are listed for the four lines of cars.

Speed is the motif throughout the new Buick styling. Radiators are high and wedge-shaped with diecast cromium grille. Fenders, new in design, are speedlined and attached to a flat running board. The long hoods are carried forward to meet the grille at which point is mounted an attractive modernistic radiator ornament.

Restyled Body Lines.

New bodies by Fisher are streamlined from cowl to tail, featuring sharply slanted split "V" type windshields, with double windshield wipers at the bottom. Outstanding 1936 Buick body feature is Fisher all-steel "turret top" with which all cars are equipped. Besides being an important structural and safety factor, the "turret top" is regarded as one of the major appearance features of the cars.

Interiors of the 1936 Buicks match their attractive exteriors. Here also the speed-line motif prevails in the design of door and ventilator handles, instrument panel, trim and all interior fittings. A new style of upholstering, emphasizing the same theme, has been accomplished using fabrics of exceptional quality.

A new emblem is a figure "8" superimposed upon a circular Buick shield. This is carried just above the right center of the radiator grill, found as an identifying mark on the instrument panel and on the rear of the built-in trunks, which are standard in all sedan models.

Outstanding features of the 1936 Buick engines are anolite pistons, stiffer crankshafts, crankshaft torsional balancers, streamlined combustion chambers, improved valve mechanism, oil temperature control, improved cooling, improved dual downdraft carburetion, new automatic choke, automatic heat control, cold idle control, vacuumatic spark control and other aids to engine operation.

Anolite pistons, pioneered by Buick, are a new development in alloy pistons. They are equal to cast iron for wear and oiling qualities, but weigh 50 per cent less than cast iron pistons.

Mechanical Features.

The anodic treatment is applied to the surface of the pistons after grinding, hardening the surface and making it slightly porous. Oil is actually absorbed by this metal and sticks to the surface providing the most efficient lubrication yet known for cold starting and breaking in of the engine.

Engine Features.

As aids to efficient engine operation and easy starting are automatic dual starting control. Solenoid starter engagement, automatic choke, automatic idle control and automatic heat control. The dual control feature hooks up the starting switch with both the foot accelerator pedal and the hand throttle button on the instrument board. The car driver has only to turn the ignition switch and step on the foot accelerator. The engine automatically does the rest. All Buick engines have octane selectors.

The Buick gliding ride, characteristic of this company's cars of the past two years, is improved by the retention of knee action wheels of improved Buick design, torque tube drive, improved weight distribution, a new ride stabiziler and redesigned low pressure tires.

Hydraulic brakes are standard on all Buick models for 1936 with an advanced brake design. The hydraulic system on every car is tested under 300 pounds per square inch pressure before it leaves the factory.

Multibeam headlights have been improved. They consist of wide cross beams for night country or open road driving with provision for dropping the right beam below the eyes of oncoming drivers for passing. The left beam maintains the bright illumination on the right side of the road and ditch. The dimming or passing beam switch is a toe button at the left of the driver's foot controls. A red light indicator on the instrument panel informs the driver when his lights are bright or dropped for passing. In city driving both headlight beams are dropped eliminating glare in the eyes of oncoming drivers and pedestrians.

All the new Buick interiors have more headroom, leg room and elbow room.

Few Become Ill Riding in Planes

In July American Airlines transported more than 20,000 passengers a total of 7,000X000 passenger miles. Members of plane crews were instructed to prepare an accurate list of all passengers who became ill from any cause.

These reports, just compiled, showed that only 57 passengers became ill from all causes, or approximately one in every 350. According to stewardesses, all of whom are registered nurses, a majority of these passengers probably would have experienced the same slight illness on the ground.

Chevrolet Again Wins First Space Choice at New York Auto Show

For the ninth consecutive time, first choice of exhibit space at the National Automobile Shows in New York and Chicago, awarded each year by the Automobile Manufacturers' Association to the member automobile manufacturer with the highest dollar volume sales, goes to the Chevrolet Motor Co.

When the show was held under the management of the N. A. C. C., the custom of alloting first selection of space to the sales leader was followed for years, as being the fairest method of award.

Last year, when the Automobile Manufacturers' Association, successor to the N. A. C. C., turned the show management over to the New York Automotive Merchants' Association, the latter organization adopted the same method.

With the exhibit again sponsored by the manufacturers the same system is being followed Chevrolet, as in all years since 1927, will occupy the choice position on the main floor of Grand Central Palace in New York, and at the Show in Chicago.

Four New Packard Lines of Cars Include More Powerful "120"

Appearance of All Models, Comfort Features and Appointments Improved for 1936.

The new 1936 Packard cars, including the "120," two other lines of eight-cylinder and a line of 12-cylinder models, are being introduced today by the Berry Motor Car Co., the distributer, and Packard dealers.

The "120," so called because of its 120-inch wheel base, has been given more power by increasing the stroke to four and one-quarter inches. Its engine now produces 120 horsepower and fast acceleration, smoother engine operation and greater economy of gasoline and oil are said to result from the lower gear ratio which the greater power makes possible. The engine now turns over 315 fewer revolutions per mile of car travel.

The new "120" has Packard's exclusive "Safe-T-Flex" independent front wheel suspension, unchanged except for softer springs and improved shock absorber adjustments to give even greater riding comfort. Powerful hydraulic brakes are provided, and there is a soft action, semi-centrifugal clutch which requires little foot effort.

Improved Appearance.

Interiors of all seven body models of the "120" have been made considerably brighter and more attractive, with a new treatment of the window mouldings and instrument board, as well as new and more attractive hardware. By an ingenious hinge arrangement, the front doors are hinged at the front without sacrificing the long sloping lines of the door opening, at the same time giving more foot room for entrance and exit. New seat cushion springs and deeper upholstery make for more comfort. A new upholstery treatment, with 100 per cent wool broadcloth, adds much to interior appearance.

Packard appearance of the "120 has been further enhanced by use of ball type radiator filler cap which has been a Packard feature since 1904, the year the original Packard hood and radiator lines were created. Bumpers are wider and heavier, the rear bumper carrying the Packard name. Matched guards for front and rear bumpers carry the familiar Packard red hub cap hexagon.

An inch more leg room is provided in the front compartment of all body models, and in all sedans the rear seat compartment is an inch and a half wider. New type arm rests give more elbow room in the rear seat. All sedans have a foot rest built into the rear of the front seat. Head room in the touring and standard five-passenger sedans has been increased three-quarters of an inch without detracting from the exterior appearance of lowness.

Powerful Engines.

The larger and more costly Packards appear even longer and sleeker than before, through a new radiator design, which is narrower at the bottom and rakes back at a considerably greater angle at the top.

The Packard eight engine delivers 130 brake horsepower; the super eight, 150 horsepower; and the Packard 12 power plant, 175 horsepower. All three cars have power brakes to match their unusual accelerating ability with powerful and quick deceleration.

Engines of all three cars have full flow oil filters and oil coolers. Hydraulic valve silencers keep the tappets of the 12 adjusted automatically. The 12 engine also has an ingenious carburetion system which gives, it is claimed, more nearly the ideal cool gasoline and air mixture than is found in any other automobile engine.

The larger three models have automatic chassis lubrication which keeps the chassis lubricated when a car is being driven. Occasional filling of a central oil reservoir is the only attention needed with this system. Each car also has shock absorbers which are adjustable with an easy manual setting of a knob at the dash.

Bodies of the three lines of larger cars give a maximum in luxurious comfort and roominess. Wheel bases run from 127 inches for the Packard eight five-passenger sedan, and 144 inches for the Packard 12 seven-passenger sedan and sedan limousine, to 165 inches for the super eight commercial chassis. There are eight different chassis in the three "lines" and 36 different body models, not including the custom and commercial cars.

Packard is now in full production of all of its four lines.

George M. Berry, president of the Berry Motor Car Co., was among the 2300 distributers, dealers and salesmen who attended Monday and Tuesday the biggest meeting ever held at the Packard factory in Detroit. Some of his company's employes took part Thursday in the drive away of 2000 of the new Packard cars from the factory which is said to have been the greatest drive away in point of money value involved ever held.

Four New Packard Lines of Cars Include More Powerful "120"

Appearance of All Models, Comfort Features and Appointments Improved for 1936.

The new 1936 Packard cars, including the "120," two other lines of eight-cylinder and a line of 12-cylinder models, are being introduced today by the Berry Motor Car Co., the distributer, and Packard dealers.

The "120," so called because of its 120-inch wheel base, has been given more power by increasing the stroke to four and one-quarter inches. Its engine now produces 120 horsepower and fast acceleration, smoother engine operation and greater economy of gasoline and oil are said to result from the lower gear ratio which the greater power makes possible. The engine now turns over 315 fewer revolutions per mile of car travel.

The new "120" has Packard's exclusive "Safe-T-Flex" independent front wheel suspension, unchanged except for softer springs and improved shock absorber adjustments to give even greater riding comfort. Powerful hydraulic brakes are provided, and there is a soft action, semi-centrifugal clutch which requires little foot effort.

Improved Appearance.

Interiors of all seven body models of the "120" have been made considerably brighter and more attractive, with a new treatment of the window mouldings and instrument board, as well as new and more attractive hardware. By an ingenious hinge arrangement, the front doors are hinged at the front without sacrificing the long sloping lines of the door opening, at the same time giving more foot room for entrance and exit. New seat cushion springs and deeper upholstery make for more comfort. A new upholstery treatment, with 100 per cent wool broadcloth, adds much to interior appearance.

Packard appearance of the "120 has been further enhanced by use of ball type radiator filler cap which has been a Packard feature since 1904, the year the original Packard hood and radiator lines were created. Bumpers are wider and heavier, the rear bumper carrying the Packard name. Matched guards for front and rear bumpers carry the familiar Packard red hub cap hexagon.

An inch more leg room is provided in the front compartment of all body models, and in all sedans the rear seat compartment is an inch and a half wider. New type arm rests give more elbow room in the rear seat. All sedans have a foot rest built into the rear of the front seat. Head room in the touring and standard five-passenger sedans has been increased three-quarters of an inch without detracting from the exterior appearance of lowness.

Powerful Engines.

The larger and more costly Packards appear even longer and sleeker than before, through a new radiator design, which is narrower at the bottom and rakes back at a considerably greater angle at the top.

The Packard eight engine delivers 130 brake horsepower; the super eight, 150 horsepower; and the Packard 12 power plant, 175 horsepower. All three cars have power brakes to match their unusual accelerating ability with powerful and quick deceleration.

Engines of all three cars have full flow oil filters and oil coolers. Hydraulic valve silencers keep the tappets of the 12 adjusted automatically. The 12 engine also has an ingenious carburetion system

Trade Notes

New High Fidelity Philco Sets Are 116X and 680X.

The new high fidelity Philco radio sets are the 116x and the 680x, which has 15 tubes and several distinctive features. The 116x Philco has replaced the 118x.

The 116x Philco has an 11-tube circuit, a 15-watt high fidelity audio system, acoustic tone clarifiers to prevent "boom" effects, a two-in-one high fidelity speaker, wide-angle sound diffusers and automatic bass compensation for holding up the bass notes when volume is turned down. It carries the high fidelity that was a characteristic of the 118x model still further.

Disco Co. to Distribute New American-Bosch Sets.

The Disco Distributing Co., 2722 Locust street, has been appointed distributer of American-Bosch radio sets, for which Otto E. Heilmann is the factory representative.

Wholly new American-Bosch sets have just been introduced, and include models ranging from four tubes and five tubes to 10-tube chassis of the new high fidelity type.

A special feature is a "center-o-matic" unit which is designed to centralize the sensitive radio elements and insulate and isolate them from the audio section to prevent "feed back" as well as reduce the amount of wiring by 90 per cent, and the number of soldered connections by 104. Benefits claimed for the "center-o-matic" unit are freedom from noise, reception of more stations, easier accurate tuning, higher tone fidelity on all wave bands, and greater durability and dependability. The new metal tubes are used in this unit.

The seven tube sets range from 540 to 18,500 kilocycles, giving real all-wave reception, and the same is true of the eight-tube, and 10-tube high fidelity models, which also cover the United States weather band from 150 to 350 kc. A special 10-tube set, also designed for superior tone quality, ranges to 22,500 kilocycles.

The new American-Bosch line includes battery-operated sets.

The high fidelity cabinet sets cover a tone range of 50 to 7500 cycles, and have provision for sharpening the tuning for distance reception, a tone range expanding control for reception of extra quality musical programs from local stations, full automatic volume control and specially designed dynamic speaker.

The special 10-tube model has the American-Bosch right angle tuning, designed for comfortable operation of the set, and is said to give 12-tube performance.

Chevrolet Dealers Find Advertising of Used Cars Is Paying

The Chevrolet Motor Co. which recently enlarged its advertising program to include advertising of guaranteed used cars, is receiving reports from its dealers throughout the country to the effect that used car sales have been greatly stimulated, and that an unusually large number of buyers are seeking reconditioned cars for winter driving.

At the factory W. E. Holler, vice-president and general sales manager, who watches the progress of used-car sales closely because of its value as an index of business, interprets the increased sales of guaranteed reconditioned cars as a sign of improved purchasing power resulting from increased business activity.

"This strongly felt demand for good used cars," he said, "is a natural consequence of the gradual improvement in the employment situation. That our own dealers are feeling the demand to an unusual degree, is, I believe, the direct result of our used-car advertising, used in co-operation with our dealer organization, assuring the public that Chevrolet dealers who display used cars bearing the 'guaranteed O. K.' tag are under special agreement with the factory to use the red tag only on cars that have been thoroughly reconditioned."

O'Rourke expressed pleasure over conditions in this area, and said that the future for Pierce-Arrow looked steadily better.

He said indications were that Pierce-Arrow would experience the best year in its 35 years' history during 1936.

Speed Club Members Leading for National Racing Championship

M. C. Dewitt, vice-president of the Champion Spark Plug Co., reports that members of the Champion 100-mile-an-hour club are leading in the A. A. A. national championships.

"This is not at all unexpected," says Dewitt, "for these men have proved they are leading race drivers of this country by their past achievements. To be members of the Champion 100-mile-an-hour club, they must have averaged better than 100 miles an hour in the Indianapolis 500-Mile Race, and have driven the entire race without relief."

According to the official bulletin of the American Automobile Association, seven of the first nine places in the standings for the national championships are held by members of the Champion 100-mile-an-hour club.

Klinger Says Pontiac Is Expecting to Sell 225,000 of 1936 Cars

H. J. Klingler, president and general manager of Pontiac Motor Co., told 400 members of the field personnel of the company, assembled Friday for the annual convention marking the close of the 1935 model-year, that Pontiac expected to build and sell 225,000 of the 1936 models.

"After the shortest shut-down period in the history of Pontiac, production has been resumed with cars coming off the assembly line at the rate of more than 500 per day," Klingler said.

"The plant will be speeded up as fast as possible, so that we can build 48,000 cars by the end of the year.

"Pontiac and Fisher Body Corporation have completed the expenditure of $3,500,000 in the city of Pontiac thus doubling the capacity of the plants for the production of Pontiac automobiles."

ARGENTINA TO USE $1,400,000 IN FIGHT ON GRASSHOPPERS

Farmers, Trapping Insects, to Get 2.8 Cents for Sack of 66 Pounds.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 28.—Argentina is preparing for its annual fight against the grasshopper invasion from the Chaco. Some 13,000 miles of galvanized iron barriers, 9000 volunteer committeemen, thousands of farmers and 5,000,000 pesos ($1,400,000) will be used against the insects.

The grasshoppers, in swarms sometimes covering several square miles, descend each year from Eastern Bolivia and Western Paraguay, scene of the recent war between those nations, and usually attack from two to six provinces in Argentina's rich grain belt.

Galvanized iron barriers are sold or rented to farmers who trap the insects, rake them into sacks, and sell them to the government for 2.8 cents for a sack of 66 pounds. The method destroys grasshoppers in the crawling stage, although it does not work against flying swarms. Last year when the appropriation was only 5 per cent of this year's 38,000 tons of grasshoppers were paid for.

Most of the sacked locusts are dumped in pits, doused with creosote, and burned, but several shipments have been sent to Europe as fertilizer. The South American grasshopper is larger than the North American variety and has a bigger head.

TWO CONFESSED LIQUOR VIOLATORS DENIED PAROLES

Federal Judge Moore Remarks He Has Been Too Lenient With Such Cases.

Federal Judge Moore yesterday refused to consider paroles for two confessed liquor violators and announced that he intended to send violators convicted of illegal manufacture of liquor to the penitentiary.

Louis Vitale, 4201W Kennerly avenue, who confessed possession of unlicensed liquor, must serve four months in jail at St. Charles. He was also fined $500. Counsel for Tony Tomatchio, who last week was sentenced to eight months in jail, penalized $500 and fined $100, sought a parole for his client on payment of the penalty and fine. Judge Moore denied the plea, remarking that he had been too lenient in liquor cases. Tomatchio, a widower, has two minor sons.

PITTSBURGH HELD TO TWO TOUCHDOWNS BY SMALL COLLEGE TEAM

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 28.—The 1935 edition of the University of Pittsburgh football team ran into something unexpected today and came away from its opener against plucky Waynesburg College with a scant 14-0 victory.

The green Panther outfit had the advantage of the Yellowjackets throughout in the matter of ground gained but the Waynesburgers found hole after hole in the line to stop Pitt power plays.

A crowd of 12,000 saw the game which was played in a drizzle of rain.

RICE ELEVEN DEFEATS LOUISIANA STATE, 10-7

By the Associated Press.

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 28.—A flashing first period offensive that netted a touchdown and a field goal gave the powerful Owls of Rice a 10-7 victory tonight over Louisiana State University in a stubbornly fought game, here tonight.

Restrain Yourself, Jimmy.

Whereupon those who read the statement began to smile and suggest that the S. P. C. A. ought to get an injunction restraining Jim from entering the match.

"He'll get killed if he gets in the ring with Joe," about expresses the popular attitude.

Whether any serious mayhem would result to Braddock is open to question. He was a pretty good fighter once, and was regarded as having a very damaging punch. He might avoid Joe for a number of rounds. This writer believes he would do better than Baer did.

The victory was particularly impressive for the Creighton followers because it was the first game for Creighton under the coaching of Marchy Schwartz, the former Notre Dame star. It also broke the three game tie between the two teams. Creighton scored its touchdowns in the first and third periods.

Trick Play Gains 50 Yards.

The St. Louis squad was placed on the defensive almost from the very start of the game. On the first play, Klem pulled a trick play from a scrimmage formation when he passed 51 yards to Wilcox. The play put the ball on the Billiken 10-yard line, where the line held and the Billikens got the ball on downs. However, the touchdown was only delayed. Six plays later Klem passed 40 yards to Bockmueller who was racing along his own goal line when he caught the pass. He was close to the edge and the St. Louis players protested that he had stepped over the line before he caught the ball. The referee, however, allowed the play—and the touchdown. Mitchell broke through the line on the extra kick play, to block the attempt.

The Billikens came back with a slashing attack a little later, and for a while it looked as if they were on their way to a touchdown. With Captain Hudson, Herrmany and Wood doing most of the ball carrying, the trio made three first downs in a row and had the ball on Creighton's 33. Then Drone tossed a lateral to Wood and it looked as if he was clear but a lone Creighton tackler caught him after he raced 15 yards. Here Creighton collected its defense and held for three downs. On the fourth Hudson passed a beautiful bullet shot to Mitchell who had raced too far over the goal line. The ball was finally grounded just over the line. This was most serious threat of the Billiken offense.

Bills Outgain Rivals.

In spite of the score the Billikens gained 136 yards from scrimmage to Creighton's 134 and made six first downs from scrimmage to Creighton's three. However, Creighton made its headway with its passing attack.

A bad break for Mitchell lead up to Creighton's second touchdown in the third quarter. Bockmueller kicked off to Mitchell, who made a flying catch of the punt but stumbled and in falling dropped the ball. It was recovered by Busch on the St. Louis 30-yard line. Before the Billikens could recover themselves the Creighton backs of Vincequerra, Wilcox and Zuercher had made two first downs in succession. Zuercher aided the drive with a nice pass for 12 yards over

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 28.—The 1935 edition of the University of Pittsburgh football team ran into something unexpected today and came away from its opener against plucky Waynesburg College with a scant 14-0 victory.

The green Panther outfit had the advantage of the Yellowjackets throughout in the matter of ground gained but the Waynesburgers found hole after hole in the line to stop Pitt power plays.

A crowd of 12,000 saw the game which was played in a drizzle of rain.

RICE ELEVEN DEFEATS LOUISIANA STATE, 10-7

By the Associated Press.

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 28.—A flashing first period offensive that netted a touchdown and a field goal gave the powerful Owls of Rice a 10-7 victory tonight over Louisiana State University in a stubbornly fought game, here tonight.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Restrain Yourself, Jimmy.

"PERSONALLY I'd be glad to fight Joe Louis any time," remarked Heavyweight Champion James J. Braddock to an interviewer. "After all he's just a fighter who has come along and beat a lot of over-rated opponents."

BRADDOCK

Whereupon those who read the statement began to smile and suggest that the S. P. C. A. ought to get an injunction restraining Jim from entering the match.

"He'll get killed if he gets in the ring with Joe," about expresses the popular attitude.

Whether any serious mayhem would result to Braddock is open to question. He was a pretty good fighter once, and was regarded as having a very damaging punch. He might avoid Joe for a number of rounds. This writer believes he would do better than Baer did.

Waiting for the "Gate."

HOWEVER, no need to worry about Braddock's plight. He will not have to fight Louis until June or possibly September, when the big "gates" are ajar. To waste Louis on an indoor fight for the championship would be casting away more than half a million dollars.

And when Jim does meet the Tan Slugger of Detroit he might as well make up his mind to be happy with the loser's end and retirement. He hasn't the slightest hope of winning, on his record.

When Braddock and Louis do fight the match will present a queer situation in that a challenger will receive more than a champion.

Because of his superior drawing power, Louis' backers will not permit him to fight until he is guaranteed the lion's share. In the Baer-Louis battle, Joe was paid 30 per cent, while Baer received 25 per cent. But Baer was no longer champion when the match was arranged.

The curious spectacle will therefore be noted, on the night Braddock does defend his title against Louis, of a champion who is second choice in the betting, who is

BREAKING THAT CUB STREAK—Rothrock Scores First Run

Jack Rothrock of the Cardinals opened the Cardinals' fourth inning with a single and scored on Joe Medwick's triple. Rothrock is shown rounding third in his dash to the plate for the first tally of the game with the Cubs, Larry French was the Chicago pitcher.

FRISCH SIGNS TO LEAD CARDS AGAIN IN 1936

Frank Frisch yesterday signed a one-year contract to continue as manager of the Cardinals and will be back at second base next year, leading a team of Redbirds with a strengthened pitching staff, it became known yesterday afternoon.

The Fordham Flash's salary will be the same as this year and he is well pleased with the arrangement, he told the Post-Dispatch.

"I am perfectly satisfied," Frisch said. "St. Louis is a great place in which to play. The city has been very good to me. I have made many good friends here and I am happy to remain.

"Changes in the club will be necessary. Everybody knows that we must strengthen our pitching staff and every effort will be made to add hurling power.

"I intend to play in every game when I am able to play next year. I was a regular at the start of the 1935 season and went out when I hurt my leg. When the leg had healed, Whitehead was going so strong I felt I couldn't break up the combination. But next spring, when the squad assembles at Bradenton, Fla., Frank Frisch will be my first candidate for second base."

Louis Goes to Detroit.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Joe Louis, Negro heavyweight boxer who defeated Max Baer Tuesday night, boarded a train for Detroit today, accompanied by his bride and John Roxborough, one of his managers. Louis said he and his wife would attend the first two games of the world series in Detroit and then go to Chicago to establish their permanent home.

Alabama Held To 7-7 Tie by Howard Bulldogs

By the Associated Press.

UNIVERSITY, Ala., Sept. 28.

THE Howard Bulldogs sprang an amazing upset before 4500 fans here today as they held the Alabama Crimson Tide, Rose Bowl and Southeastern Conference champions, to a 7 to 7 tie.

A pass, Harbin to Snell, for 35 yards brought the Howard tally in the final period and Penrod kicked the point which tied the score.

Alabama's last minute passing attack failed and Howard held the ball on the Alabama 35-yard line as the game ended.

Howard missed two previous scoring opportunities by dropping passes over Alabama's goal line.

Missouri Shows Real Scoring Punch; Blanks William Jewell, 39-0

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 28.—A powerhouse running and passing attack pushed by five full teams rolled up a 39-0 victory for Missouri over William Jewell here today as Don Faurot met his first test as head of the "New Deal" Tiger coaching staff.

A crowd of 7000—one of the largest at an opening game here in several years—watched Faurot's combinations sweep to six touchdowns—and the first Missouri victory in two seasons.

So fast did the Tiger mentor change his lineup it was almost impossible to pick out the promising sophomores he will depend upon when the going gets rougher against Big Six teams.

Jack Frye, Al Londe, Art Murray and Henry Mahley led the attack with long runs and effective passes. Missouri completed five of nine aerial attempts for 136 yards. Mahley's 62-yard broken field dash to a touchdown was the most spectacular play.

Frye, who came to Missouri from Rice Institute a year ago, passed nine yards to Londe, St. Louis quarterback, for the first score midway in the opening period. The Tigers had worked the ball into the scoring area on long runs and a 34-yard aerial. Frye kicked the extra point.

After Missouri had thrown a pass into the end zone, Felix Turnbough, right end from Brookhaven, Miss., blocked a Jewell punt, snared the pigskin and went four yards for a score.

Turnbough's brother, Paul, scored another counter from the six-inch line after his own plunges and a lateral pass put Missour in position.

Lochiner passed to Mahley, Don Johnson ripped tackle for nine yards, and Mahley made his long dash to account for the other scoring. Houston added an extra point from placement after Johnson's counter.

So. Dakota State Upsets Wisconsin

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 28.—South Dakota State, regarded as a good "warm up" opponent for Wisconsin's football opener, shocked the Badgers with a 13—6 defeat here today.

A crowd of 18,000 saw the Jack Rabbits push over a touchdown in the third period and clinch victory with another in the last two minutes of play when Paul Miller dashed 75 yards after intercepting a pass.

The Staters advanced the ball from the Wisconsin 45-yard line to the goal for their initial marker. Miller returned the kickoff 20 yards and then scampered through left tackle to the Badgers' 32-yard line. Two line smashes and a pass, Miller to Diehl, put the ball on the 15-yard line and on the second line play Goldstein crashed over the goal from the one-yard line.

Wisconsin's lone touchdown culminated a 50-yard drive. Jordan passed to Budde for 11 yards and four line plays gained a first down on the 25-yard line. Interference on a pass play put the ball on the nine-yard stripe and Jordan then faded back for a pass that went over the goal and into the waiting arms of Benz, substitute end.

Northwestern Wins in Final Period, 14 to 0

EVANSTON, Ill., Sept. 28.—Northwestern rammed over two touchdowns in the final period today to defeat De Paul, 14 to 0, in the opening game of its football season before a crowd of 20,000.

Hugh Duvall scored both touchdowns to climax the only sustained drives the Wildcats were able to accomplish and kicked one of the extra points. Steve Tots accounted for the other point.

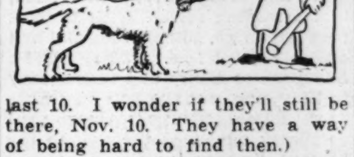
By J. Roy Stockton.

That winning streak of the amazing Cubs, new champions of the National League, finally was broken after it didn't make any difference. Joe Medwick, back in the best hitting stride just about too late to butter any World series parsnips, not to mention grapefruit, bananas, pineapples and oranges, hit a home run with a man on base in the 11th inning to break a tie and give the retiring world champions of Frankie Frisch a 7-5 victory, the first defeat suffered by the Cubs since Labor day.

It would have been a thrilling ball game if anything had been at stake, but even the breaking of a 21-game winning streak wasn't enough to excite the 4827 cash customers. It was difficult to concentrate on the business in hand. It is always like that with ball games after a hectic pennant race has been lost.

Who Fired That Shot?

(George, they tell me there are more quail this year than in the last 10. I wonder if they'll still be there, Nov. 10. They have a way of being hard to find then.)



THIS IS NO GUN PAL WE START NOVEMBER TENTH

It was Joe Medwick's second home run of the afternoon that finally gave the Cubs the unusual taste of defeat. He hit one into the left field seats in the sixth inning after Rothrock had bunted safely and did it again in the eleventh after Jack had singled to right.

(This would be swell weather to go out in the country with a big steak and the dogs and the family, but there's one more ball game to cover.)

DON'T FORGET THAT JUG!

Charley Grimm's team, striving to maintain the victory habit, sent the game into extra innings by putting on a storm in the ninth, just when it seemed that Jim Winford, a graduate from Columbus, was going to make it a victory. The Cards were leading 5 to 2, going into the ninth, but with one out, Klein and O'Dea singled, Demaree tripled for his first hit of the series and when Cavarretta singled, the score was tied. Jess Haines then relieved Winford and stopped the rally.

RED BIRD NOTES

Bill McGee, a recruit from Houston, will probably pitch for the Cardinals in the series final with the new league champions this afternoon. Tex Carleton may hurl for the visitors.

Dizzy Dean was not at the ball park yesterday, the explanation being that he had to buy a pair of shoes or something. Nobody asked the question, but if they should, Jerome had a day off coming.

The fourth game of the series attracted an unexpectedly large crowd, the paid attendance being announced as 4827. There had been a heavy advance sale of reserved seats for the entire Cub series.

Galan's stolen base in the first inning was his twenty-second of the season, putting him two ahead of Pepper Martin.

There was an unusual double play in the tenth inning. De Lancey batted for Haines and singled and Orsatti ran for him. Judy sacrificed Orsatti to second and when King hit to Kowalik, Orsatti was trapped between second and third. Hack missed a throw from Judges and Orsatti returned to second, to find King also there. Hack retrieved the ball and tagged both runners as they stood on the base. Orsatti was entitled to the base, so Umpire Rigler called King out. Orsatti, becoming confused and thinking he was out, stepped off the base and when Hack tagged him a second time, he also was ruled out. Umpire Rigler courteously explained the play for the press box immediately after the game.

By the Associated Press.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 28.—Notre Dame's Ramblers, with the dashing Fred Carideo showing the way, opened their bid for renewed football prestige today by smashing down the defenses of the University of Kansas for a 28 to 7 conquest.

The Irish scored twice in the first half and twice in the last period to overwhelm the Jayhawkers. Fast-charging Notre Dame linemen ripped apart the Kansas forward wall and opened big holes through which Carideo, Bill Shakespeare and Mike Layden, brother of Coach Elmer Layden, darted for consistent gains.

Carideo, first cousin of Frank Carideo, Notre Dame's famed all-American quarterback, excited the 20,000 spectators late in the first quarter with a 15-yard dash around the Kansas right end for a touchdown. Then, after a second period push from the Kansas 46 to which he contributed a 15-yard squirming drive over center, the 180-pound Mount Vernon, N. Y., fullback punched a hole at guard to score again from the two-yard line.

Millner Also Stars.

He shared honors, however, with Wayne Millner, veteran end and acting captain for the Irish. Millners' recovery of Mano Stukey's fumble on the Kansas 26-yard line paved the way for Carideo's first score, and the rangy wingman hauled in a 47-yard forward pass from Shakespeare in the last quarter for another Notre Dame touchdown, stepping calmly over the goal three yards away.

The other Notre Dame touchdown climaxed a 60-yard drive led by Vic Wojcihovski, that carried to the Kansas two-yard line as the third period ended. On the first play of the final quarter, the Irish forwards opened a hole wide enough for three backs, and Wojcihovski was not touched as he stepped across for the touchdown.

A third-period safety added to the Notre Dame total, when John Michuta, veteran tackle, blocked Fred Harris' attempt to punt from the Kansas three-yard stripe and the ball bounced over the end zone. Wally Fromhart place-kicked one point after touchdown and Marty Peters booted another.

The Kansas cyclone blew itself out after a single thrust that revived the visitors' hopes at the start of the second half, and they failed to threaten thereafter.

The scoring chance was provided by a beautiful 65-yard punt by Harris, with the ball rolling dead on the Notre Dame two-yard line. Andy Pilney's punt from behind the goal carried only to the 32, and the Jayhawkers struck quickly. George Hapgood, substitute fullback, plunged for two yards at center, tossed one wild forward pass, then fired a long one that Wade Green, right end, snatched almost from the hands of two Notre Dame defenders on the five-yard line. The end twisted his way across for the score and Tom McCall, left guard, added a place-kick for the point.

Kansas Ends Effective.

Although the Irish backs poured through holes at the Kansas guard and tackle positions, their tries at the wings were frequently halted. The little Jayhawk ends, Green and Rutherford Hayes, each weighing 170 pounds, time and again dropped the attackers for losses.

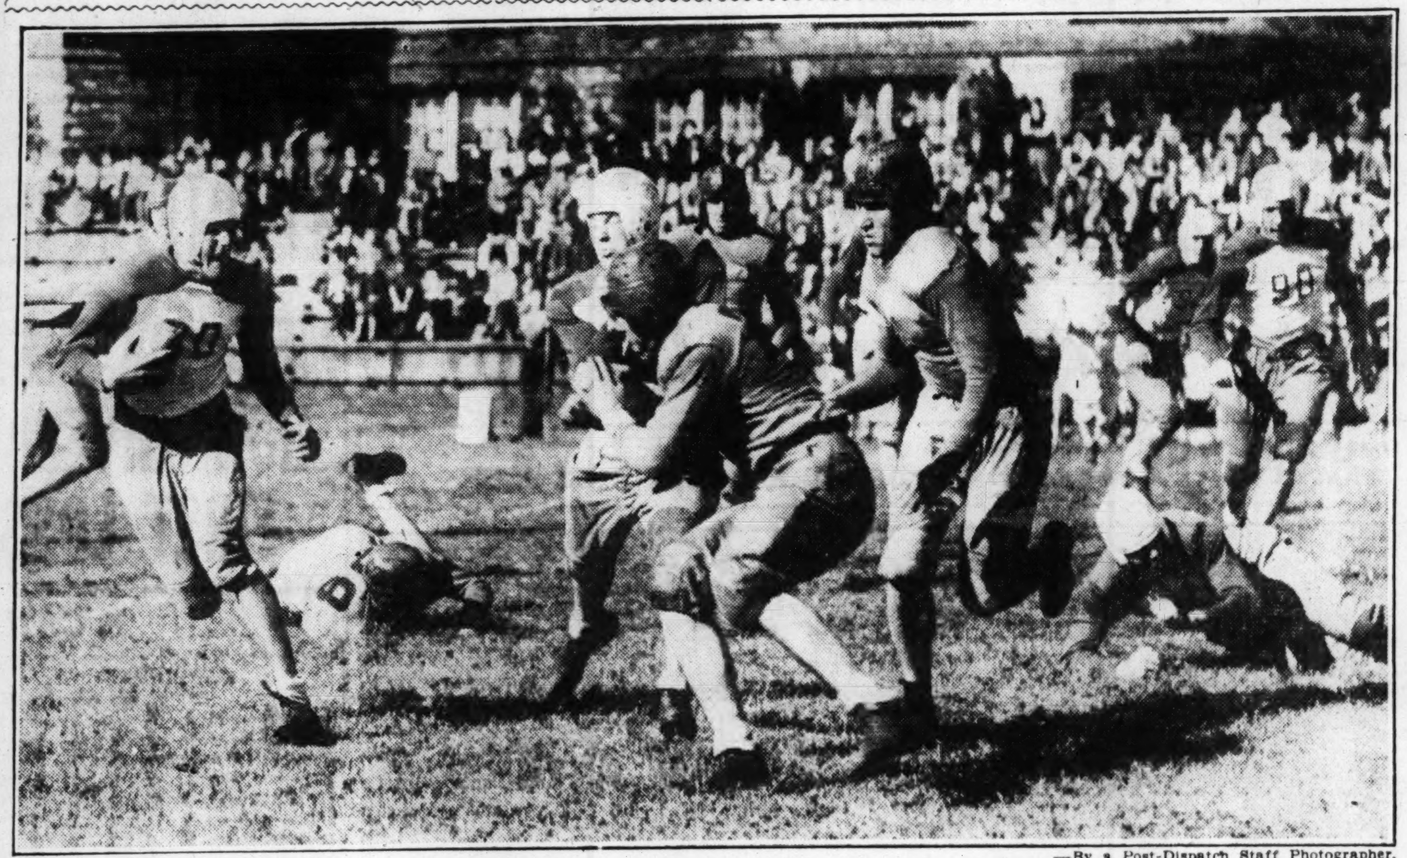
Two years ago, a scoreless tie with the Jayhawkers in a season opener heralded an unsuccessful campaign for the Ramblers, but today's victory was accomplished in a manner that satisfied the opening day crowd. The Irish had the situation in hand throughout, holding the Kansans to a single first down, while piling up an advantage of 263 to 42 in total yards gained from scrimmage.

Colgate Rolls Over Niagara.

By the Associated Press.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Sept. 28.—Colgate's Red Raiders used a combination of power and lateral pass hokus-pokus here this afternoon to roll up a 30-0 score over Niagara in a game that was played on a wet field, with 3000 looking on. The Raiders scored two touchdowns in each of the first and second quarters and another in the third. After that, Coach Andy Kerr sent in the reserves and the scoring stopped. Fifty-five Colgate players were used.

A Flash of Maplewood's Power in Game With Hillsboro



—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

Maplewood High School yesterday defeated Hillsboro, Ill., 34-0, for its second victory of the season. In this photograph, Norman Ficke is shown going around his right end for a good gain in the second quarter. In its two games, Maplewood has run up 66 points against none for the opposition.

MAPLEWOOD EASY WINNER OVER HILLSBORO, 34-0

Maplewood High School's football team passed and ran the ball around, through, over, and between a gallant group of players from Hillsboro (Ill.) to score its second one-sided victory of this season by a 34-0 count yesterday afternoon at Maplewood's field.

Displaying its power in the first half, Maplewood's veterans tallied 27 points and then with substitutes playing most of the second half, coasted along until near the end of the game wher the first stringers returned to action to register another touchdown.

There were no standouts in the Maplewood backfield, every man showing ability in a specialty, however "Duse" Christman did the passing, Norm Ficke and Jimmy Cole the end and broken field running with Ficke also doing the punting, while Bill Cunningham did a fine job of line plunging and blocking.

Maplewood's Strong Line.

It was the power of the line, however, that enabled Maplewood to do most of its gaining.

The Maple Leafs started their scoring without losing possession of the ball, Ficke taking the kickoff and returning 40 yards to Hillsboro's 25-yard line. Line plays, a pass, and a penalty brought the ball to the five-yard mark from where Christman tossed to Bob Orf for the first score. Whalen converted on a place kick.

The first quarter ended without further scoring, but starting the second, Maplewood took a weak Hillsboro punt on the 36 yard line. Cole gained 10 yards, Ficke nine, and Christman then tossed to Cunningham for a 15-yard gain and a touchdown. The third touchdown came on another pass, this time for 41 yards to Bob Orf.

Fourth Score.

The fourth score was due to a fumble by Hillsboro on its two-yard line on the kickoff, Fischer receiving. Christman tossed a lateral to Ficke for the touchdown.

Maplewood tossed passes through most of the second half, but could not score until late in the final period when Christman tossed one to Bob Orf and one to Ficke to put the ball on the 2-yard line, Christman scoring on the next play.

Hillsboro, while nearly as big as Maplewood, lacked the experience and drive of the winners, and when several breaks went against them in the first half, lost heart. Starting the second half, however, Hillsboro came back strong and Corso missed a touchdown by only a foot in the third quarter.

ILLINOIS UPSET BY OHIO U., 6-0; LINDBERG LOST FOR 5 WEEKS

By the Associated Press.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Sept. 28.—Don Peden, star halfback of Illinois 10 years ago, came back to his old camping grounds today to upset his teacher, Bob Zuppke, and with his Ohio University eleven conquered Illinois, 6 to 0.

The Bobcats from Athens scored a touchdown by a forward pass in the first period and protected their lead despite a last-period rally by the Illini which took the ball to the threshold of their goal. The loss of Les Lindberg, Illinois left halfback and star punter, who was forced out of the game in the second period with a broken bone in his foot, was a crushing blow to the chances of Illinois. Lindberg will be unable to play for at least five weeks. Nelson and Spurgeon took up the punting duties.

Art Lewis, Ohio's 200-pound tackle, swarmed all over the field in the first period, partly blocking Lindberg's punt to send the ball out of bounds on the Illinois 17-yard line. On second down, Jarkovic passed to Rapp, who fell over the goal line for the only touchdown of the game. Schneider's attempt to add the extra point failed.

In the fourth period Illinois rallied to thrill a crowd of 20,000, with Lowell Spurgeon, sophomore halfback, and Wib Henry, quarterback, in the leading roles. With 10 minutes left to go, Illinois took the ball on its 20-yard line. Two passes, Spurgeon to Henry and then Henry to Spurgeon, put the ball on Ohio's 42-yard line. Spurgeon's next pass to Henry advanced the ball to the 25-yard line, and another throw from Spurgeon to Henry enabled the Illini to reach the 16-yard line, where an interference penalty on a pass gave the Illini first down on the five-yard line. Three rushing plays failed as did Henry's throw over the goal line.

receiving less money than the challenger and who is entering the ring in the face of almost certain defeat. Not a very sunny prospect for Jimmy. But he's trying to go smiling through.

The "Manly Art" Comes Back.

THE craze for slugging has so long dominated pugilistic rings in this country that fans have almost forgotten that boxing was once referred to as the "manly art of self-DEFENSE."

Fans became so enamored of the knock-'em-dead type, which flared up with the career of Jack Dempsey, that they did not want to see defense. They wanted to see someone hit the floor.

The seed of the idea was first planted during the world war when training camp boxing rules were devised which made it practically a disgrace for a boxer to take a backward step or use footwork for protection; and even to give ground for tactical purpose was construed as a sign of weakness.

"Go in and throw gloves" was the instruction. Then along came Dempsey and he knew how to throw them. He had 'em standing on their chairs, when he fought. He became the idol of the ring world and the beau ideal for all boxers to follow.

Defense disappeared from the land. A terrible period, from the standpoint of defense, followed. Instead of skill and craft being employed, fighters began to revert to clinching, glove-grabbing, sneak-punching and the old and tiresome game of lead-and-fall-in.

Boxing almost passed out.

A Boxer Revives Boxing.

Now it is coming back because we have with us a fighter who knows something about defense. He knows how to protect himself without continual clinching. He also has revived the lost heavyweight art of feinting and his footwork is something to watch.

Joe Louis is the boy. And because he gained such tremendous popularity it is proboble that his influence on boxing will, at least for a time, turn followers away from the mere wallop and more toward the art and science of the ring.

Louis has proved that there is something besides mere hitting. He has shown every man he faced how to save waste motion, to get results with the fewest leads, and how to improve hitting by feinting and footwork.

Tunney Missed the Boat.

TUNNEY, to a considerable degree had Louis' skill; but Tunney's effectiveness was more of generalship and tactics than of boxing finesse.

He could, at no time in his career, put the power behind his punch that Louis has developed.

However, even Tunney might have won applause and turned the attention of boxing people to the fine points of the game, had he cared to win popularity by continuing in the defense of his title.

When Gene retired, boxers forgot that Tunney had used science to overcome the greatest slugger of all time; they fell back into "sock" stage of boxing and there they remained, going from bad to worse, until Joe Louis, with his educated fists, stepped into the picture.

There may be another era of good boxing, if the fans and fighters see the light and follow in Louis' footsteps.

More About Detroit.

THE professional bettors have started out by making the Detroit Tigers favorites for the world series, at 7 to 10. The Cubs are even money.

That confuses amateur bettors, who think that if the Tigers are 7 to 10 the Cubs ought to be 10 to 7.

Just remember that your bookmaker's real business is "betting commissioner," and that the difference in the odds represents the commission he charges for handling your money.

If prices were maintained throughout at the figures quoted, the bookie would be making a commission of approximately 9 per cent. Usually, it is not possible for a commissioner to balance his books at a percentage of assured profit. Too often he winds up in the ruck with the rest of the bettors, with a sheet that shows he's merely gambling like his clients.

Not Good to "Coast."

"I LIKE the Tigers, but they have had it easy too long," explained Charley Burke, Pricemaker for Tom Kearney, today. "They may have become 'cold.' We know the Cubs are 'hot.' They're like the Braves of 1914. They'll be awfully hard to beat. But you have to make the Tigers favorites on their two-year record."

Certainly this club is the power team of either league, this year. Henry Edwards, statistician for the American League, has assembled a few figures which are interesting. For example, up to a recent date, the Tigers had:

Scored 10 or more runs in 24 games.

Made 16 hits or more in 12 games.

Scored five or more runs in an inning 28 times.

Won eight and lost five extra-inning contests.

Held the enemy to five hits, or fewer, 25 times this year, while Detroit has been held to this low figure only 13 times.

Won 15 shutout victories.

They also have Greenberg, baseball's greatest slugger. They have the goods, although the Cubs' tremendous push in the last few weeks of the season can't be forgotten. It is also a fact in which baseball men believe that a club which is traveling on the momentum of a hard and successful pennant race, is a better world series contender than one which won eased up.

The Cubs are especially fortunate in this particular, for they have had enough good pitchers to stand their pennant drive without wearing out their aces by working them out of turn.

MATTHEWS AND STILLMAN OFFERED MATCHES BY ARGENTINE PROMOTER

George Wilsman, manager of Al Stillman, light heavyweight, and Allen Matthews, middleweight, announced yesterday that he had received offers for the services of the two men from a promoter in Buenos Aires, Argentina. He replied asking further particulars.

Stillman is again under the direction of Wilsman as the recently reported offer of the 20th Century Sporting Club to buy his contract was withdrawn.

GOPHERS DEFEAT NORTH DAKOTA IN OPENER, 26 TO 6

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 28.—A mere shadow of its great 1934 national championship eleven, Minnesota tested for strength today but found only disappointing weakness in a 26 to 6 victory over North Dakota State's football machine.

More than 34,000 fans turned out hoping to see another Kostka, a Lund or a Larson at Memorial Stadium but saw instead a team that lacked the spirit that marked the 1934 aggregation, and witnessed with misgivings a startling absence of hard, accurate blocking, and smart charging play.

Only in the final period did the Gophers step to the front with a passing attack in which a couple of newcomers, Dwight Reed, Negro end, and Ray King, another end, showed possibilities. The power of last year's team was missing and only through the air could the Gophers chalk up points after counting in the first period with Roscoe's plunge through the line from the four-yard mark.

Minnesota, which made 12 first dows to three for North Dakota, was without the services of Julius Alfonse, regular half last year.

CHANCERY WINS BEST RACE AT ROCKINGHAM

SALEM, N. H., Sept. 28.—Before a crowd of 15,000 enthusiastic race fans who turned out despite the steady rains and cold winds at Rockingham Park today, Johnny Stout booted home Chancery in the fifth race, winning the General Green Handicap and a purse of $3800.

M. Madden's three-year-old chestnut gelding had his own way the whole distance after reaching the quarter pole. Stout brought him home easily two and a half lengths in front of the Belair Stud entry, Gallant Prince, who fought it out with the Goldenrod Stable entry, Hardware, all the way, but opened a lead in the stretch and took the place by two and a half lengths.

White Sox 6-3, Tigers 3-8.

Navy Opens With a 30-0 Victory

By the Associated Press

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 28.—Worried for a time by William and Mary's stubborn fight, the big guns of the Navy finally began booming to send the Sailors off to a fine start on their 1935 season with a 30 to 0 victory over the Virginians before 12,000 spectators.

SIX RACING EVENTS ARE SCHEDULED TODAY AT ESQUIRE TRACK

Esquire racetrack, located at Upper Creve Coeur Lake in St. Louis County, will hold a program of six racing events this afternoon. The first race is scheduled to start at 2:30.

Jack Robinson and Harold Moore, in charge, threw open the track a week ago with a combination of running, trotting and pacing events. However, the trotters and pacers failed to make much of a hit as Legion activities overshadowed most sporting events, the two decided to hold up further racing until today and then stage running events only.

A five-eighths mile event has drawn a field that includes Our Sweetheart, owned by Robinson, and Indian Boy, owned by C. Ellis.

Another sprint event, the half-mile opening number, has drawn such sprinters as Mida Bell, another horse from the Robinson stable; John Howe's Mamyan, J. Matthews' Casus; C. D. Selby's Good Time May, and Mike Duffy's Creve Coeur Lad.

A three-quarter mile race is headed by the entry of two horses from the stable of Harry Stutz, Bourbon Lad and Tinny Wood.

The sixth event on the program will be a novelty race for mules.

Following today's reopening running programs will be held each week-end throughout the fall, as long as weather permits.

Cubs Had Too Many Aces for Cards.

THE Cubs who knocked the Redbirds out,
Have proved to be, beyond a doubt,
The class of the N. L.
Before the men of Charley Grimm
Whose chances had been counted slim
Our doughty champions fell.

Although the finish was so sad
The Redbirds gave the best they had,
Which wasn't good enough.
The Cubs came through without a pause,
And beat the Cardinals because
Their pitchers had the stuff.

Day after day, week after week,
Chicago staged a winning streak
That had the world amazed.
Though Dizzy tried to stem the tide
The Cubs just took him in their stride,

The Cards and Giants set the pace
And when they'd tired in the race
The Cubs began to run.
They finally assumed the lead,
As day by day they gathered speed,
And on momentum won.

A Breathing Spell.

Oh, well, a world series crowd coming right on the heels of the American Legion would have put a pretty tough strain on the latch string.

Besides the Legionnaires in their frenzied hunt for Elmer mislaid the key to the city. Time out while a new key is being made.

The best we can squeeze out of the 1935 National League pennant race is a little reflected glory.

Charley Grimm is a St. Louis boy. Yes, we said a boy.

Charley Root, in a way, is another St. Louis "boy." Charley got his first major league start with the Browns 14 years ago.

We congratulate the Cubs and also extend our felicitations to the Washington Bears who put McKendree over the jumps.

Having won the first round in their "suicide" schedule the Bears will take a new lease on life.

The Cubs celebrated their victory by cutting off each others' pants. Owner Wrigley poured and a barrel of fun was had by all.

Centre College is out with another good football team this year. With nothing but "a punt, a pass and a prayer," "the praying Colonels" stopped "Dynamite Dave" Smuckler cold and had "Pop" Warner's Owls extend to the limit to win out in the last three minutes of play.

The Browns are the unhappiest baseball team in the United States. Just as they were beginning to enjoy themselves the season closed right in their face.

Bring a Hammer, Jim.

center, and then Wilcox skirted the end for eight yards and a run that looked like a touchdown until Krause brought him down.

FIRST QUARTER.

Creighton calling won the toss and chose to defend. Rossini kicked 50 yards to Bush, who returned 20 yards to Creighton's 40-yard line. On the first play, Klem passed 51 yards to Wilcox, putting the ball on the St. Louis 10. Klem hit tackle for four, but the ball was called back and Creighton was penalized five yards for offside. On a short heave, Klem passed to Bockmueller and it was good for eight yards. Wilcox took it to the one-foot line in two tries, where the St. Louis line held for downs, following which St. Louis punted out to Creighton's 25-yard line.

Klem passed 40 yards to Bockmueller, who stood on his own goal line for a touchdown, and when Mitchell broke through to block the kick which followed, the score was Creighton 6, St. Louis 0.

Bockmueller kicked 50 yards to Hudson, who returned 15 yards to his own 33. Creighton was penalized for offside and then Hudson and Herrmany hit the Creighton line for a first down. Herrmany had replaced Kloepper, who was injured the play previously. A pass, Hudson to Wood, was good for 23 yards. In a cleverly executed lateral, Drone passed to Wood for 15 yards. Hudson and Wood hit the Creighton line for six yards. On the fourth play, five Creighton players grounded Hudson's pass over the goal line, Creighton getting the ball on its 20-yard line. Drone caught the kick and was downed in his tracks on his own 46.

Busch intercepted Wood's pass, but Creighton was offside. Herrmany and Drone made six and then St. Louis was penalized five yards. Hudson kicked outside on Creighton's 20-yard line. Herrmany broke up a long Creighton pass. The St. Louis line was a stone wall, yielding only three yards in three attempts. Nelson punted, but the ball was called back and St. Louis penalized 15 yards for roughing the kicker. The Billiken forward wall held and then on the fourth down Nelson fumbled and recovered on his own 32. Herrmany and Hudson each made three yards on end runs. Hudson's lateral to Herrmany was knocked down to end the quarter.

SECOND QUARTER.

Drone slid off tackle for a first down. Herrmany made seven on the same type play. Hudson leaped over center for a yard. Hudson was thrown for three yards. A long pass, Wood to Drone, was incomplete, and it was Creighton's ball on its 13-yard line.

Three Creighton line plunges netted five yards. Busch kicked 40 yards to Herrmany, who returned to his 48. St. Louis was penalized five yards for excessive times out. Creighton's line held and Hudson kicked 50 yards to Creighton's five.

Busch kicked 40 yards to Nunn, who was downed on the Creighton 38. Mayer fumbled and Creighton got the ball on its own 45. Busch made eight off tackle. They battled along, back and forth, and on a fourth down, eight to go, the ball on St. Louis 38, Zuercher kicked outside on St. Louis' five yard line. The kick was good for 46 yards.

Drone hit center for seven. Drone tossed a lateral to Harris which was good for seven yards and a first down. Nunn made three off tackle. Nunn's long pass to Harris was incomplete. Nunn punted 40 yards to Schmidt. The ball was put in play on the Creighton 40. Busch and Wilcox hit the Billiken line for seven yards, which then held. Zuercher punted 40 yards to Drone, who returned 35 yards. He was almost away when stopped by Busch. Schmidt intercepted Harris' pass. The ball was on Creighton's 38 at the half.

THIRD QUARTER.

Bockmueller kicked off to Mitchell, who fumbled, Creighton recovering on St. Louis' 30. Zuercher passed over center to Bockmueller for 11 yards. Wilcox went around end for eight yards. Vincequerra got three more through center. Vincequerra and Wilcox hit the line for two each. Vincequerra put the ball on the Billiken 3, fourth down. On a fake kick formation Schmidt passed the ball to Bockmueller who ran for a touchdown, but the referee ruled the ball was grounded when Schmidt's knee touched the ground.

St. Louis took the ball on its own eight. Kloepper's quick kick was blocked and Wilcox recovered on the Billiken 20 after a wild scramble. A line play failed, then Zuercher passed 14 yards to Schmidt over the line for a touchdown. Bockmueller's kick was good, making the score, Creighton 13, St. Louis U. 0. Both teams resorted then to strong defensive tactics and neither squad could make much headway, the third quarter ending with Creighton in possession of the ball on its 42-yard line.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Substitutions were numerous as the teams took the field for the fourth quarter. The Billikens made a threat, when, after Creighton punted outside to the St. Louis U 22-yard line, Drone twisted his way around end then cut across for eight yards. He was almost in the clear when he stumbled. It was one of the Billikens' best scoring chances—and it failed.

Punting was resorted to frequently during the remainder of the game, but without great advantage to either side. The Billikens fought like a team of wildcats, but could make no material advance, and the game ended with Creighton in possession of the ball on the Billiken 40-yard line and the score reading Creighton 13, St. Louis University 0.

got the ball on its own 45. Busch made eight off tackle. They battled along, back and forth, and on a fourth down, eight to go, the ball on St. Louis 38, Zuercher kicked outside on St. Louis' five yard line. The kick was good for 46 yards.

Drone hit center for seven. Drone tossed a lateral to Harris which was good for seven yards and a first down. Nunn made three off tackle. Nunn's long pass to Harris was incomplete. Nunn punted 40 yards to Schmidt. The ball was put in play on the Creighton 40. Busch and Wilcox hit the Billiken line for seven yards, which then held. Zuercher punted 40 yards to Drone, who returned 35 yards. He was almost away when stopped by Busch. Schmidt intercepted Harris' pass. The ball was on Creighton's 38 at the half.

THIRD QUARTER.

Bockmueller kicked off to Mitchell, who fumbled, Creighton recovering on St. Louis' 30. Zuercher passed over center to Bockmueller for 11 yards. Wilcox went around end for eight yards. Vincequerra got three more through center. Vincequerra and Wilcox hit the line for two each. Vincequerra put the ball on the Billiken 3, fourth down. On a fake kick formation Schmidt passed the ball to Bockmueller who ran for a touchdown, but the referee ruled the ball was grounded when Schmidt's knee touched the ground.

St. Louis took the ball on its own eight. Kloepper's quick kick was blocked and Wilcox recovered on the Billiken 20 after a wild scramble. A line play failed, then Zuercher passed 14 yards to Schmidt over the line for a touchdown. Bockmueller's kick was good, making the score, Creighton 13, St. Louis U. 0. Both teams resorted then to strong defensive tactics and neither squad could make much headway, the third quarter ending with Creighton in possession of the ball on its 42-yard line.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Substitutions were numerous as the teams took the field for the fourth quarter. The Billikens made a threat, when, after Creighton punted outside to the St. Louis U. 22-yard line, Drone twisted his way around end then cut across for eight yards. He was almost in the clear when he stumbled. It was one of the Billikens' best scoring chances—and it failed.

Punting was resorted to frequently during the remainder of the game, but without great advantage to either side. The Billikens fought like a team of wildcats, but could make no material advance, and the game ended with Creighton in possession of the ball on the Billiken 40-yard line and the score reading Creighton 13, St. Louis University 0.

By Herman Wecke.

If records for the 1935 season mean anything, then the world series between the Detroit Tigers and Chicago Cubs, beginning in Detroit next Wednesday, should be a hard fought affair, with the "breaks" likely to decide the winner.

About the only edge—that in the pitching line—belongs to the Cubs, mainly because of the sensational late season streak, which started after Labor day and brought the Cubs from third to clinch the pennant with 20 consecutive victories. Statistics show that the Bruin pitchers for the campaign have yielded 3.78 runs each nine innings, while the figures against the Tigers is 4.32 markers in each contest.

In team batting and fielding it's a tossup. The Tigers top the American League in hitting with an average of .290, while the Cubs pace the National with .289. In fielding it's .980 to .970 in favor of the Tigers. The Tigers lead their league, while the Cubs rank third.

Bruins' Pitching Sensational.

The work of Charley Grimm's pitchers during that winning streak which brought the team into the world series with 20 consecutive victories, the best in the majors in years, was little short of sensational. The opposing clubs were able to score only 45 runs, an average of 2.2 tallies a contest. Not only that, Grimm's starting pitcher was able to go the full route in 18 of the 20 battles. The Tiger hillmen, with the pennant cinched some time ago, have done nothing to equal this feat.

The sensational records of the Cubs' hurlers in this streak follows:

French	5	0	7	45	45
Lee	5	0	9	27	45
Warneke	4	0	8	28	38
Root	4	0	14	33	26
Carleton	1	0	1	4	9
Henshaw	1	0	6	12	10
Totals	20	0	45	141	172

Grimm has two 20-game winners on his staff in Lonnie Warneke and Bill Lee. Each has gained 20 decisions. Lee, who was sold by the Cardinals' Columbus farm to the Bruins, and incidentally had the honor of winning the battle that put the Chicago club in the world series, lost only six decisions, while Warneke was defeated 13 times. Tommy Bridges, with 21 triumphs, is the only member of the 20-game group with the Tigers. Schoolboy Rowe is just one behind with 19 victories to his credit against 13 defeats. Bridges has been beaten nine times.

The Two "Big Fours."

Each manager has a "big four." The Cubs quartet is made up of Warneke, Lee, Larry French and Charley Root. These four men have pitched 960 innings and in that time have yielded 381 runs, an average of 3.6 each nine rounds. Mickey Cochrane's "big four", of Rowe, Bridges, Auker and Crowder, has allowed 464 runs in 961 innings, an average of 4.32 a game. This appears to give the Cubs an edge as regards regular starters.

However, the efficiency records bring to light some interesting statistics. It's not the recognized big stars who are the leaders in this respect. For the Cubs, French, the southpaw obtained from the Pirates, is the leader with an average of 3.42, while Eldon Auker, the underhand righthander, shows the way way for the Tigers with 3.51. Of the regulars, Rowe is the only other member of the Detroit staff who has allowed fewer than four runs a game. Rowe's mark is 3.65. In addition to French, four other members of the Cubs have yielded fewer than four tallies a contest. They are Warneke, 3.51; Lee, 3.60; Henshaw, 3.62, and Root, 3.78.

In the matter of complete contests, there is little to choose. Cochrane's twirlers have gone the route on 85 occasions, while those for the Cubs have started and finished 83 times. The Tiger hill stars have 16 shutouts to their credit, with Rowe the leader with six, while the Bruins have blanked the enemy 12 times, French being credited with four.

Cubs' Reserves Better.

Aside from the "Big Four," the pitching edge goes to the Cubs, what with Henshaw and Tex Carleton, former Redbird, as the first string reserves, and Kowalik, Casey and Shoun as the others. Henshaw's record for the year is 12-5, while Carleton has won 11 and lost seven.

The Tigers' chief relief hurler is Elon Hogsett, the southpaw, who has been in 39 games this season, each time as a relief twirler. Roxie Lawson, the recruit from the A. A., who pitched shutouts in his first two American League games; Sorrell and Sullivan are Cochrane's other twirlers.

Among the other regulars, the Tigers with Hank Greenberg hitting .334 and owning 36 home runs, have the edge at first base. Phil Cavaretta, the 19-year-old youngster, who is covering the position for the Bruins, has a swat mark of only .271. At second base, its about even with Billy Herman hitting .336 and Charley Gehringer .324. Herman specializes in doubles, while Gehringer also can hit for distance. Each is a fine fielder. Rogell, at short for the Tigers, is hitting .276 to .244 for Jurgess, but he has only a slight edge as the Cubs' star is regarded a better fielder. Stanley Hack with .308 must be given the edge on Marvin Owen at third, inasmuch as the Tiger, who caused the "fruit shower" for Joe Medwick in Detroit in the final of the 1934 series, has dropped off badly in his hitting. Latest averages show him with only .260.

Series May Be Even Money Bet, New York View

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.

JACK DOYLE, Broadway betting commissioner, tonight quoted world series odds as 4 to 5 against Detroit and 11 to 10 against Chicago.

This would mean that a person betting on the Cubs would place $4 against $5 and one betting on Detroit would place $11 against $10, or sums in that ratio.

Doyle said he believed that by the time the series started it would be practically an even money bet, as he expected that further analysis of the Cubs' winning streak would boost their stock in the minds of persons who would back their choice with greenbacks.

Doyle said he himself favored the Cubs because of their pitching and fielding strength.

The work of the Cubs' outfield, made up of two first year men, Augie Galan and Frank Demaree, and Fred Lindstrom has played sensationally in the stretch drive. Galan is hitting .313, Demaree .334 and Lindstrom .272. Lindstrom, however, is a better player than this record indicates.

The Tiger regulars are Fox .320, Goslin .291, and White .242. The Cub reserve outfielders are Chuck Klein, hitting .292 and Stainback .259, while Gerald Walker, owning a .298 average is the extra meadowman with the Jungaleers.

Hartnett Outhitting Cochrane.

Although Gabby Harnett is hitting .346 to Manager Cochrane's .319, it's a tossup between the two. Each has a good reserve receiver, the Tigers in Hayworth hitting .305 and O'Dea with the Cubs, who has a swat mark of .273. The Cubs have Woody English as reserve infielder, and the Tigers Clifton and Schuble.

The Tigers are more experienced in world series play, but this, as previous series have shown, means very little in seven games.

SERIES SCHEDULE

The complete schedule for the world series is as follows:

Oct. 2 and 3—at Navin Field, Detroit.

Oct. 4, 5, 6—at Wrigley Field, Chicago.

Oct. 7, 8—if needed—at Navin Field, Detroit.

All games will start at 1:30 o'clock.

OKLAHOMA DEFEATS COLORADO U., 3 TO 0

NORMAN, Ok., Sept. 28.—Capt. Lawrence "Biff" Jones' Oklahoma Sooners made their bow today under his tutelage and turned back Colorado, 1934 Rocky Mountain Conference co-champions, 3 to 0.

Raphael Boudreau, sophomore backfield star of Purcell, Ok., placekicked the Sooners to victory in the second quarter.

His 18-yard forward pass to Jack Baer, Oklahoma's quarterback, took the ball to Colorado's 23-yard line. Boudreau then dropped back and booted the ball 35 yards for the winning margin.

Colorado outrushed and outpassed the Sooners, but the Oklahoma forward wall held time and again. It withstood a last-minute Colorado assault in the fourth quarter which saw Colorado work the ball to the Oklahoma seven-yard line only to lose it when three plays failed to gain an inch and Wagner's attempted place-kick went wide.

Cards End Cubs' Streak, Winning in 11 Innings

More Extra Innings.

Jess wasn't in there at the finish, however. Bill Walker broke into the game in time to profit by Medwick's four-bagger. Bill pitched the eleventh and held the enemy in check though Herman opened the frame with a single.

(That cocker spaniel is going to have to grow if he is to be big enough to haul some of those big mallard drakes into the blind. Guess a springer would be a stronger retriever at that).

The Cubs plainly showed that they wanted to run their winning streak to 22. The Cardinals scored three runs in the fourth inning when Rothrock singled, Medwick tripled, Davis and Durocher singled and O'Dea made a wild throw on an attempted double steal, but Chicago quickly rallied and Galan's triple, Herman's infield out and Chuck Klein's homer cut the St. Louis lead to a single run.

(Those Ozark hills will be wearing their best colors, soon.)

Then in the sixth Rothrock's bunt and Medwick's first four-bagger made the score 5 to 2 in the eighth, Larry French, the Chicago starting pitcher, retired for a pinch hitter and Fabian Kowalik finished.

Tomato Juice for Joe.

will be Rowe and Warneke in the first game, Bridge and Lee in the second and Auker and French in the third. Well, anyhow, those rude persons in the left field bleachers won't be able to throw their vegetables and fruit at oJe Medwick.)

Although the ball game didn't mean anything to either side, there was plenty of scrapping in the late innings. As Winford was knocked outby Cavaretta's single in the ninth inning, and Haines trudged from the bullpen, Captain Leo Durocher barked to Umpire Pinelli about the way that official had been calling balls and strikes, and Pinelli ordered Leo out of the game. So Frank Frisch, who had taken to the bench for a bit of rest after the race was decided, had to go out and play third base.

All Set on a Pointer.

(I'll take a setter, George. Some people like pointers. Say, they don't get chock full of cockle burrs. But setters don't get scratched up the way pointers do. And setters are so doggone smart. You ought to see mine. Say, he's got more sense than a lot of those dummies out there on the ball field, a helluva lot more.)

Medwick's two homers were part of the best day he's had since the club started this home stand that was so promising. He singled in the first inning, tripled in the fourth and hit homers in the sixth and eleventh. It's too bad he didn't get out of the slump two weeks ago.

How About Nov. 10th.

(George, if you really want to see a dog, a real dog, come out some time and get a load of my setter. I wouldn't trade him for all the pointers in the State. Boy, he's a pip. Let's see, from the 28th of September to the 10th of November it won't be long, George.)

EXTRA! Cards Stop Cubs!

FOURTH INNING — CARDINALS — Rothrock singled to left. Medwick tripled to left, scoring Rothrock. Collins flied to Demaree, Medwick scoring. Davis singled to center. Durocher singled to center, Davis stopping at second. Whitehead forced Durocher, Jurges to Herman. On an attempted double steal, Whitehead reached second and Davis scored on O'Dea's low throw, but Whitehead was out trying for third, Demaree to Hack. THREE RUNS.

SEVENTH — CARDINALS — Rothrock bunted safely toward third, for his third straight hit. Medwick hit into the left field seats for a home run, scoring behind Rothrock. It was Medwick's third straight hit. French threw out Collins. Hack threw out Davis. Durocher flied to Klein. TWO RUNS.

NINTH—CUBS—Whitehead threw out Herman. Klein singled to right. O'Dea singled to center, Klein stopping at second. Demaree tripled to center for his first hit of the series, scoring Klein and O'Dea. Cavarretta singled to left, scoring Demaree with the tying run. Haines replaced Winford on the hill for the Cardinals. Durocher was ordered out of the game by Umpire Pinelli for protesting his decision on balls and strikes. Frisch went to third base and Whitehead to short. Hack hit to Judy who tagged Cavarretta and threw to J. Collins for a double play. THREE RUNS.

NEBRASKA U. RUNS OVER MAROONS, 28-7

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 28.—Lloyd Cardwell, a lanky Cornhusker halfback, stole the show in which Jay Berwanger of the Maroons was given the star billing as the University of Nebraska defeated the University of Chicago, 28 to 7, here today in an inter-conference football game which opened the season for each team.

A record first game crowd of approximately 30,000 watched Henry Bauer take Berwanger's kickoff in the second quarter, pass the ball to Cardwell on a criss-cross play and rose to its feet as the fleet Cornhusker dashed down the side lines 86 yards for Nebraska's second touchdonw.

Berwanger scored the only touchdown for the Maroons in the second quarter. Cardwell's long run followed this, and he also scored in the first and third periods. Sam Francis, Nebraska fullback, scored the fourth touchdown for the Cornhuskers in the last period.

Browns Lose Twice To Indians, 3-0 and 7-3; Field Meet Today

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 28.—The Indians made short shift of the Browns in this afternoon's doubleheader winning, 3 to 0, and 7 to 3, behind the stellar pitching of Mel Harder and Lefty Lee, boosting their winning streak to 12 out of 13 games and clinching hold to third place.

It was Harder's twenty-second victory of the season against 11 defeats, and strangely enough he wound up his campaign as he started it with victory over the Browns. He beat the Browns on opening day, 2 to 1, in 14 innings. Today he had to be extra good, for Ivy Paul Andrews pitched a nice article of ball, his hopes being ruined in the first inning when Earl Averill connected for his nineteenth home run of the season with a man on. Russell Van Atta pitched the eighth.

Manager Hornsby pinned his faith to young Earl Caldwell in the nightcap but the hero of three victories for the Browns couldn't finish out the fifth against the Indians. Three of 10 hits off Caldwell were by Hal Trosky, all telling blows, especially his twenty-sixth homer of the season, with a mate on. Van Atta replaced Caldwell. Thomas pitched the eighth.

The rival teams close the season here tomorrow with a field meet between the players tossed in for good measure.

The first game will get under way at 1 o'clock with the field events carded in between games. There wil be eight events with $25 in cash awarded in each. The star performers on both teams will participate.

Monte Pearson and Dennis Galehouse will be the Cleveland pitchers with Jack Knott and Sugar Cain the likely St. Louis slabsters.

Fungo hitting for distance: Cleveland—Winegarner, Trosky, Hale, Wright, Vosmik. Browns—Solters, Hemsley, Clift, Hornsby.

DUKE RUNS ROUGHSHOD OVER SOUTH CAROLINA

DURHAM, N. C., Sept. 28.—Duke's powerhouse attack, fronted by a doughty line proved far too much for a lighter but scrappy South Carolina eleven today and the Blue Devils swept to an impressive 47-to-0 triumph.

Wallace Wade's men had complete command of the situation at every stage and the Palmetto State eleven never came near the Blue Devil goal.

BLEWETT DEFEATS WESTERN M. A., 7-0

JUDGE LEER, ODDS-ON FAVORITE, WINS FAIRMOUNT FEATURE

By Dent McSkimming.

The consistent Judge Leer, star of C. W. Pershall's stable, topped a most formful day's racing at Fairmount Park yesterday afternoon to the apparent satisfaction of a crowd of about 10,000. Judge Leer, a recent acquisition of the East St. Louis horseman, and trained by the former jockey, Tommy Root, had only one task before him after the field left the six-furlong starting gate, and that task wasn't a difficult one. Red Diamond, a comparative outsider, had stolen the lead and Jockey Polk kept him going at a great pace even around the turn. Captain Joy and Fayette Prince charged at him but Red Diamond refused to quit. Beyond the half-mile pole Jockey Hughes sent Judge Leer after the leader, and in spite of the fact that he had to go to the outside, the Judge left no question about his superiority. He caught and passed Red Diamond at the head of the stretch and he was going as he pleased at the finish.

Crowd as Large as Opening Day.

Making Bubbles, the reformed steeplechaser representing Trail's End Stable, was never a prominent factor in the field of six starters and finished last, outrun. Captain Joy got up just in time to stick his nose in front of the game Red Diamond for second money.

Fortunate Youth, Rapid Prince, and Harold Jr. were all heavily played winners.

Despite two days of rain, the track was drying out nicely after the third race, although the path next the inner rail remained heavy to the finish of the program. The crowd of 10,000 matched that of opening day, a week ago, and appeared more active at the mutuel betting windows.

The biggest shock the crowd suffered all afternoon came at the start of the fourth race when the field shot out of the five and one-half furlong gate leaving the heavily played favorite, Seven Up, standing still as a statue. The field was 20 lengths ahead before Jockey Kinnard could get his mount moving. Then Thistle Dust took command and might have won but Jockey Eppihimer held her close to the rail in the heavy going coming into the stretch whereas the others swung out into the dry center. Chianti came fast to win and Nervous Lady was third. The starts have been uniformly good and this was the only instance of a horse being left flat-footed at the post.

The opening race was notable mostly because of the extremely bad post conduct of Seth Polante and the stirring battle between Brooksie and Pass Christian for second place, at the finish. As to the winner, Rapid Prince, he needed the benefit of no racing accidents to win. Oxford Lad, fast at the break, led to the half-mile pole, where Jockey Lang sent Rapid Prince after him and at the stretch turn the Prince took firm hold and refused to let go.

Chagrin Runs Second.

Jockey Joe Dyer evidently knew just exactly what his mount in the second race, Chagrin, could do, for he wasted no effort in trying to outrun the pacemaker in the first half mile, but ran away from all of them in the last quarter. Westy's Twinkle fought it out with Bad Axe for half a mile, while Dyer held Chagrin in fourth position. Then, racing wide at the head of the stretch, where the footing was firmer than along the rail, Chagrin shot to the front and won going away. She was the favorite in the field of 12 and refunded $8.60 for $2.

There was never any doubt about the winner of the third race from the moment Starter Morrissey sent the field of 12 away from the gate. Harold Jr., hard-hustled by Jockey F. Slamey, broke fast and took a good lead. At the head of the stretch he lengthened it to four lengths, and at the finish he was out in front by half a dozen. St. Carl and Whizzing D. were the badly beaten second and third, the others nowhere close.

Fortunate Youth ran right around the leaders as they swung around the turn in the fifth race, and galloped up the home stretch an easy winner, despite the fact he took the long route. It appeared that he could have won by more than the length and a half margin which he held over Sarilla. Oddesa Beau was third, a very creditable showing and one that qualifies him for a victory soon.

Although it appeared he had much the best horse under him, Jockey R. Whittaker, astride Fortunate Youth, cut across the field so sharply in the head of the home stretch, that D. Edwards, on Wild West, was forced to pull up to avoid a spill. The stewards announced later that Whittaker was assessed a five-day suspension. This is the first suspension of the meeting.

Apprentice J. Donoho scored the first victory of his career when he took Aida's Pal around Sisko and Centennial to take the seventh race handily. Centennial was the leader for three-quarters of a mile and never did weaken, but Aida's Pal had a great deal more left for the stretch drive than the others. The refund on the winner was $11.80.

Durant of New York, which will compete here next Saturday afternoon in the fifth running of the Mississippi Gold Cup race. EASTERN HORSES WILL COMPETE IN BRIDLESPUR JUMPING RACES

Crack Eastern steeplechase horses will start for St. Louis from Meadowbrook, Long Island, in a special express car tomorrow for events on the Bridlespur Club's one-day racing meet next Saturday afternoon at Huntleigh Downs, corner of Denny and Clayton roads.

Two races have attracted the owners of the Eastern horses—the fifth annual running of the Mississippi Valley Gold Cup, at three miles over natural hunting fences, and the seventh running of the "Open-to-All," at two miles over brush fences.

Horses whose names are familiar in the steeplechase world will make up the shipment, which will include Charioteer, owned by Anderson Fowler of New York; Greatorex, owned by J. V. H. Davis of Long Island; Outlaw, Mullah and As Fair, owned by Benjamin Leslie Behr of Chicago; Axonby and Netta Run, owned by Mrs. Francis P. Garvan of New York, and Gil Blas, owned by T. W. Durant of New York.

Other horses will be added to the shipment at Washington, D. C., and Pittsburgh, en route to St. Louis.

Behr, who races his stable at all important steeplechase meets, won the Mississippi Valley Gold Cup last year with Outlaw, for his second leg on the cup, having first won with Hawkins in 1932. He will try to gain permanent possession of the trophy by entering his three best horses in the cup race Saturday.

Durant will be trying for his second leg on the trophy. He won in 1933 with Arcade, now owned and entered by a St. Louisan, E. M. Rowan.

The horses, on arriving late Tuesday, will be vanned to stables near the Bridlespur course and schooled for several days in preparation for the races here.

A field of at least 10 horses is expected to go to the post in the Gold Cup race.

Centrals to Meet Schumachers in Soccer Opener

The national champion Central soccer club will oppose the Schumachers at South Side Park, Kingshighway and Arsenal street in one of four games that open the St. Louis Soccer League schedule next Sunday, it was announced last night. In the other portion of the doubleheader at the South Side Park, the Spanish Sport Club will oppose the Hermanns, managed by Ed Delaney, formerly of the Carlstrom club.

At the same time, at Sportsman's Park, the Marre club will meet the German Sport Club in the first game and the Ben Millers oppose the Hellrung and Grimms in the second. Each of the eight teams in the rebuilt professional soccer league will play an equal number of games at each of the two parks in the course of the season, Phil A. Riley, league president, announced.

Oscar Mossmann, Jimmy Dunn, Ribby Murphy and Charley LaBarge will form the referee staff, each handling one game.

The admission charge at each park for the doubleheader will be 50 cents.

WOOD RIVER HIGH LOSES TO GILLESPIE

Gillespie defeated Wood River, 6 to 0, in a nonleague high school football game played yesterday afternoon at Gillespie. The winners scored the lone touchdown in the first period after a fumbled punt. Keck made a 16-yard run for the score and the try for the extra point by place-kicking was blocked.

Wood River moved the ball up to the one-foot line in the final period but there Gillespie held. The winners made six first downs to two for Wood River.

Blues' Game Off.

It was announced last night by Frosty Peters, who has taken over complete control of the St. Louis Blues since Clarence Howard and James "Bud" Yates withdrew, that the contest scheduled Wednesday night with the Chicago Gophers will not be played on that date. Peters will announce a list of opponents and plans for the season early this week. Meanwhile, the Blues, under the leadership of Peters and his assistant, Jack Corcoran, are drilling daily at Fairgrounds Park.

TWO FOOTBALL GAMES AS MUNY LEAGUE OPENS

Municipal Athletic Association football will get under way this afternoon at the drill grounds, near the Jefferson Memorial tennis courts, in Forest Park.

The first-round play will bring together the White Lines and the Mordie Wolfs in the first game, at 1:30. The second game, starting at 3:30, will be between the Quadrangle Club and the F. R. O.-Lennemann squad. Intercollegiate Football Association rules will prevail.

Independent football has been played in St. Louis for the past nine or 10 years, but there never was settled the question of which of the teams should be recognized as the city champion. Consequently the managers of several of these teams asked the Muny A. A. officials to sponsor the sport this season in order to determine a city champion.

Several players formerly prominent in high school and college circles will perform. Don Munch, who won all-America mention at Illinois in 1932, will be at quarterback for the Quadrangle Club that won the championship of the Greater St. Louis League last season.

Earl Hahn, an all-star player two years with Cleveland High; the Ritkewitz brothers and Jim Dunthy will be in the White Line team. The Lennemanns boast of Nick Knickels, all-star end of Central High; Jack Angle, all-city quarterback of Cleveland and Richard Hein of McBride.

Fred Jasorka's Mordie Wolf lineup will include a fast backfield in Bill Boston, Cleveland quarterback; George Peper, Cleveland fullback, and two Soldan halfbacks, Mike Kellerman and Harry Hill, while the line will show Joe Jablonsky, Bill Emmett, Moose Nisbet and William Lucky, among others.

RIDGEWOOD, N. J., Sept. 28.—Racing away to an overwhelming start in the first day's play of the international Ryder Cup golf matches, a team of American professionals today all but routed their British opponents by winning three out of four Scotch foursome matches.

The nature of the competition two-ball, alternate shots, wasn't the only thing Scotch about the opening session of the two-day biennial meeting between the golfers of the two nations. A Scotch mist, much like the Britons are used to at home, blanketed the 27-hole Ridgewood Country Club layout, but the mist and an accompanying drizzle turned out to be a boomerang for the invaders, who found the soupy greens practically unnegotiable.

English Win One Match.

Although denied a complete rout by virtue of a one-up 36-hole victory by the veteran Whitcombe brothers, Charles and Ernest, over Olin Dutra and Ky Laffoon, apparently nothing barring a complete reversal of form can now stop the Americans from recapturing the $15,000 gold cup taken by the Britons in England two years ago.

Eight singles matches, likewise at 36 holes, will close the show tomorrow. In order to clinch the cup, emblematic of the world's professional golf supremacy, Uncle Sam's representatives must win at least half of them. There was none, not even in the British camp, who would doubt the Yankees' ability to do this.

Veterans of all previous cup matches, Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazen, blended their talents to set the pace for their younger teammates. First to tee off in the morning, Hagen and Sarazen covered the first 18 holes in par 71 to stand five up on Alf Perry, British open champion, and 23-year-old Jack Busson. The Americans maintained that advantage through the twenty-seventh, although slackening up the pace a bit, and then closed out on the thirtieth with a brilliant display of sub par golf.

Little Serves as Referee.

With Lawson Little Jr., British and American amateur champion, refereeing the match, Hagen sent chills down the spines of his opponents and thrills up the spectators' collective back when he holed out from 15 feet for a birdie three on the twenty-eighth. Sarazen delivered the knockout on the thirtieth green, where he tamed a ticklish curling putt into the hole from 15 feet for a deuce.

The most lop-sided American victory was turned in by young Paul Runyan, American pro champion, and tall and willowy Horton Smith. They were only one over par for the 28 holes it took them to knock out Bill (Wiffy) Cox and Ted Jarman by the count of 9 and 8—one of the most one-sided victories in the eight years' history of the cup competition. While Smith was a bulwark on long-range firing, it was really Runyan's deadly accurate chipping and putting that accounted for the sizeable victory.

Revolta and Picard Let Up.

Revolta and Picard, regarded as Uncle Sam's outstanding combination, ran up a lead of seven holes on the highly fancied Britons, Alliss and Padgham, at the halfway mark, and then let up slightly and won, 6 and 5.

The Whitcombe brothers are two of Johnny Bull's cagiest combination players, and they never let the former American open champion and his young Western partner get too far out of hand. They turned the morning round all even, the Whitecombes bagging a pair of birdies on the fifteenth and sixteenth, by running down putts of 12 and 8 feet to wipe out a two-hole deficit.

They remained all square through the twenty-sixth, but Dutra moved the ball addressing it and then, playing out of turn, hit it again to forfeit the hole. Thus the British headed down the final stretch one up. The Americans pulled up level at the thirty-fourth, where the Britons became temporarily erratic. The seventeenth was halved.

Laffoon Shoots Into Rough.

Laffoon hooked his drive into the rough. The ball became entangled in deep and thick underbrush. Dutra played safe and extricated onto the fairway. Laffoon slightly hooked a spoon and the ball stopped on the fringe of a deep trap a few feet short and to the left side of the green. Olin's chip rolled a couple of inches past the cup, but the damage already had been done. The Whitcombes had their ball eight feet to the right of the pin in two and Ernest almost holed out.

Dodgers Buy Player.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28. — The Brooklyn Dodgers of the National Professional Football League yesterday announced the purchase of Wilbur White from the Chicago Cardinals. White was a clever passer and runner in the Rocky Mountain conference.

EAGLES MUST OPERATE OR LOSE FRANCHISE, LEAGUE RULES

TORONTO, Sept. 28.—President Frank Calder of the National Hockey League ruled today that the St. Louis Eagles must continue to participate in the league this winter or give up their franchise.

Request for suspension of the Eagles' franchise for one year, made by Redmond Quain, club representative, was rejected at the annual meeting of the league.

Quain said he had been offered $30,000 for his roster of 23 players but that he considered the offer too low. He had asked $100,000 for his team, he said.

Because of the unsettled condition of the St. Louis club the drawing up of a schedule had to be deferred. The question of referees was left in the hands of Calder.

The meeting approved an arrangement whereby each referee will have authority to call an offence anywhere on the ice, whereas heretofore the two officials were allowed to call play for a breach in the rules only in their own territory.

Disposition of the Eagles has been the chief talk of the St. Louis hockey fans through the summer. It had been reported that the team dropped a considerable sum of money here last winter but this statement was not borne out by claims of the management last winter.

It was stated that the team could operate for $125,000 for the season and reports of receipts from attendance and for sale of players would approximate $115,000. So, for a team which was able to win but 12 games all season and which signalized its entry into the city by losing 12 of its first 14 games this was not considered so bad.

A group of St. Louisans made an offer for the club this season but it was rejected. It was reported that the Ottawa owners planned to suspend the franchise and rent out the players. Now if the league rules stand it means that the Ottawa people will have to take what they can get for the team or lose what they have in it. So it is possible the team may be seen here again this winter although the Flyers, the minor league St. Louis team, recently closed a lease for the use of the Arena.

McKinley Defeats C. B. C., 7 to 0

Julius Blanke, McKinley fullback, crashed over from the three-yard line in the first quarter with the touchdown that defeated Christian Brothers College, 7 to 0, last night on the Brothers' field. A crowd of about 1000 saw C. B. C. go down on its second defeat this season.

Using straight football, the Goldbugs began their touchdown attack from the C. B. C. 38-yard line. After Blanke carried the ball over, Bill Hawkins place-kicked the extra point.

ST. LOUIS INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE TEAMS LOSE TO KANSAS CITY NINES

Industrial League teams from Kansas City were victorious in both ends of a doubleheader yesterday afternoon. The Foukes lost to Procter-Gamble, 8 to 4, and the Gaylords were defeated by the Phillips team, 7 to 3.

The Foukes were Division No. 1 champions of St. Louis, while the Gaylords won Division No. 2 in the Industrial League.

At one time in the game against Procter-Gamble, the Foukes had a 4-to-3 lead, but the Kansas City team tied it in the fourth and went ahead in the fifth, scoring a run in each inning. The Phillips nine took a 2-to-1 lead after two innings and the Gaylord team did not threaten until the ninth, when it scored twice.

TWO ROWING RACES ON MISSISSIPPI TODAY; QUINCY CREWS ENTERED

The rowing season will close this afternoon with a dual regatta in the harbor of the Central Rowing Club, at the foot of Angelica street, with Central playing host to the South Side Boat Club of Quincy, Ill.

Two races will be rowed, a junior four and an open single sculls. In the four, Central's crew of John Bett, bow; Lee Henderson, No. 2; Wilbur Kerls, No. 3, and Stroke Forrest Kleberger, that won the first race it ever rowed here three weeks ago and then tied Quincy at Quincy two weeks ago, will again take the water. In the singles, John Anderson, 1932 Olympic star of Central, will stroke against the Quincy veteran, George Hussong.

Bumper Harvest of Fingerlings.

BUMPER crops of fish from all State fish hatcheries are reported by Dr. G. B. Herndon, Chief of Hatcheries of the Missouri State Game and Fish Department, as the annual harvest gets under way.

The largest production of game fish fingerlings in the history of the Lake Taneycomo hatchery at Branson has been reported by Lee Fowler. The output totaled 730,000 fingerlings, more than double the previous record.

Few bass were raised in the Branson hatchery in accordance to Dr. Herndon's policy of keeping these cannibals from other fish as much as possible. Crappie and blue gill sunfish comprised the majority of the harvest. These were placed in Lake Taneycomo and tributary streams in Stone and Taney counties.

Most of the fish harvesting will be completed within the next three weeks, after which the fish hatchery department will start its trout culture about Nov. 1, on which date the trout fishing season closes.

Trout breeding is confined to Bennett Spring State Park in Dallas and Laclede counties, and Roaring River State Park in Barry County and Montauk State Park in Dent County.

Fishing at Low Ebb.

Fishing during the last two weeks has been poorest of the year, anglers say. In some sections on lakes, especially, crappie have been biting but few catches of bass or jack salmon have been reported.

Duck Outlook Favorable.

Harry C. Shuttee, formerly a field agent for the American Game Association of Kansas City, has just returned to Missouri from Northern States and Canada with the report that the outlook for better duck shooting this fall is good.

"I found water conditions greatly improved over recent years and this has aided the breeding area conditions."

With a 30-day season in Missouri beginning Oct. 21, our duck shooting will depend a great deal upon weather conditions. Under usual conditions the first 10 days or two weeks of the coming season may not see a heavy duck flight but generally early November sees a big migration, especially mallards, in Missouri. With the right break in weather there seems little doubt that we will have better duck shooting than for several seasons."

Five-Day Hunt Opens.

Beginning today at Orscheln Heights, 20 miles north of Columbia, fox and coon dog men of the State will conduct a five-day series of hunts. The program of events as announced this week includes foxhound, coonhound and greyhound races, horseshoe tournament, trap shooting tournament, fly and bait casting tournaments, baseball, frog jumping contest.

Dogs winning the fox and coon races will be declared State champions, by the State Fox and Coon Hunters' Associations sponsoring the events.

Michigan Deer for Missouri.

Several head of Michigan deer are being shipped to the Gardner unit of the U. S. National Forests in Missouri in South-Central Missouri, where a 8960-acre game preserve to be known as the Blue Buck preserve, is being established under the direction of Robert F. Collins, ranger in the Willow Springs district.

Wild turkey, released last year on Spring Creek, southwest of Willow Springs, are doing well, the ranger reports.

From a stock of 80 birds furnished by the State Game and Fish Department last year, an increase of 350 is reported. Stream improvement work also is being done in the Gardner unit, which includes about 253,440 acres in Howell, Douglas and Ozark counties.

Read for Forest Fires.

With the fall forest fire season at hand, State and Federal forestry workers are urging all who go on field and stream to be careful with fire. Civilian Conservation Corps workers in Ozark camps already have been called out to fight several fires including one which threatened a portion of the popular Roaring River State Park in Barry County this week.

"A single lighted cigarette flicked from a motor car in the woody sections of the State or dropped by a careless sportsman may result in such a conflagration that thousands of acres of prime forest cover will be destroyed as well as bridges and rural homes," warns the State Game and Fish Department. "Destructive fires wipe out the natural food patches as well as causing thousands of dollars loss to valuable trees, so necessary to conserve the natural water supply of the State."

CLAYTON WINS OVER KIRKWOOD IN FIRST PERIOD

Francis (Bud) Harvey's 70-yard run on a line buck play in the final minutes of the first quarter gave Clayton High School's football team a 6 to 0 victory over the Kirkwood High eleven yesterday afternoon. The game was played at the Clayton Stadium.

Four times Kirkwood was in striking distance of the Clayton goal and each time was repulsed by the Clayton line.

Allen Brady and Ted Shanks, halfbacks for Kirkwood, showed ability in passing as well as long end sweeps while Elbring and Schaeffer were consistent in the backfield for Clayton. Line honors went to Tenny and Ducheck of Kirkwood and Campbell and Schulte of Clayton's front rank.

Principia Leads Knox College Out Of Wilderness

By the Associated Press.

GALESBURG, Ill., Sept. 27.—"The sons of Old Siwash"—namely Stevenson and Donaldson—kept the fair name of Knox College from going down into history as the undisputed holder of a record of 28 consecutive losses, when they led their team today in an 18 to 0 victory over Principia of Elsah, Ill.

The victory, the first victory for Knox in four years, left the local school tied with Hobart College of New York with 27 consecutive losses.

All three touchdowns were scored on "fluke" plays. In the first quarter Stevenson intercepted a Principia pass and raced 50 yards for a score. A Principia fumble on their own 10-yard line was recovered by Donaldson in the third quarter, and Gullet plunged over the few remaining yards on the next play.

Knox carried the ball down to Principia's two-yard line in the fourth quarter—and fumbled. The fumble was recovered by Stevenson over the goal line for the third touchdown.

Some of the cheer that might have been expected after snapping a losing streak of 27 games was dampened by the belief on the part of Knox fans their alma mater had "picked on a cripple." Knox outweighed Principia more than 10 pounds per man.

In addition to that—there was a general belief that the nine fumbles perpetrated by Knox might still have given them a new world's record of consecutive losses had not Principia outdone them with 13.

'WOMAN IN RED' RECEIVED $5000 DILLINGER REWARD

Mrs. Anna Sage Tells for First Time of Leading Gangster Into Trap — Fights Deportation.

Judge Issues Writ Blocking Return to Rumania—She Quotes Talks With Purvis and Cowley.

(Copyright, 1935.)

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—Mrs. Anna Sage, "the woman in red," declared today she put Dillinger "on the spot." Her statement was made after Judge John P. Barnes had issued a writ of habeas corpus that forestalled the Government's plans to send her to New York for deportation to Rumania.

Her story of the way she says the gang leader was trapped by the Government agents and shot to death on July 22, 1934, was given by her attorney, Thomas J. Johnson Jr.

In the statement she said Melvin H. Purvis, then head of the Department of Justice's Chicago Bureau of Investigation, promised he would have the Government's deportation charges against her dropped if she led Dillinger into the Government's trap.

She declared she received $5000 from the Government which Johnson said was her share of the Government reward.

Mrs. Sage was the woman in the red dress who walked out of the movie theater with Dillinger the Sunday he was shot to death by Government agents. With the outlaw was another woman, Miss Polly Hamilton, who lived with the 43-year-old Mrs. Sage.

Mrs. Sage Tells Her Story.

This story, as Mrs. Sage told it, follows:

"I knew Polly Hamilton for a number of years. She often visited my home in Gary and also in Chicago. In 1934, she came over with a gentleman and introduced him as Jimmy Lawrence. I never had seen this man before. After that they used to come quite frequently. I became suspicious, having seen Dillinger's picture in the paper. When I became convinced that he was Dillinger, I told her not to bring him to the house any more.

"They came afterward and she said that Lawrence would not go and see her at the hotel. I became very much afraid, and on Thursday, July 19, 1934, I met Martin Zarkovich, a police officer at Indiana Harbor. I told him I knew where Dillinger could be located and asked him what was the best thing to do. He said the best thing was to tell the Government. I said I wouldn't mind if the Government would help me out in my deportation case. He said he would look into the matter and contact me later.

Meets "a Mr. Purvis."

"On Saturday, July 21, 1934, Martin called and said to meet him. He introduced me to a Mr. Purvis with the Government.

"Mr. Purvis assured me in the presence of Martin that if I gave the information and it would prove true that he would guarantee me that the Government would drop the deportation case.

"I then told him that Dillinger came with Polly Hamilton to my house quite frequently. He asked me when they were coming again and I said I didn't know but it might be Sunday night. He said that when they came I should call him.

"On Sunday, July 22, 1934, Polly and Dillinger came up. On pretext of going to get some groceries I went to the store and phoned Purvis at ANdover 2330. He gave me the private number the day before.

Followed to Show.

"He asked me what we were going to do. I said I didn't know but thought that we might go to a show as usually we did. He asked what show. I said I didn't know.

"He said he would have the house watched and follow. About 8 p. m. Dillinger, Polly and I went to the Biograph Theater. There were some men around and I saw Purvis in the distance. I didn't give any sign of recognition nor did Purvis give any sign of recognition. We went to the show and stayed there about two hours.

"When we came out we started to walk east on Lincoln avenue. I was alongside of the building. Miss Hamilton was next and Dillinger was on the outside next to the curb. When we got near the National Tea Store I saw Purvis.

"I stepped to one side—then I heard shooting and saw Dillinger fall.

Goes to See Cowley.

"Dillinger's girl pulled me to one side and we went down to my house. I didn't hear anything until Monday night when I got a call from Zarkovich and I went downtown and saw a Mr. Cowley.

"I was nervous and crying. Cowley said I did excellent work and if it wasn't for me they would never have got Dillinger and that Mr. Purvis was very pleased.

"The following Tuesday, Cowley called me and told me to meet him downtown. I did, in the Stevens Hotel lobby. He told me to pack and leave town, to go home and pack and call him and tell him where I was going. We (Mrs. Sage and Polly Hamilton) left the next day with Government agents for Detroit.

Government Paid Expenses.

"We were there about a week and the Government paid all expenses. They then left Polly off in Michigan some place and brought me to Chicago.

"I moved immediately upon returning to Chicago. Cowley then suggested that I move again, take a trip. I said I had some cousins in California. They paid all my expenses to California and I remained there two months. While I was there, Cowley came and brought $5000.

"When I came back, I called him and told him I was back, and he said: 'Be careful. Babyface Nelson's around!'

"The next time I heard of Cowley, a week later, he had been killed."

V. P. BALL OCT. 9 IN TOYLAND SETTING

Wooden Soldier Guard, Story Book Pages for Doors and Shell for Throne.

The Veiled Prophet will hold his fifty-sixth annual ball in "Toyland" at the Coliseum on the night of Oct. 9, with wooden soldiers for royal guards, a seashell for a throne and the open pages of story books for doors.

In this setting about 100 ladies of honor and 50 maids of honor will await the new Queen. The Prophet and his Queen will occupy a throne at the south end of the hall. Behind the throne will hang a curtain representing the sky, in which will be seen the cow jumping over the moon.

On a lower platform will be grouped the ladies and maids of honor and the Crewe. A flight of golden stairs will lead from this platform to the dance floor. Decorations will include story book trees, jack-in-the-boxes, elephants and wooden soldiers.

A story book of white and gold will unfold to admit the Prophet, his court and his Queen. A blue canopy will form the ceiling of the hall. The floor will be white and the boxes and columns will be draped in gold and silver.

As has been told, "Toyland" will be the theme of the parade on the night of Oct. 8. The Prophet will lead the procession of 20 illuminated floats manned by 150 masked members of the Crewe. There will be animated mechanical toys, Santa Claus' workshop, dolls, a toy circus, jack-in-the-box, wooden soldiers, lollypops, Punch and Judy, sailboats and other characters and objects dear to children. As is customary, the parade will start at 7:15 o'clock from the Den, Ranken avenue near Laclede, and traverse five miles of central and downtown streets.

NEW YORK NOISELESS NIGHTS

Mayor LaGuardia to Proclaim Dates in October.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—In an effort to tone down the noise that roars up and down Manhattan, Mayor LaGuardia announced today that he will proclaim "noiseless nights" during October.

The noise abatement campaign will be supported by police, school and health authorities, educational groups—even the milk companies whose horse-drawn wagons hitherto have clattered noisily through city streets. Milk-wagon horses will wear rubberized shoes, and iron-rimmed wagon wheels will be replaced by pneumatic tires. Police Commissioner Valentine issued an order to New York's 18,000 police on noise offenders.

$800 MINIMUM PAY URGED FOR PASTORS OF M. E. CHURCH

Recommendation Made in Committee Report to Southern Illinois Conference at Marion.

By the Associated Press.

MARION, Ill., Sept. 28.—Declaring "The church as an employer of labor must apply those principles of justice which it has itself preached, but has sometimes lost from sight in its administration and practice," Dr. W. P. MacVey, East St. Louis, today recommended an $800 minimum salary for Methodist-Episcopal pastors.

The recommendation was made in a committee report to the Southern Illinois Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in annual session here.

The minimum wage plan, as well as a plan to raise a $1500 sustainance fund for those falling under the minimum wage, such as students of the conference or part time workers will be referred to a committee of nine for further investigation during the year, which will report its findings at the annual conference sessions at Mount Carmel next year.

Commenting on the report of the special minimum wage committee, Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf said he felt the committee should make its study on the basis of a $1000 minimum because "a thousand dollars for an efficient clergyman is not too much and $800 is rather skimpy."

WELFARE GROUP SEES RETURN OF SPIRIT OF OPTIMISM

Catholic Body's Report Ready for National Conference on Charities.

PEORIA, Ill., Sept. 28.—Directors of welfare work of the Catholic Church today reported a survey showed a return of the "spirit of optimism" and indications that the nation was "on the way out of the depression." Their findings will be presented to the four-day meeting of the National Conference of Catholic Charities opening here tomorrow. About 4000 delegates will receive the report.

Government undertakings were commended in the report. Need for recedying defects in the economic system, placing some restraint on industry, and establishing permanent public works and relief programs were cited, but the necessity of financing future aid to the needy from current tax revenues was stressed.

The administration was commended for its efforts to bring security to marginal farmers and wage earners and for setting up the CCC and the National Youth Administration. Private charity was urged to see that the Federal security program wins co-operation from states and communities.

ARRESTED IN DENVER ACCUSED OF MURDER IN MISSOURI

Ex-Soldier in Hospital Denies Killing Stepfather in 1933; Will Waive Extradition.

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 28.—Emmeete Smith, 26 years old, a tuberculosis patient here, was arrested today at the request of Reynolds County (Mo.) authorities, on an indictment charging murder in connection with the shooting of James J. Radford, Ellington, Mo., minister, Aug. 9, 1933.

Smith, a stepson of Radford, denied any connection with the shooting, but said he would waive extradition. He was formerly a member of the Thirtieth Infantry, and has been under treatment in Fitzsimmons General Hospital here.

Radword was shot from ambush on his farm by an unidentified assailant. His daughter, Ruby, said the killer fired two shots from bushes near the Radford barn.

J. L. Huett, Prosecuting Attorney of Reynolds County, said last night Smith would be returned for trial.

SUITOR WHO KILLED GIRL SURRENDERS

Hurt Hardy Admits Shooting Her Near Ste. Genevieve Because She Rejected Him.

STE. GENEVIEVE, Mo., Sept. 28.—While a posse of 30 men followed bloodhounds through wooded hills near here in search for him, Hurt Hardy, 26-year-old lime kiln worker, surrendered to Sheriff Henry J. Drury late today. Officers said he admitted shooting to death Miss Ethel Fenestock, 18, because she spurned his attentions.

"He admitted he killed the girl. He tried to twice before," said the Sheriff. "It was a love affair, but she wouldn't go with him."

Lying in wait at the barn behind the Fenestock home, seven miles west of Ste. Genevieve early today, Hardy fired three shots from a 12-gauge shotgun as Miss Fenestock, on her way to do the milking, passed 20 feet away. She died two hours later.

As the girl's father, George Fenestock, a lime-kiln foreman, ran toward the barnyard on hearing the shots, Hardy fled, shouting, "I'll attend to you all later."

Returning to his home, Sheriff Drury reported, Hardy told his mother, Mrs. Bert Hardy, that he had shot the girl. He filled a small satchel with shells for his shotgun and left, announcing he was "going to the woods and wait for them to come after me."

For the last three mornings, Sheriff Drury said, Hardy had left his home at an early hour, taking his gun and saying he was going squirrel hunting.

Opposite these figures will be listed up-to-the-minute estimates of how much is to be spent.

The January budget forecast collections of 47 cents for every dollar expended. To date Treasury figures show that collections have been 54 cents for every dollar spent.

MISSOURI BAR'S CRIMINAL CODE REFORM PLANS

Convention Votes for Action Through Supreme Court Rules Rather Than Legislature.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 28.—Reform of the Missouri criminal code through the rule-making power of the State Supreme Court rather than through a hostile Legislature and organization of a Missouri Conference on Crime to carry out an adequate program for improved administration of criminal justice were recommended here yesterday at the annual convention of the Missouri Bar Association by the Committee on Legal Aspects of Criminology.

Although the committee stated in its report, which was adopted by the association, that it believed the most direct and expeditious means of improving the code of criminal practice and procedure was by means of rule of the Supreme Court, it outlined additional suggestions for consideration by the proposed Crime Conference.

These were for a better form of co-ordinated control of local law enforcement agencies through a State department of justice and extension of the functions of the State police; better co-operation between enforcement agencies of Missouri and those of other states by interstate compact; strengthening and co-ordinating the resources of home, school and community for child training; improved administration of parole and pardon for persons in penal institutions.

Pardons and Paroles.

With reference to the last suggestion, the committee's report urged recognition of the eight minimum conditions for pardons or paroles as recommended by the United States Attorney-General's Conference on Crime.

These were that paroles should be granted only by a full-time salaried board of qualified persons; information as to the prisoner's record and prospects should be available to the board; names of all persons indorsing a prisoner for parole should be made public at the request of the press or any responsible person or organization; no parole should be granted without provision for employment and supervision; adequate appropriation should be made for obtaining information and furnishing supervision; one parole officer should be required to supervise only a limited number; no political or other improper influence should be tolerated; machinery should be provided for prompt revocation of parole where continued liberty is against public interest.

Conference on Crime.

The committee suggested that membership of the proposed Missouri Conference on Crime should include law enforcement officials, members of the bench and bar, representatives of social, civic and public agencies and such others to be selected by the president of the Missouri Bar Association as would insure representation of all points of view.

In a general discussion of its suggestions, the committee expressed the opinion that it was the primary responsibility of the State Bar Association to "take the administration of criminal law out of the realm of strategy and maneuver and make criminal procedure a genuine, simple and expeditious attempt by the court, prosecutor and defense attorney to ascertain the truth."

Criminal Procedure.

Reviewing the history of unsuccessful attempts at criminal code reform through the Legislature, the committee said that to expect sympathetic treatment of any adequate program of reform might be presented to the next Legislature was but a fatuous hope.

"Missouri's code of criminal procedure, now 100 years old, is literally a product of the frontier," the report said. "It is a code which did not contemplate the organized crime we now have in our midst, rapid transportation, large centers of heterogeneous population and the complex social, economic and political factors which make our crime problem entirely different.

"Yet for the past 20 years efforts of laymen and lawyers alike to secure improvements in the code by legislative action have been almost complete failure. We believe the situation calls for alternative methods.

Group Recommendation.

"We recommend that our committee be continued and authorized to tender its co-operation to the Supreme Court's Judicial Council to determine whether a code of criminal practice and procedure shall be submitted for adoption by the State Supreme Court."

Members of the committee are Leland Hazard, chairman; Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller of St. Louis; Arthur J. Freund, former member of the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners; Allen McReynolds, Frank C. Mann, Laurance M. Hyde, M. M. Milligan and Will H. D. Green.

Ryland, State director of the National Emergency Council, and Clifford Shoemaker of Omaha, Neb., district engineer for the United States Bureau of Public Roads.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Charles F. Hosford Jr. of Pittsburgh, Pa., was elected today chairman of the new Bituminous Coal Commission, a five-man board created by the Guffey Coal Stabilization Act. The commission will supervise the marketing provisions of that law, setting up a "Little NRA" for the bituminous industry.

Hosford, in a statement, said the commission would undertake formulation of the code of fair competition the act provides for, beginning work next week on the rules for the election of the district boards to fix coal prices. Prices must be approved by the commission before they are effective. They are to be correlated between districts.

PENNSYLVANIA LEGISLATOR CONVICTED ON GRAFT CHARGES

Jury Finds State Senator Offered to Back Bills in Exchange for Business.

By the Associated Press

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 28.—State Senator William H. Clark, Chester County Republican, was convicted on four counts of extortion and malfeasance by a jury in the Dauphin County Court today.

Clark was charged with offering to "put through" several administration bills in return for State insurance business. He was chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee. The barter offer was made to Attorney-General Charles J. Margiotti and Secretary of Revenue Harry Kalodner. The Senator pleaded he was just "fishing for information" when he made the offer.

The jurors had listened for four days to charges and counter charges during which Kalodner and David L. Lawrence, Democratic State Chairman, were accused by defense witnesses of having solicited Republican votes in exchange for political patronage.

Two Republican Senators, Peter Graff III, Armstrong, and Dr. Leroy Chapman, Warren, testified Lawrence frequently solicited Republican votes and had approached them with offers of patronage.

DR. BUTLER CHAMPIONS IDEA OF DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE

In Letter Urges Consolidating Army and Navy; Expects Fight From "Armchair" Officers.

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Consolidation of the war and navy departments into one department of national defense was urged today by Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University.

But, he added in a letter to Representative Stefan (Rep.), Nebraska "to bring about this reform will be no easy job, for the armchair admirals and generals in Washington and their sympathizers in the Senate and House Committees on military affairs and naval affairs have great influence and will be unceasing in their opposition."

Stefan said he planned to introduce legislation to bring about the consolidation at the next session of Congress.

"Since we have officially renounced war, as an instrument of national policy," said Dr. Butler's letter, "it is sheer hypocracy for us to continue to maintain a huge navy, to say nothing of the extravagance involved."

DEFAULT JUDGMENT AGAINST KATTELMAN CO. SET ASIDE

United States District Judge Permits Firm to File Answer in Suit by Exchange Commission.

Federal Judge Davis set aside yesterday his decree entering a default judgment against the bankrupt H. J. Kattelman Co. in the injunction suit of the Securities and Exchange Commission and permitted the company to file an answer.

The decree was entered Sept. 6 because of the failure of the Kattelman firm to answer the commission's suit, which alleged it was an insolvent bucket shop. Counsel for Harold J. Kattelman, who is under State charges of embezzlement and operation of a bucket shop, pleaded their failure to answer was an oversight.

In another order yesterday Judge Davis denied the commission's application for a temporary injunction against the Kattelman firm. The Court pointed out that there was no necessity for it because the company has been adjudicated bankrupt.

BRENTWOOD AND GLENDALE APPROVE SEWER BOND ISSUES

Both Apply for WPA Grants for Part of Cost of Proposed Improvements.

The bonds will mature in 20 years and will cost the taxpayers 30 cents a year for each $100 assessed valuation.

Glendale passed an $80,000 bond issue for the construction of sanitary sewers, 481 to 50. The total cost of the system will be $263,000, of which $183,000 has been sought from the WPA.

CLARK TALKS TO STATE BAR ON CONSTITUTION

Senator Says Emergency Is No Basis for Nullification of Instrument.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 28.—A plea to preserve constitutional government in the United States was made tonight by United States Senator Bennett Clark, speaking before the Missouri State Bar Association here.

"The American people have been devoted to their Constitution," he declared. "They know that wise men conceived it, strong men have administered it, brave men have fought for it, heroes have died for it. It is my hope and belief that it will be long indeed before they consent to change the fundamental spirit in which it was conceived and the principles on which it was founded."

If the Constitution needs change, he said, "let us change it, but let us not authorize any constitution to be nullified at will by a mere declaration on the part of Congress that an emergency exists."

Constitution Open to Amendment.

The Senator declared, "I am not one of those who believe that the Constitution should be sacrosanct, as immutable as the laws of the Medes and Persians. The framers of the Constitution themselves wisely set up explicitly the means whereby the Constitution might be amended, cumbersome and difficult to be sure but capable as we have recently seen of being employed with amazing rapidity and completeness once the people have made up their minds. . . .

"But in the determination of the question of proposed changes the greatest consideration should be given to the question of whether or not the prospect of success of the proposed change is sufficient to justify us in abandoning a system of government under which we have enjoyed a century and a half of amazing progress and of general though by no means universal prosperity."

Clark declared the idea of "those who conceive it to be desirable to wipe out our whole system of government, to abolish the Constitution of the United States, destroy every right of liberty or property, eliminate state lines entirely and set up a system of unified state socialism . . . is obnoxious to an overwhelming majority of the American people." He said there were "more subtle methods of changing the structures of our Government."

Government Control of States.

He pointed out that the Federal Government had steadily expanded its control over states, "but the Supreme Court has established limitations beyond which these encroachments may not go.

"If now these limitations are to be removed and the whole subject of commerce turned over to the Federal Government, giving an official in Washington the power to fix the price of pressing a pair of trousers in Springfield and enforce his decree with criminal process, the state governments might as well be abolished and the expense of a duplication of administration thus be saved.

"I believe, as did the fathers of this republic, that government is better as it is closer to the people and more burdensome as it is further removed."

23 HOMES BOUGHT IN LAKE FOREST SINCE JANUARY 1

TRACT ALMOST COMPLETELY SOLD

Only 11 Lots Remaining of 124 Comprising Plat and Negotiations Are Pending for These

By Berry Moore.

Approximately 23 houses have been sold by builders in Lake Forest at the southwest corner of Clayton and Hanley roads since Jan. 1, surpassing all previous records in residential sales in one addition in St. Louis County during any similar period. In addition, several lots in the addition have been sold to individuals who have erected, or are now constructing residences.

A total of 78 houses has been built, including a number under construction, in the addition, placed on the market in the spring of 1929 by the Lake Forest Development Corporation. Varying in size from 10 to 14 rooms, the houses range in cost from $30,000 to $52,500.

Preston J. Bradshaw, architect, has recently completed three houses in the addition and has three more under construction, one of which has been sold from the drawings. These buildings, ranging in cost from $30,000 to $35,000, are being financed by the Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Real Estate Co.

All except 11 of the 124 lots comprising this residential layout have been disposed of and negotiations are pending for the remaining ones, according to officers of the Lake Forest Corporation. Listed prices of the lots range from $6500 to $10,000, according to size and location.

Comprises 60 Acres.

Developed on an impressive scale, Lake Forest embraces approximately 60 acres, with a frontage of 1150 feet on Clayton road and 2275 feet on Hanley. It lies upon the crest of a hill and is adorned with forest trees. The natural beauty of the tract has been enhanced by landscape work. Ravines were made into rock gardens. There are the winding drives of telford, with concrete gutters. Underground conduits carry light wires, telephone wires and gas mains, thus eliminating overhead wires. A modern sewage system has been completed. The tract forms one of the most imposing additions in St. Louis County.

Formerly known as Gay Villa, the early home of the late Mrs. Sophia Mitchell Crow, the tract was acquired in 1929 at approximately $5000 an acre by the Lake Forest Development Corporation, headed by Charles H. Huttig, with a large outlay for its development. Mrs. Crow was reluctant to sell the tract which was a wedding present from her father, the late Edward J. Gay. The Gay home, a 22-room Colonial structure, stood on part of the estate. It was the only remaining unexploited tract in close proximity to the city eligible for development on an ultra scale.

The property is being handled and developed under the supervision of William L. Gourley, director of sales for the Lake Forest Corporation, with the John P. Dolan Realty Co. as sales agents.

H. & R. CONCERN OPENS STORE AT 707 WASHINGTON AVENUE

Taken under a long lease, the new quarters of the H. & R. Liberal Credit Store, at 707 Washington avenue, were formally opened last week. The lease which is for a long time was arranged by Arthur S. Marlin & Son, representing Brandt estate.

CLARK TALKS TO STATE BAR ON CONSTITUTION

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 28.—A plea to preserve constitutional government in the United States was made tonight by United States Senator Bennett Clark, speaking before the Missouri State Bar Association here.

"The American people have been devoted to their Constitution," he declared. "They know that wise men conceived it, strong men have administered it, brave men have fought for it, heroes have died for it. It is my hope and belief that it will be long indeed before they consent to change the fundamental spirit in which it was conceived and the principles on which it was founded."

If the Constitution needs change, he said, "let us change it, but let us not authorize any constitution to be nullified at will by a mere declaration on the part of Congress that an emergency exists."

Consttiution Open to Amendment.

The Senator declared, "I am not one of those who believe that the Constitution should be sacrosanct, as immutable as the laws of the Medes and Persians. The framers of the Consttiution themselves wisely set up explicitly the means whereby the Constitution might be amended, cumbersome and difficult to be sure but capable as we have recently seen of being employed with amazing rapidity and completeness once the people have made up their minds. . . .

"But in the determination of the question of proposed changes the greatest consideration should be given to the question of whether or not the prospect of success of the proposed change is sufficient to justify us in abandoning a system of government under which we have enjoyed a century and a half of amazing progress and of general though by no means universal prosperity."

Clark declared the idea of "those who conceive it to be desirable to wipe out our whole system of government, to abolish the Constitution of the United States, destroy every right of liberty or property, eliminate state lines entirely and set up a system of unified state socialism . . . is obnoxious to an overwhelming majority of the American people." He said there were "more subtle methods of changing the structures of our Government."

Government Control of States.

He pointed out that the Federal Government had steadily expanded its control over states, "but the Supreme Court has established limitations beyond which these encroachments may not go.

"If now these limitations are to be removed and the whole subject of commerce turned over to the Federal Government, giving an official in Washington the power to fix the price of pressing a pair of trousers in Springfield and enforce his decree with criminal process, the state governments might as well be abolished and the expense of a duplication of administration thus be saved.

"I believe, as did the fathers of this republic, that government is better as it is closer to the people and more burdensome as it is further removed."

Full payment prior to maturity of the obligations, it was said, may be attributed to sale of the property involved, inheritances enabling debtors to wipe out all payments at once and other factors giving borrowers a surplus of ready cash.

For the week ended Sept. 19 the corporation reported receipt of loan payments aggregating $3,723,650.

LOAN LEAGUE TO MEET IN CINCINNATI, NOV. 13

Subjects Dealing With Home Financing Will Be Under Discussion at Annual Convention

Provisions in state savings, building and loan laws dealing with lending operations under the National Housing Act, easing the way to use of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, and encouraging the utilization of other Federal aids to mortgage capital accumulation will occupy the minds of hundreds of managers of thrift and home financing institutions at the Cincinnati convention.

The United States Building and Loan League, bringing the industry together on Nov. 13-15 for its annual national meeting, has given its Advisory Committee on State Legislation the job of finding out what provisions in state laws are deemed desirable to hasten the expansion of private mortgage lending. The committee which now has a poll of building and loan managers under way, will report at the convention session of managing officers on the second morning, through Fred G. Stickel Jr., Newark, N. J., chairman.

With recovery definitely in the air, the home financing people are expected to swarm into Cincinnati 2500 strong, present plans for state delegations indicate. Warner M. Allen, Boston, chairman of the committee which is arranging to reward the state league with the largest delegation in proportion to its distance from the convention city, reports many plans for special carloads of delegates. Two planes have been chartered by the Cleveland group.

The meeting of the Advertising and Business Development Division will bring to the fore the 1936 plans of the savings, building and loan business for rounding up new mortgage capital for the use of home owners, as well as for acquainting the public with the opportunities which now exist to borrow money for home building at reasonable rates and on practical terms of repayment over a period of years. Such plans will dovetail into the great national sentiment to push home construction as part of the general drive toward prosperity in the coming years, it is indicated by Clarence T. Rice, Kansas City, Kan., chairman of the division, who has just returned from the Salzburg International Congress of the business, with new plans for business development derived from the experience of European institutions.

Among other members of the International Congress delegation who will present to the national convention in this country helpful ideas gained abroad is Charles W. Thompson, Lieutenant-Governor of Kansas, who is chairman of the Home Taxation Committee of the league.

APPLICATIONS FOR F. H. A. LOANS AGGREGATE $258,350

There were 55 applications, aggregating $258,350, received the week ending Friday for F. H. A. loans. This was the record week for new business, according to Richard S. Hawes Jr., district director, since the opening of the St. Louis offices in February.

About 20 per cent of this number of applications covers new construction. Thirty-six commitments for insurance were issued during the week. The records show that 379 loans, aggregating approximately $2,000,000 have been insured. Ninety per cent of the total applications received for the week was from local approved mortgagees.

BANK EXPANSION TAKES ENTIRE BUILDING FLOOR

Industrial Bank & Trust Co., in connection with Isaac T. Cook Co., acting for the Mallinckrodt estate.

The financial establishment was established 22 years ago by the late James Gay Butler, with offices at 728 Chestnut street. Henry L. Cornet of Cornet & Zeibig is chairman of the board, and Arthur A. Blumeyer is president.

Work of renovating and equipping the former Franklin Bank Building at the northeast corner of Broadway and Washington avenue is under way. As has been told, it is to be occupied by the United Bank & Trust Co. under a long lease. The United now occupies ground floor quarters in the Missouri Athletic Building at the northwest corner of Fourth street and Washington avenue, under a lease which will expire June 1, 1936. Originally known as the German-American Bank, the United is one of the longest established in the city.

The Broadway building is owned by the Simmons estate, which erected it for the Franklin Bank. The Franklin occupied the building until it consolidated with the American Trust Co., as the Franklin-American Trust Co., now being liquidated through the First National Bank.

Oil Company Moves.

The Phillips Petroleum Co. has taken a five-year lease on the west part of the third floor of the Chase Building, recently completed at the southwest corner of Maryland and York avenues. Comprising approximately 7500 square feet, the space will be occupied as the local offices of the Phillips company, located for a number of years at 6291 Suburban avenue, in St. Louis County. Removal to the new quarters, under way for several days, was completed yesterday.

The lease was negotiated by the Kempland Realty Co., agents for the building, erected by Chase Ulman, as an investment.

The Phillips company has approximately 90 service stations in the St. Louis district, many dominating strategic points in the city and county and in East St. Louis. New links are being continually added to its chain of service stations in this area.

Several years ago the company purchased a 280-acre tract on the East Side, near the Cahokia plant of the Union Electric Light & Power Co., from Frederick Pitzman, president of the Pitzman Company, surveyors and engineers, as a site for a terminus for a pipe line from its oil fields in Oklahoma.

The Baum Bros. & Mayer Neckwear Co. has leased 14,000 square feet, comprising the eastern part of the second floor of the building at 1209 Washington avenue, fronting 96 feet on the north side of Washington and 137 feet on the west line of Twelfth boulevard. The concern is now located in the Drew Building at 414 North Twelfth street. The concern was established in 1898.

Sixth Street Building a Magnet.

Several offers have been submitted for the six-story and basement building at 13-15-17 North Sixth street, between Chestnut and Market streets, owned by George J. Wanstrath. Comprising 45,000 square feet of available floor space, including the basement, the building is sought presumably by concerns in the river-front district. It has a Sixth street frnotage of 50 feet, with a depth of 127 feet to the north-south alley of this block. It is equipped with elevators and a modern steam heating plant, installed at a large outlay. The building is occupied by the J. F. Conrad Grocery Co. & Conrad, Incorporated, and the Gibson Grocery Co.

Originally the home of the Dave Nicholson Grocery Co., for which it was built, the structure is one of the most substantial available in the central business district. Wanstrath bought the building several years ago as an investment.

SUBURBAN PROPERTY FOR SALE

The HISTORY OF THE GAY ESTATE

"In 1851, Edward T. Gay, millionaire sugar planter, came to St. Louis to purchase an estate. With practically all of the county to choose from, he selected an exceptionally beautiful tract of land near the county-seat town of Clayton. It lay along one of the highest ridges in the vicinity and was parklike in its carpet of blue grass and abundance of great forest trees."

—from the colorful pages of

THE HISTORY OF THE GAY ESTATE
Which has now become the beautiful residential development of

LAKE FOREST

Shortly before her death, Mrs. Sophie M. Crow, daughter of Edward Gay, deeded the old Gay Estate to the Lake Forest Development Corporation and wrote into the bargain such restrictions that would guarantee its development into a community of high-type homes. She made sure that its beauty would not be destroyed. How well those restrictions have been kept is exemplified by the natural, parklike beauty of Lake Forest today. The 57 acres that comprise this development have been divided into home sites of an average width of 100 feet, allowing ample space for a large home, yet preserving the great trees and shrubs that were of exceptional beauty when St. Louis was young.

The homes offered in Lake Forest have been planned by distinguished architects and are distinctive in their individuality. They are well-constructed, fireproof, and contain all the luxuries and conveniences of modern home-building. The location on Clayton and Hanley Roads is excellent in its convenience to downtown, to schools, churches, stores, transportation, etc. Although a rise in value is inevitable, you'll find these homes reasonably priced. Drive out to Lake Forest this afternoon. We welcome visitors.

Open for Inspection Today are the Recently Completed Lake Forest 29, 30, 38, 39, 72, 96, 108, 112 and 115. See Them!

CRUDE OIL STOCKS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The Bureau of Mines reported today stocks of domestic and foreign crude oil at the close of the week ending Sept. 21 totaled 306,637,000 barrels a decrease of 682,000 barrels from the previous week.

The decrease was made up of 547,000 barrels of domestic crude and 135,000 barrels of foreign.

The bureau said current reports of the industry for the week indicated a further increase in production, a material decline in imports and an increase in crude runs to stills. Total demand for crude for the week averaged 3,011,000 barrels daily, which the bureau said marked the third successive week in which demand had exceeded the 3,000,000-barrel mark.

HOG AND LAMB PRICES LOWER FOR THE WEEK

EAST ST. LOUIS, Sept. 28.—(U. S. Dept. Agr.)—

Repeating the performance of recent weeks, porker values rose to near the season's peak as the week opened and then broke sharply at midweek. Contrary to the trend previously, however, trade this week failed to stage a late recovery and values finished 35@50c under the close of last week or fully 50c under Monday. Supplies this week figured around 29,700 compared with 26,125 last week and 55,78[illegible] similar week last year. An early top of $12.10 was paid Monday, but the Friday peak fell to $11.60. Saturday supplies were too light to establish quotations and were confined to a few good sorts at $11.50 down. On Friday, better 180 to 250 pounders turned at $11.50@11.60, and medium sorts at $10.50@11.15. Heavies were lacking. Good and choice 140 to 160 lb light lights sold Friday at $10.75@11.25; 100 to 130 lb pigs, $9.50@10.50, and light stock pigs down to $9 or below. Packing sows bulked at $9.40@10.

Cattle: 400; 100 calves; compared with close of last week: Some of the best native steers and butcher yearlings about steady; other natives, western grass steers and butcher yearlings 25c lower; cow stuff and bulls steady; vealers and stocker and feeder cattle 25c lower; top for the week 960 and 1187-lb. choice steers, $11.25; 1260-lb. Kansas grass steers, $7.25; 838-lb. mixed yearling, $10.00; 627-lb. heifers, $9.00; beef cows, $6.00; sausage bulls, $5.25; vealers, $9.50; stock steers, $7.25; bulk for the week, native steers, $8.00@10.25; western grass steers, $5.75@6.90; mixed yearling and heifers, $5.00@8.00; beef cows, $4.25@5.25; cutters and low cutters, $2.85@3.75; stocker and feeder steers, $4.75@6.75.

Sheep: 50; compared with a week ago: Lambs, 25@50c lower; sheep and yearlings steady; top lots for the week, $9.85; a few prime, $10.00; packer top, $9.75; bulk sales, $9.00 down; bulk for the week, $9.25@9.75; buck lambs, $1.00 less; throwouts, $6.00@7.00; yearlings, $6.75@7.25; aged wethers, $5.00; fat ewes, $2.50@3.50.

HORSES AND MULES.

With a few exceptions, horses and mules showed an easier trend the past week. A good run of nearly 1000 head arrived on commission and while a clearance was effected, demand was discriminatory.

Arrivals, consisting of 732 horses and 225 mules, contained a considerable portion of the kinds of stock not wanted at this season, which accounts for the behavior of the market.

Cotton mules with quality and good mares and fillies held up well. Dealers caution country buyers to make allowances for big heavy brands on high priced stock as this affects the price received here.

*NATIVE HORSE QUOTATIONS.

Good to choice draft, $120@150; medium to good draft, $90@110; good to choice chunks, $95@125; smooth-mouthed chunks, $70@90; young farm mares, $90@115; Southern mares, $50@85; small cheap horses, $30@50.

*MULE QUOTATIONS.

Farm mules, 15.2 to 16 hands, $110@140; colt mules, good size and bone, [illegible]@125; colt mules, small, $50@75; draft mules, $125@150; mine mules, 15.3 to 16 hands, $120@140; mine mules, 14 to 15 hands, $75@100; choice cotton mules, 15.1 to 16 hands, $135@160; choice cotton mules, 14.2 to 15 hands, $110@125; small green mules over 3 years old, $40@70.

*Quotations are for average animals and do not cover those of outstanding quality or the very cheapest grade.

Lower Prices One Way Out Of Depression

In Last of Four Volumes on Remedy Within Present Governmental Structure, Brookings Institution Favors This Method.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.

WHAT caused the "depression" in the United States and the consequent industrial breakdown in 1929 and what can be done, within the existing governmental framework, to establish a universally high material standard of living equal at least to that of the so-called "middle class" in the "prosperous days before the collapse?

The Brookings Institution of Washington has attempted answers to these two fundamental questions in a series of four books, the concluding volume of which was made public this week under the title of "Income and Economic Progress."

The final book, a slim, relatively non-technical work of 188 pages, written by Harold G. Moulton, president of the Institution, finds in answer to the first question, as might be expected, that the maldistribution of the national income did not permit the mass of the people to buy the goods the economic machine was capable of turning out. In other words, that mass production was not balanced in mass purchasing power. As to how universally high standard of living might be attained, the book replies in effect: "Lower prices to increase the buying power of present incomes, which at the same time would stimulate consumption and thus speed up the existing production machinery."

Details Not Worked Out.

To the reader's natural question: "How and when will prices be lowered," Dr. Moulton answers: "No attempt has been made in this volume to set forth the details of such a price program as we have sketched in broad outline. It would need to be highly detailed to meet the peculiar situations of varying industries, and the time is not yet ripe for the presentation of anything more than the general principles. Extended study, of the general problem has, however, led us to a profound conviction of the validity of the underlying principle. We believe that this general proposition today presents an open challenge to the business men of America."

Despite this vague conclusion, Dr. Moulton's book is a provocative study and, when read with the Institution's three other books on the subject, "America's Capacity to Produce," "America's Capacity to Consume," and "The Formation of Capital," may well exert great influence in administration and legislative circles. The three earlier volumes have received thoughtful attention among the New Dealers.

No Shift to Another System.

Many of the more radical members of the administration, after reading the first three volumes, were convinced that the Brookings Institution would startle the country with its conclusions and proposed remedies deduced from the accumulated evidence as to the maldistribution of American income. Taking note of this left wing expectancy, the concluding chapter of the latest book, under the title, "Economic Progress and the Democratic Ideal," says:

"In pursuing these inquiries we did not attempt to calculate results which might conceivably be achieved by a shift to some other form of economic organization, notably the more drastic, not to say revolutionary, changes contemplated under state socialism, fascism or communism. To us, it seemed a more fruitful, indeed a more scientific procedure, to begin close at home with the economic institutions under which we are now operating, and upon which data of actual performance are available."

Previous Volumes.

An understanding of the Institution's conclusions requires some knowledge of the findings of the previous books.

In the initial volume, "America's Capacity to Produce," published about a year ago after two years of study, the Institution found that the present industrial machine, operating under normal conditions, was running in the "prosperous" year 1929, at only four-fifths of capacity, and that from 1922 to 1929, it had run at only two-thirds of capacity. The conclusion of this volume was that the United States did not have an exorbitant excess of plant capacity, as many persons, after the 1929 crash, had maintained.

The second study of the series, "America's Capacity to Consume," was the startling volume. It found that the excess capacity of the production machinery could be more than utilized if the wants of the people could be satisfied. These wants, however, could not be satisfied because the mass of the

THE SUEZ CANAL---Italy's Gateway to Ethiopia

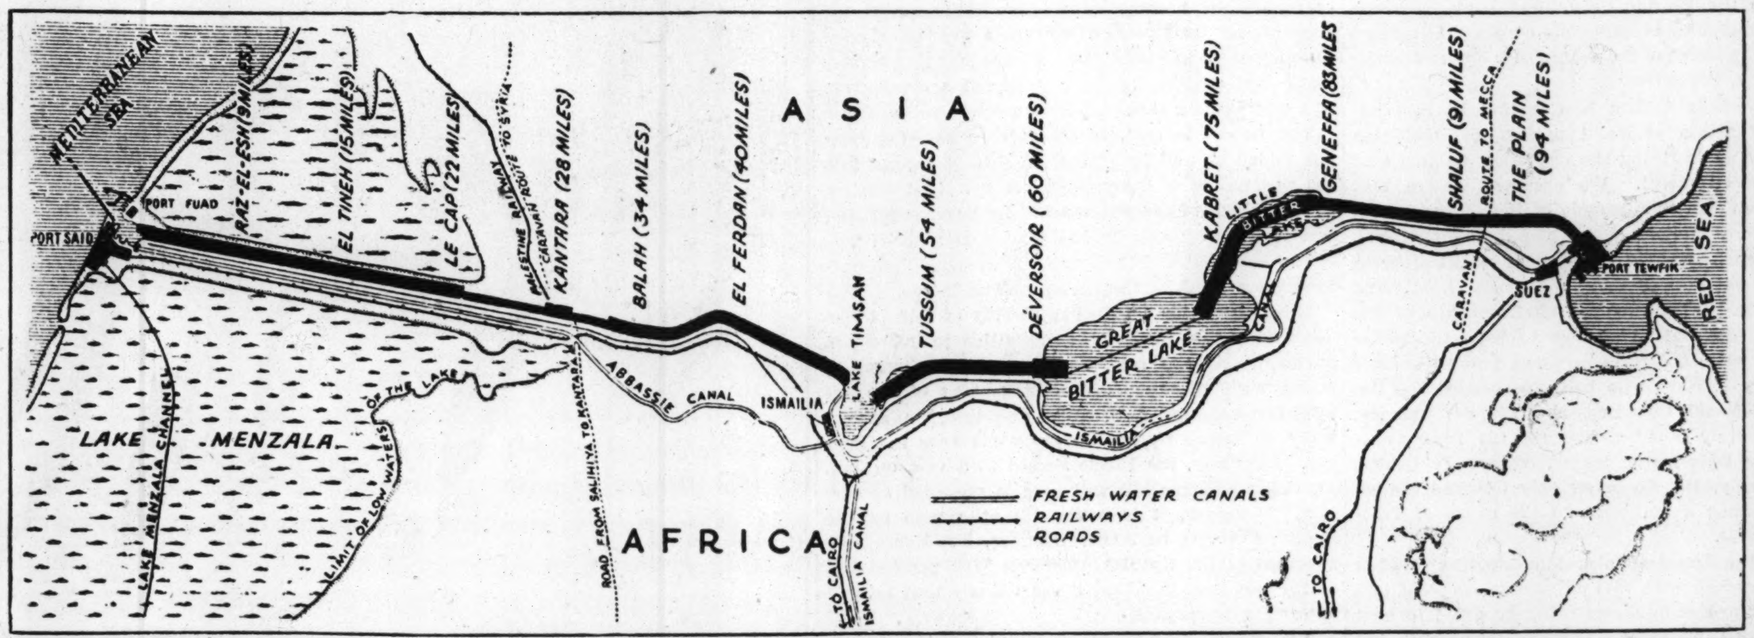
Closure Would Keep Mussolini From Making War in Africa but Treaty of 1888 Seems to Prevent It.



Royal Institute of International Affairs, London, Points Out Freedom of Waterway Is Guaranteed, With Minor Reservations by Nine-Power Convention.

Question Whether League Could Find Legal Basis for Overruling or Abrogating Pact, and Directing Britain to Close Channel to Check Aggression.

IN the drawing the left is north and the top east, the canal running in a southeasterly direction from Port Said, a view of which is shown below. The seaport, at the entrance to the waterway, has a population of 57,000. It dates from 1859. First used only as a coaling station, it has gained commercial importance.

CAN Great Britain, or the League of Nations, close the Suez Canal to Italy, as a means of checking Italian aggression on Ethiopia?

This question has been asked many times in recent weeks, and has been put in the House of Commons, while the Italian dictator in his preparations for war has made abundant use of the still freely open waterway, essential link between Europe and East Africa. In the first six months of 1935, Italian troop ships carried more than 84,000 soldiers southward through the canal, while they carried somewhat more than 6000 northward, leaving a net arrival of about 78,000 armed men in the East African colonies.

That number has been increased during July and August by the military passengers on 51 Italian ships passing southward through the canal, some of which carried only materials, but which have probably added 40,000 to the soldiery mentioned, making a force of not less than 118,000 already near the borders of Haile Selassie's empire.

Even with this large start in convoy of men and materials, an interruption now in the established route would be fatal to Italy's contemplated campaign. Whether such an interruption could be brought about, even if the League should declare Italy to be an aggressor, is the question discussed by the Royal Institute of International Affairs, London, in its recent pamphlet on "Abyssinia and Italy."

Treaty of 1888 Provides Against Use in Blockade

The first part of the Royal Institute's answer appears to indicate that the canal, under the nine-Power convention of 1888 providing for its free navigation, cannot be closed to any nation in war or peace. The signers of the convention of 1888 were Great Britain, Austria-Hungary, France, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Russia, Spain and Turkey. The place of signing was Constantinople.

Later, possible exceptions are stated, but these exceptions seem very difficult to establish, and leave a heavy presumption, though not a certainty, that such action would be practically impossible.

Article I of the convention of 1888 provides that:

The Suez Maritime Canal shall always be free and open in time of war as in time of peace, to all merchant or war vessels without flag discrimination.

Consequently, the High Contracting Parties agree in no way to prevent the free use of the Canal in time of war as in time of peace.

The Canal shall never be used for the exercise of the right of blockade.

Additional Provisions Applying to Wartimes

Other relevant articles are Articles IV and V, which contain rules to be applied to belligerents in wartime use of the canal. These articles provide that "no right of war, no act of hostility, nor any act having for its object to obstruct the free navigation of the canal, shall be committed in the canal and its ports of access, as well as within a radius of three marine miles from those ports, even though the Ottoman Empire (Turkey) should be one of the belligerent Powers.

"Vessels of war of belligerents shall not revictual or take in stores in the canal and its ports of access, except so far as may be strictly necessary." Such vessels shall not stay at Port Said, northern terminus of the canal, more than 24 hours, except in case of distress, but an enemy ship shall not depart from a port of access in less than 24 hours after a belligerent ship sails.

Belligerent Powers, in time of war, are forbidden to disembark or embark, within the canal and its ports, troops, munitions or war material. An exception, permitting the embarking or disembarking of not more than 1000 men in case of an accidental hindrance in the canal," is made.

Reservation for Safety of Canal, Defense of Egypt

One reservation is made to the freedom of use of the canal. The Royal Institute's publication thus outlines and explains this reservation:

"As the canal runs through territory lying within the jurisdiction of a sovereign state (Egypt) it is natural that the right of that state to take legitimate action in self-defense should be reserved. Articles IX and X allocate to the Egyptian Government the task of insuring the execution of the treaty and the right to secure by its own forces the defense of Egypt and the maintenance of public order. While Article XI states that measures under the two preceding Articles shall not interfere with the free use of the canal, the view has always been taken in Great Britain that the obligation to insure the safety of the canal is paramount.

"The provisions of the convention are, therefore, clear: subject only to the exercise of the right of legitimate self-defense and to action to insure the safety of the canal, there can be no restriction, provided that the rules are observed, on the free use of the canal."

Twice, in the past, the canal has been closed, and on a third occasion the question of its free use was raised. The last-named incident is of the most interest to Americans, as it took place during the Spanish-American War of 1898.

Spanish Admiral Camara Prevented From Refueling

After Admiral Dewey's squadron destroyed the Spanish fleet at Manila May 1, Spain made a threatening gesture in his direction by dispatching a squadron from Cadiz, under Admiral Camara. The squadron's ostensible start for the Philippines was made June 16, but four days after the destruction of Admiral Cervera's squadron at Santiago, July 3, the Spanish Government recalled Camara, to protect the home coast. In the meantime, Camara had encountered difficulties in the Suez Canal.

"The attempt of the Spanish fleet to coal at Suez on its way through the canal," the Royal Institute's account reads, "was frustrated by the canal authorities, in accordance with the provisions of Article IV of the Convention."

The two instances of actual closing are thus described in the Institute's narrative:

"The first was in 1882 (and therefore before the signing of the Convention) when, during the revolt of Arabi Pasha against the Khedive of Egypt, the safety of the canal was thought to be imperilled. Before the battle of Tel-el-Kebir British troops under Sir Garnet Wolseley were landed at Suez and Port Said, and British ships were stationed at the latter. For three days the canal was in British hands and ships in the canal or entering it were stopped. This action was carried out under a decree of the Khedive, dated Aug. 15, 1882, which recognized the military occupation charged to re-establish order in Egypt, and authorized them to occupy all the ports necessary. The action of British troops was, therefore, undertaken for the benefit of and at the invitation of the territorial Power. The incident, however, raised the question of free use and gave rise to certain negotiations, which resulted in the conclusion of the Convention of 1888.

"The other occasion on which the canal was closed was during the Great War, when free access and transit were stopped for a short period during which Egyptian territory and the safety of the canal were actually endangered by the advance of the Turkish forces. During the rest of the war the freedom of the canal was maintained. Certain enemy ships found themselves or took refuge in the canal when war broke out; they were offered a free pass, but when they refused to accept it or sought to make use of the canal merely as a place of refuge, they were conducted outside territorial waters. During the war British command of the seas at both ends of the canal effectively prevented enemy vessels from approaching it.

Question Whether League Can Set the Pact Aside

"These instances of closure," the English authority says, "have no direct bearing upon the present situation, but are interesting for the light they throw on the legal position. It is clear that the freedom of the canal is guaranteed, subject only to certain minor restrictions upon belligerents and to the reservations regarding the defense of Egyptian territory.

"This being the case, a legal basis for closing the canal must be sought elsewhere. It has been suggested that the Council of the League of Nations should, in the hypothetical case mentioned, decide upon the closing of the canal as an action against Italy under Article 16 of the covenant. Such action natur-

Herriot Wants League Sanctions To Be Inflexible

PARIS, Sept. 28.

I AM happy to have observed in my previous articles regarding the Italian-Ethiopian affair a calm, composed attitude which may have deceived the uninitiated and those who regard politics as sport.

Today one fact is certain: impressive formulas, interviews, challenges and polemics have envenomed an affair which already is most grave in itself.

I cannot doubt this after all I have heard at Geneva. Hereafter, psychological elements will play a great role in the conflict.

In particular Great Britain appears not to have been insensible to affirmations representing her as being devoid of any drastic action. She has just superabundantly shown her power by sending her fleet to the Mediterranean.

On her side, Italy declares she cannot "lose face." Thus is created today a grave atmosphere.

France and Italy.

So now, more than ever, we will avoid words which might be wrongly interpreted. Besides, things which we announced in the midst of most contradictory reports have since been verified.

We had said that France would do all possible and go the limit to safeguard her friendship with Italy; but that, if the case came up, we could not sacrifice either our friendship with Great Britain or our fidelity to the League covenant.

This attitude has been confirmed. Premier Laval spared no efforts in his intercedings, interviews, and visits.

It must be observed, furthermore, that the contest between the Ministers gathered at Geneva and the one who was closeted in his Rome office, waiting the result of so many efforts before pronouncing his decision, was unequal.

At Geneva, in the League Assembly, the facts unfolded themselves as was expected after the course taken by the council. British Foreign Secretary Hoare pronounced a speech moderately worded but firm in its meaning.

British Stand in 1924.

Premier Laval was no less clear. Countries such as Belgium, Portugal, and Yugoslavia, speaking in the name of the Little Entente, pronounced themselves with force. The unanimity of the nations was established. The orchestra played together.

A political philosopher was able to make certain observations. In 1924, when we proposed a protocol on various sanctions, Great Britain, through Lord Parmour and even more important representatives, opposed its conclusion.

Let it be said without reproach that many years have been necessary to convert our British friends to the idea that, if force must be just, justice must be strong, according to Pascal's decisive formula.

We were astonished to see a nation so sensitive to the idea of sanctions—against infractions of internal laws prove to be so stubborn concerning international sanctions.

Today a transformation has been made and it is in other countries that the idea of sanctions is criticised on certain points.

Spirit of Protocol.

Let us speak frankly: Old friends of England, of whom I am one, have been a little embarrassed by the bilateral character of the last naval accord.

At the same time the French opinion that understands possible complications of events and has its eyes fixed on Memel would like to know that henceforth the application of the covenant will be the constant, inflexible rule.

In other words, one would like to see the League of Nations return, if not to the letter, at least the spirit of the protocol. There has been nothing offensive in such preoccupations, in spite of the eloquent and vigorous protests of David Lloyd George. We find ourselves confronted with an ultra-critical situation; one has the right to declare that the fate of the League is at stake.

At least one should profit in settling in a definite way the question of knowing if the nations can rely on the system of collective security or if they must resign themselves to seeking of equilibrium as before.

Elimination of Fear.

Put the question with that clearness, ask the answers, and we think it will render a service to all. It is necessary work to eliminate not only war but fear, the historical

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

John Wesley's Love Life.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

AN Associated Press dispatch captioned "Methodists Won't Aid Birth Control League" contains the following quotation from a delegate to the Southwest Missouri Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in Springfield:

"It seems strange to me that this great Methodist body, inspired as it is by the life work of John Wesley, should talk of joining a birth control league, when John Wesley himself had 19 children!"

This historical inaccuracy is surprising, especially if the delegate who uttered it is a Methodist preacher. All Methodist preachers are required to study the life of their founder in certain conference courses, and should know that John Wesley's life work did not include the rearing of a family.

John Wesley was in no sense a family man. All his love affairs were ineffectual. He lacked the courage to claim his first love, pretty Sophia Christina Hopkey, whom he met when serving as a young missionary in the colony of Georgia. He let his brother, Charles, talk him out of marrying his last love, Grace Murray, a servant girl who had impressed him by her talent for evangelistic work. At the age of 48, he made an unfortunate marriage with a widow, Mrs. Vazeille, who had nursed him during an illness. She later left him. When she died in 1781, he was not informed of her passing until after the burial.

John Wesley's remarkable mother, Susanna Wesley, was the twenty-fourth of 25 children. He himself was the fifteenth of 19 children, 10 of whom grew to maturity. Six of his seven gifted sisters were married unhappily. At least one biographer states that the reason for their unhappiness was the fact that eighteenth century England afforded no opportunities to women of their talents and training.

Women were loyal to John Wesley. In the early days of the Methodist church, many of them preached in the fields of England. There are numerous records of his efforts to save the souls of individual women. In fact, it was his voluminous correspondence with servant girls, barmaids and the like, which caused the rift with his wife. But there is no evidence to show that John Wesley at any time realized that women as a class have problems requiring social solution.

St. Louis as a Convention City.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE American Legion convention held in St. Louis during the week of Sept. 23 was admittedly the greatest gathering of any sort since our boys' homecoming parade.

St. Louis should indeed feel proud of Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann, whose untiring efforts were the means of St. Louis obtaining this convention. With countless dollars spent in St. Louis during the convention, aside from the educational value of the convention, St. Louis is richer in many respects. Why not make St. Louis the permanent convention city? Its central location and abounding Mid-Western hospitality commend it for future great gatherings.

MRS. ISABELLE H. BLAND.

For a Jefferson Planetarium.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WE in the northern hemisphere are now beginning to incline our faces away from the sun. With the coming of cool days and lessened sunlight, the chlorophyll processes slowly cease, nature dips her brush in pots of xanthophyll and carotin, and soon our hillsides will become a blaze of red and gold. Indian summer for a while and then the leaden skies of winter and with them reflection and sober thinking.

Down on our river front, there is to be built, in the near future, a memorial to a statesman whose outlook was cosmic, whose understanding was broad and liberal. Why not a Thomas Jefferson Planetarium as a center of interest?

The shepherd boys of ancient times knew more of astronomy than we in St. Louis today. St. Louis has it within her power at the present time to give her citizens a richer life, life on a higher plane than in the past. A planetarium can be made self-supporting too. Who would not give, say, 25 cents, to see the greatest show of all time—the mighty drama of the skies?

Oh, for some modern Prometheus who will come down and touch St. Louis and make her more aware of her possibilities and of Him who said, "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly."

PHIL A. WINDMUELLER.

Was "Primitive" the Word?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

SUPPOSE that a right-thinking nation doesn't see fit to stand with palms together 24 hours each day, shaking its head because some primitives decide to resort to primitive methods of obtaining primitive lands. Does that make it necessary for a "bright boy" of the day (Edwin C. Hill) to stand before the microphone immediately preceding a sporting event of national interest (the Baer-Louis fight), and call us primitive because we concentrate on the event? It was one of the few highlights of a dark age that enabled a nation to concentrate as one for a moment on a bit of play.

L. STANLEY WEST.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR MR. ROOSEVELT.

The resignation of Postmaster-General James A. Farley from the President's Cabinet, which has been predicted from time to time, is now definitely set for January, as reported in a Washington dispatch to the Chicago Daily Tribune. According to that newspaper, it was agreed at the conference between President Roosevelt and Mr. Farley at Hyde Park that the latter was to give up his Cabinet seat when the Democratic National Committee meets soon after the first of the year. His public duties will be laid aside, we are given to understand, so that Mr. Farley may devote his time to the many activities of the national chairman of a major political party in a campaign year.

Mr. Farley's impending departure from the Cabinet, assuming that his resignation has been arranged for, will meet with the approval of the administration's friends and critics alike. This can be said without any reflection upon Mr. Farley himself. He is a pleasant and affable man, with many friends outside of politics as well as within. There are other standards, however, by which the propriety of his presence in the President's Cabinet must be measured, and employing these, public opinion has arrived at the conclusion that the sooner Mr. Farley's resignation comes, the better.

The first count against him is that he has continued to function as No. 1 professional politician of his party while filling the important Cabinet seat of Postmaster-General. We are well aware that Mr. Roosevelt had the example of Republican predecessors before him when he placed the chairman of the national committee of a major political party in the postmaster-generalship. Warren G. Harding took Will H. Hays from the chairmanship of the Republican National Committee to head the postal system and when Mr. Hays resigned, Calvin Coolidge chose Harry S. New, who had also headed the Republican National Committee, to fill the vacancy. Herbert Hoover, in turn, had for his Postmaster-General the Ohio party leader, Walter F. Brown. Unquestionably, Mr. Roosevelt only followed custom when he named a politician to the office of Postmaster-General.

Whether the President missed an opportunity when he failed to break with this unfortunate custom, and many of his ardent admirers think he did, it cannot be denied that he made a serious mistake in not requiring Mr. Farley to lay aside his purely political activities when he assumed high public office. Mr. Hays resigned his chairmanship when he entered the Harding Cabinet. Mr. New had not been a member of the National Committee, let alone its chairman, for some years when he accepted the appointment of President Coolidge. But Mr. Farley, after being made a Cabinet member, went right on, not only as chairman of the Democratic National Committee but also as chairman of the New York State Democratic Central Committee. Either of these chairmanships is a time-consuming post. On the score of human limitations alone, the man who fills both of them could not do justice to the responsibilities of the head of the complex and far-flung activities of the Postoffice Department.

The second count against Mr. Farley is that he has placed the distribution of patronage above the efficiency and morale of the Government personnel. His assaults on the civil service have given the country the word "Farleyism." He was on the receiving end of the "Dear Jim" letter which Boss Tom Pendergast wrote in behalf of his since slain ex-convict lieutenant, John Lazia, when the Government undertook to investigate the evasion of income taxes on underworld spoils in Kansas City. Mr. Farley conducted the fight against the late Senator Bronson Cutting of New Mexico—with Mr. Roosevelt's permission at least, it must be conceded—notwithstanding the fact that Senator Cutting was one of four Republican Senators to bolt their party's presidential candidate in 1932.

Beyond any question, Mr. Roosevelt is aware that there is widespread opposition both to Mr. Farley's retention of his political offices while in the Cabinet and to his application of the spoils doctrine. Mr. Farley's departure from the Cabinet, if and when it comes, will present the President with an opportunity to break away from the custom of naming a politician to the postmaster-generalship. Let him give this important executive office to a man who will be primarily, not incidentally, Postmaster-General.

WHAT WELLINGTON REALLY SAID.

Wellington is quoted by Albert Edward Wiggam as saying, "Waterloo was won on the football fields of England." He evidently had in mind the phrase usually attributed to Wellington, that "the battle of Waterloo was won on the playing-field of Eton." But what actually happened is that one day, while watching a cricket match at the famous English school, Wellington remarked: "The battle of Waterloo was won here."

FINE SPIRIT AND DEED.

The Churchman, Episcopal fortnightly and the oldest religious publication in the English-speaking world, will not be forced out of existence in November, even if the New York Court of Appeals upholds the $10,200 libel award against the publication in favor of Gabriel L. Hess, lawyer for a group of moving picture companies. Thanks to a fine spirit of brotherhood which transcends creeds, funds to cover the full amount have been subscribed by a group of Jews, headed by Dr. Sidney E. Goldstein of the New York Free Synagogue and an official of the Central Conference of American Rabbis. "We shall do this," Dr. Goldstein explained, "because the Churchman has rendered great service to the religious life of America. No religious periodical could have done more to build up a finer type of relationship between racial and religious groups; no paper could have been more courageous and intelligent in the crusade against indecency on the screen."

The libel award grew out of a statement in an article by Don C. Seitz, veteran New York journalist, which repeated from a motion picture trade journal a remark to the effect that Mr. Hess and others in the moving picture industry had been indicted in Ontario for conspiring to prevent competition there. The trade journal subsequently retracted this statement, and the Churchman, whose editor is the Rev. Dr. Guy Emery Shipler, promptly followed suit, explaining how the error had been made. This retraction, however, did not appease the complainant, who, judging by the history of the case, will collect the full amount if possible. It is not to be understood that the Churchman has been without other supporters in its time of trial. Its subscribers and many friends, including the Christian Century, have raised several thousand dollars in separate funds. The situation was one which called for just the sort of interdenominational co-operation which fortunately was forthcoming.

THE BONUS RESOLUTION.

The American Legion convention's resolution for immediate payment of the bonus is a decisive repudiation of the Patman plan to finance the payment by an issue of greenbacks. Indeed, Representative Patman himself, when the booing delegates finally permitted him to speak, said: "Let 'em pay it in bonds, let 'em pay it in currency. If we can't get it one way, let's pay it any way that it can be obtained." Thus, the long and vicious fight within the Legion, between the Patmanites and those who would pay the bonus by orthodox financing methods, has ended with the latter's victory.

It is significant that interest in the bonus resolution was centered, not in whether such a resolution would be passed, but merely in the method of payment. Two years ago, in Chicago, a resolution for immediate payment was killed in committee and, therefore, never was discussed on the floor of the convention. Last year, at Miami, a pro-bonus resolution was passed only after a hard fight, 183 votes being cast against it. This year, not a single vote was cast against immediate payment.

The reason is that, to all appearances, Congress has folded up and permitted itself to be tucked into the vest pocket of the veterans' lobby. Last session, Congress passed the Patman bill by huge majorities, and it was repassed by the House over the President's veto. The Senate vote to override fell only nine votes short of the necessary two-thirds.

Apparently, this impressive display of force broke down what remained of the opposition to immediate payment. At any rate, Senate leaders, presumably acting with the knowledge and consent of the administration, agreed to make the bonus a special order of business when Congress convenes in January. Similarly, the House agreed to a vote on Jan. 13. That a bonus bill will pass is regarded as certain. Moreover, it is believed that a veto by the President would be futile. Besides, Mr. Roosevelt's approval of the Spanish-American War pension bill at the last session makes it seem likely that he will approve a bonus bill.

We oppose immediate payment of the bonus, both because it is in violation of the terms of the original bonus law, agreed to between veterans' leaders and Congress in 1924, and because it opens the way for service pensions for all World War veterans. If the past history of veterans' legislation is repeated, it will not be long before the service pension will become an active issue.

STUDENT NEWSPAPERS HAVE CONFIDENCES.

The need for state laws protecting newspaper confidences is in evidence more and more. The latest case of this sort involves a student journalist, Elbert L. Herron, managing editor of the Daily Illini, student newspaper at the University of Illinois. Following an announcement by Mayor James Flynn that gambling had been suppressed in Champaign, the Daily Illini printed a report of a visit to a betting place. Thereupon, the Mayor served notice on the student editor that unless he voluntarily divulged the name of the reporter who wrote the account, an effort would be made to force disclosure of his identity and the source of his information through grand jury action. To the credit of the university's president, Dr. Arthur Cutts Willard, the latter has announced that the university will exert no pressure on the student editor. A bill to protect newspaper confidences was passed by the last session of the Illinois Legislature, only to meet with an ill-advised veto. Illinois did not have long to wait to see the need for this important safeguard against possible misuse of local authority.

BRITAIN AS PEACEMAKER.

The world's chief hope of averting war in the Ethiopian crisis now rests on England's determined efforts. After a period of looking the other way, followed by an attempt to buy Mussolini off, Britain now takes her stand firmly on the League Covenant and pledges, in Sir Samuel Hoare's words at Geneva, "to offer steady resistance to acts of unprovoked aggression." Other nations, rallied by Britain, have taken a similar stand, and sanctions are being seriously discussed.

Though this may be the salvation of Ethiopia, or at least prevent her complete absorption, it would be erroneous to describe Britain's motives as solely altruistic. More than the fate of 10,000,000 Africans concerns her statesmen now—the fate of Britain's colonial empire. Italian conquest of Ethiopia would build up a strong rival power in Africa, and endanger Britain's hold there. More, it would make Italian power preponderant in the Mediterranean, and menace the Suez Canal and Gibraltar, main lines of the British system. Britain is impressed by the might of the Italian navy and air force. The time to challenge that force is now, it is decided, when other nations may be rallied under the Covenant.

Britain's course, whatever its motives, is to be applauded by all who hope for peace in this crisis and for preservation of the world's peace machinery. Nevertheless, it bears out what the poet Cowper wrote just 150 years ago of England's policy:

> Doing good,
> Disinterested good, is not our trade.

IN THE INTELLECTUAL STRATOSPHERE.

Frank Kent says that not more than 10 per cent of the people possess the power to analyze the simplest issue or comprehend a political principle. One Sam Hill, writing in the letter column recently, called us a nation of nitwits. Henry Mencken used to refer to the American people as the booboisie. "Everyone," said the Quaker to his friend, "is queer except me and thee, and I sometimes have my doubts upon thee."

It must be interesting to sit enthroned in the intellectual stratosphere and gaze with smug satisfaction on the dumb and swarming masses below. Will not Messrs. Kent and Mencken tell us how it feels to be so far above the herd that they can barely hear it lowing? For one thing, it must be lonely 'way up there; almost as isolated as in the famous case of the Cabots:

> And this is good old Boston,
> The home of the bean and the cod,
> Where the Lowells talk to the Cabots,
> And the Cabots talk only to God.

THE DISCOVERY OF THE OREGON TRAIL: Robert Stuart's Narratives. Edited by Philip Ashton Rollins. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York City.)

IT WAS for many years the popular belief, not unsupported by historians who, as one might say, wrote by ear, that Fremont was the discoverer of South Pass, that vital link in the great central route from the Missouri to the Pacific, by which the tides of migration poured into Oregon and California. Fremont himself knew, and stated in his report of 1845, that Fitzpatrick, one of his party, had passed that way two decades earlier; but Fremont was presidential timber, and evidently both he and his henchmen knew their politics.

For years after the Fremont legend of discovery faded away, it was assumed by competent historians that the Ashley-Henry men, under James Fitzpatrick, discovered South Pass on their way to Salt Lake early in 1824, although some were inclined to give that distinction to Etienne Provot, another Ashley man.

As everyone who has read Irving's "Astoria" is aware, a party under Robert Stuart had made the long and difficult journey by the central route from the mouth of the Columbia River to St. Louis in the years 1812 and 1813; but it has been generally believed by authorities that the Stuart party crossed the continental divide at some distance from the pass, which, by the way, is in no strict sense a "pass," but rather a high prairie. This belief has held until now, in spite of Ramsay Crooks' assertion that the party did travel that way.

Now for the first time, thanks to the efforts of Philip Ashton Rollins, it is made clear that Ramsay Crooks was right, and that Stuart and his seven companions were the first white men to travel the entire route later known as the Oregon Trail.

It has been well known that Robert Stuart made a daily record of his long and hazardous journey; that he gave his manuscript to President Madison for examination, and that Washington Irving had access to it while writing "Astoria." A portion of the journal was translated into French and appeared in a work entitled "Nouvelles Annales," which was published at Paris in 1821.

Thereafter, the Stuart Journal dropped out of sight for many years, being in the possession of Washington Irving's lineal descendants until it was acquired by Frederick S. Dellenbaugh, famous for his descent of the Colorado River as described in his volume, "A Canyon Voyage." Five years ago, the journal was bought at auction in New York by William Robertson Coe. It is now for the first time given to the world in its entirety, and, as edited by Philip Ashton Rollins, it takes rank at once as one of the most important source works in the history of our West.

Truly, it is a magnificent story of adventure as the editor has illuminated it with his copious notes, in themselves a very remarkable achievement. Mr. Rollins traveled every mile of the trail of Stuart and his party, studying it with meticulous care by way of identifying practically every topographical feature mentioned in the record, and it is thus made possible for the interested reader to relive the great adventure, mile by mile, locating the exact spot where this or that difficulty was met and overcome—in terms of jerk-water towns and railroad crossings, of roadside restaurants and filling stations!

Some day, perhaps, some enterprising novelist may retell the story that Mr. Rollins has revived and illuminated with his lovingly careful scholarship. And that will be a corker of a yarn indeed. For instance, there was the time when Stuart and his men were starving and a French Canadian of the party demanded at the point of the rifle that lots be cast by way of determining who should be slain and eaten by his comrades.

How unemotional a record it is, as Stuart kept it—often, as we are assured the script reveals, with his own blood for ink!

In "The Cowboy," Philip Ashton Rollins produced what will no doubt continue to rank as the standard work on the subject. And now another standard work!

THE LAW ON HORSEBACK. By William S. Hart. (Times-Mirror Press, Los Angeles, Cal.)

IT is perhaps too much to expect that a man who was exposed a long time to motion pictures, as William S. Hart was, could turn to story-telling without carrying with him the tradition, not to call it the taint, of the pictures. Perhaps escape from that was not deemed necessary or desirable, if the appeal was to be to motion-picture customers, tainted with the tradition. The appeal is to these and, as Hart is well remembered as the hard-riding and quick-shooting hero of many a "Western," the appeal will not be in vain, for they are good stories of that kind.

It was for these old friends that Hart, now a rancher, wrote, for the book of short stories is dedicated "to those now a bit grown up, and to those now a bit gray-haired, who liked my efforts on stage or screen, these stories are respectfully and affectionately dedicated."

THE CASE OF THE CARETAKER'S CAT. By Erle Stanley Gardner. (William Morrow & Co., New York City.)

THE latest of a series of mystery stories running in a popular periodical and then published in book form. It follows "The Case of the Counterfeit Eye," and readers are promised next spring its successor, "The Case of the Sleepwalker's Niece."

For those who enjoy murder mystery stories, with super-lawyers and clever detectives playing tag with the suspected criminals and indulging in the most modern wisecracks, altruistically aiding unfortunate persons accused but innocent, this story has the intriguing merit of turning upon the accidental intrusion of a cat into the scene, said cat giving a humorous turn to what would otherwise be a story of tragedy.

The cat really inspires Perry Mason, the adventurous lawyer, to take the case, practically without fee or hope of reward, other than saving his innocent human clients—for the cat, he insists, is his real client—from unmerited imprisonment and death. The cat's name is Clinker, and when all the mysteries have been solved, in open court, Perry Mason joyfully calls: "Hi, Clinker," and Clinker responds.

MARK TWAIN WIT AND WISDOM. By Cyril Clemens. (Frederick A. Stokes Co., New York City.)

THE Mark Twain centennial has brought forth various books on the great humorist, but surely none more entertaining or richer in intimate revelations of the man than this delightful volume by his kinsman, Cyril Clemens, of Webster Groves, president of the International Mark Twain Society. It consists of 154 anecdotes and stories now for the first time brought together. Indeed most of the material has never before appeared in print, a fact which should entitle the collection to be regarded as a new volume in the works of Mark Twain.

The book must have cost its compiler much patient effort, most of the jokes and stories having been contributed from memory by men and women in both England and America, these ranging from the obscurity of "An Old Nevada Miner," to the fame of Bernard Shaw, Irvin S. Cobb, Julian Hawthorne, Bob Davis, etc.

The present writer regrets that "no portion of the volume may be reprinted without permission of the publisher," for many of the briefer contributions are delightful and highly quotable. However, there is no copyright on the following, which might well have been included in the collection here noted. The present writer had it from the late Volney Streamer, who in his youth was a member of Edwin Booth's company and in his late years curator of the Players' Club of New York.

Streamer and George Iles, an intimate friend of Mark Twain, occasionally visited the humorist together. On Streamer's first visit, the three were on the veranda and Streamer, whose eyes were no longer dependable for far-seeing, was admiring the view.

"What a beautiful touch that windmill gives to the landscape!" he exclaimed.

"Yes, indeed," Mark Twain replied, "but in good society, one does not refer to them in quite so frank a manner!" Streamer had seen a church spire!

Stephen Leacock, the famous Canadian humorist, has furnished a characteristic preface, in which he remarks (and this is paraphrased by way of avoiding the illegality of quotation) that if, as has been said, some of Mark Twain's jokes here included are to be found in the literature of the Greeks, the more reasonable explanation is that the Greeks stole them from Mark Twain.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Local inspection and supervision of the AAA crop reduction programs has cost $30,813,297, according to figures furnished by AAA officials.

This sum has gone to an army of more than 110,000 inspectors who have operated in virtually every State of the Union. This army of inspectors has been charged with the difficult task of checking violations of acreage reduction.

These inspectors are, with few exceptions, farmers elected by their own county or community associations, AAA officials point out. And for the most part, according to the AAA, they work on part time, the majority for only a few days during the growing season.

Benefit Payments Meet Cost.

Divided by commodities, the cost of this vast inspection service is as follows: Corn-hogs, $15,203,108; cotton, $8,720,208; wheat, $6,369,276, and tobacco, $520,705.

The cost of policing the corn-hog, tobacco and wheat programs has been taken directly out of the benefit payments to farmers participating in the programs. Thus a county committee made up of a county agent and farmers elected by community associations set up a yearly budget which included a certain sum for the inspection service. The cost of this service was then taken out of the benefit payments to farmers in that particular county. The budget must be approved by a state committee and by the finance division of the AAA here.

Paid Only for Actual Time.

Members of the county committees, elected by the contract signers within the county, are ordinarily leaders who have taken part in co-operative and other farm activities within the community in which they live. With the county agent they work out the county's quota, computing yields and determining the acreage to be allotted to each farmer participating. Then when production is well under way they must make a check to determine if the farmers are keeping within the acreage assigned to them. Members of the county committee who do this work are paid only for the actual time which they give to it.

The average amount going to committee men under the corn-hog program is about $100 for the season, according to AAA officials. The average cost to co-operating farmers for the local administration of the wheat adjustment program during the first year of its operation was 1.42 cents a bushel, the AAA reported. The latter includes all local expenses, such as the cost connected with organizing the county wheat associations.

AAA Reports Few Complaints.

According to AAA officials, there are few complaints against the work of this vast police force, because, it is pointed out, the inspectors are named by their own groups and they are carrying out a function which is to the advantage of all concerned. Farmers reported as exceeding the acreage assigned to them may appeal to the state committee and a few appeals have come to Washington.

The cotton program is administered locally in a somewhat different form than the other crop reduction programs. There are 22,000 county committee men supervising the cotton program but they are paid directly out of the cotton processing tax rather than out of benefit payments.

The pay of committee men varies in various parts of the country from $2.50 to $5 a day and sometimes expenses are allowed in addition. There are slightly fewer than 75,000 members of corn-hog committees; 10,000 wheat committee men and 1500 under the tobacco program.

THE Mark Twain centennial has brought forth various books on the great humorist, but surely none more entertaining or richer in intimate revelations of the man than this delightful volume by his kinsman, Cyril Clemens, of Webster Groves, president of the International Mark Twain Society. It consists of 154 anecdotes and stories now for the first time brought together. Indeed most of the material has never before appeared in print, a fact which should entitle the collection to be regarded as a new volume in the works of Mark Twain.

The book must have cost its compiler much patient effort, most of the jokes and stories having been contributed from memory by men and women in both England and America, these ranging from the obscurity of "An Old Nevada Miner," to the fame of Bernard Shaw, Irvin S. Cobb, Julian Hawthorne, Bob Davis, etc.

The present writer regrets that "no portion of the volume may be reprinted without permission of the publisher," for many of the briefer contributions are delightful and highly quotable. However, there is no copyright on the following, which might well have been included in the collection here noted. The present writer had it from the late Volney Streamer, who in his youth was a member of Edwin Booth's company and in his late years curator of the Players' Club of New York.

Streamer and George Iles, an intimate friend of Mark Twain, occasionally visited the humorist together. On Streamer's first visit, the three were on the veranda and Streamer, whose eyes were no longer dependable for far-seeing, was admiring the view.

"What a beautiful touch that windmill gives to the landscape!" he exclaimed.

"Yes, indeed," Mark Twain replied, "but in good society, one does not refer to them in quite so frank a manner!" Streamer had seen a church spire!

Stephen Leacock, the famous Canadian humorist, has furnished a characteristic preface, in which he remarks (and this is paraphrased by way of avoiding the illegality of quotation) that if, as has been said, some of Mark Twain's jokes here included are to be found in the literature of the Greeks, the more reasonable explanation is that the Greeks stole them from Mark Twain.

Herriot Wants League Sanctions to Be Inflexible

cause of so many disasters.

In the present situation, up to that important day, Sept. 21—which is the day I write these lines—have events occurred with the desired wisdom. One can, I believe, answer affirmatively. Whatever further events may be I want to say what position France has taken in general action.

The Council of the League charged the committee of five, headed by Madariaga, to seek a solution. What has this solution been?

It has been: First, stating that Ethiopia still requires important reforms, such as public works, education, public health measures, for example. The committee proposed delegation by the League of an international commission. What should the character and role of this commission be? Very prudently the committee of five limits its ambitions to formulating a broad outline with filling in of the details. It was up to Italy to ask questions to manifest the need of her exigencies.

The last adjuration of France (which I will have to mention again) was inviting. Emperor Haile Selassie accepted the principle of this sort of collective international assistance; even recognizing Italy's particular interests in East Africa and only asking for explanations.

Assuredly if the procedure thus offered had been accepted and followed on both sides some difficulties, even impossibilities, could have arisen.

But the difficulty, in view of the impossibilities, reduces the importance of such a study, and if one will permit such a remark, even if there is war, it will be necessary to have this conclusion, that it ends by some arrangement.

Result of Wars.

The result of wars is, in general, to bring to the people's realization what they should have known before they started them.

Secondly, but this solution appears as an abstraction, as one should remember the military preparations already effected by Italy. The committee of five imagined the cession of territories which constitute a course for Ethiopia.

And to facilitate acceptance by the Negus, who also requires some "face saver," Great Britain and France gave an example by offering to give part of their territories to allow Ethiopia access to the sea.

After this became known, France made the most pressing and most cordial demarche in Rome.

We have had the answer of the Italian Ministerial Council. Italy refuses the proposals of the committee of five; she declared she "appreciates" them, but finds them unacceptable because of the fact that they don't offer a minimum basis sufficient for the concrete realizations which would finally or effectively take account of the vital rights and interests of Italy.

An Unjust Sentence.

Evidently such an answer is not encouraging. Evidently we could feel offended by a certain sentence of a certain interview on the 100,000 square kilometers of deserts given by France to Italy. We could easily demonstrate this sentence as unjust.

But then there is a question of peace of the people, when it is a duty to be relaxed and not tighten over-excited opinions. When one foresees on the horizon the entry of death machines, one must crush underfoot all self-love.

Up to the end—until the cannon makes its brutal voice heard—we shall make our voice heard.

Until the end, we ask ourselves to what would a slaughter lead when Italy finds the nations facing her who are disposed to recognize her needs.

To Italian People.

Until the end we shall tell the great Italian people, the people of the renaissance, that they can gain nothing by passing on to the order of force a genius which they have put in history to the service of ideas.

Until the end we shall remember that Rome is a classical motherland of the right. If Italy was menaced, we'd defend her with the same ardor against violence.

As to France, one is not able to doubt her. She said:

"I shall be faithful to the pact."

She shall be faithful. But she doesn't resign herself to the idea of slaughter and she will resist it until the end.

The Suez Canal, Italy's Gateway To Ethiopia

ally presupposes resort to war by Italy 'in disregard of its covenants under Articles 12, 13 or 15,' whereupon 'it shall ipso facto be deemed to have committed an act of war against all other members of the League,' which undertake to subject it to specified sanctions.

"In this case the closing of the canal would probably be entrusted to Great Britain, as the agent of Egypt, acting with the co-operation of France.

"Such a decision having been taken by the League, the question arises as to whether the League has the legal right to overrule international conventions which have been recognized as valid. By certain articles of the Peace treaties of Versailles, St. Germain, Trianon and Lausanne, the validity of the Convention of 1888 has been specifically recognized. To overcome this difficulty it has been suggested that the League Council should decide that the Convention is incompatible with the League Covenant, in that it restricts the liberty of action of the League, and that it should accordingly be abrogated in accordance with Article 20 of the Covenant under which States members agree 'that this Covenant is accepted as abrogating all obligations or understandings inter se which are inconsistent with the terms thereof. . . .'

"But as against this it has been pointed out in the Italian review Affari Esteri that the Convention of 1888 has been recognized in two places in the Treaty of Versailles and other peace treaties. It is argued, therefore, that a convention which is recognized in two places in the treaty cannot be abrogated, on the grounds of inconsistency, under an earlier article in the same treaty. An alternative proposal put forward is that the terms of the Convention of 1888 might be reconsidered under Article 19 of the Covenant, which provides that 'The Assembly may from time to time advise the reconsideration by members of the Leage of treaties which have become inapplicable. . . .' "

SEC HEAD ANXIOUS FOR TEST OF HOLDING COMPANY LAW

J. M. Landis Urges That It Be Done, However, Without "Injury to Public."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Chairman James M. Landis of the Securities and Exchange Commission, tonight called on the public utility industry to "play ball" in testing the constitutionality of the holding company law.

The utility industry is contesting the validity of the law in the Baltimore Federal Court. The commission is not a party to the case though the court has refused the commission's plea for delay.

Landis asked that care be taken so there should "be no danger of a general undermining of the confidence of the millions of investors and consumers, who are more concerned with the efficient discharge of our duties than the theoretical issue of power. In this manner the constitutional question can be solved with negligible cost and an absence of injury to the public. By so doing the major portion of the industry could be left free to take advantage of the opportunity, which we gladly offer, to co-operate with us in fashioning the machanics of regulation. Working together we can create machinery which through insight, gathered by a frank and continuing exchange of experience, will become practicable, effective and wisely attuned to the difficulties of the task."

Lower Prices One Way Out of the Depression

Figures on Maldistribution.

Commenting on the maldistribution of income during the "prosperous" year 1929, Dr. Moulton in the latest book points out: "There were nearly 6,000,000 families with incomes of less than $1000; 12,000,000 with incomes under $1500; over 16,000,000 with incomes under $2000, and over 19,000,000, or 71 per cent of the total, with incomes less than $2500.

"A family income of $2500, at 1929 prices, was a very moderate one, permitting few of the luxuries of life. Hence it was clear that the consumptive requirements, and especially the wants of the masses of the people were far from satisfied."

Comparing the findings of the first and second books, Dr. Moulton continues that if the present plant and labor capacity were operated at the greatest efficiency possible under prevailing techniques and schemes of industrial management all of the "lower class" could have an income well above the $2000 per family level.

Big Incomes of the Few.

"As to income distribution and its results," Dr. Moulton says, "we found the proceeds of the nation's productive efforts going in disproportionate and increasing measure to a small percentage of the population—in 1929 as much as 23 per cent of the national income going to 1 per cent of the people.

"We found the unsatisfied wants—needs according to any good social standard—of the 92 per cent of all families who are now below the level of $5000 annual income sufficient to absorb the product of all our unused capacity under present conditions of productivity and still demand much more from such unexplored potentialities as might thereafter be opened up.

"We found the incomes of the rich going in large proportion to savings and these savings strongly augmented by others impounded at the source of corporations through the practice of accumulating corporate surpluses. These savings, after providing for such increase of capital goods as could be employed, we found spilling over into less fruitful or positively harmful uses, ranging from foreign loans 'bad as well as good' to the artificial bidding up of prices of domestic properties, notably corporate securities."

Thus "the basic maladjustment," according to Dr. Moulton, was not in the technical processes of production but in the "distribution of income."

The Third Book.

The third book, "The Formation of Capital," was a somewhat technical work on commercial banking, and its conclusion was that by the modern mechanics of credit the supply of money available for capital goods had been ample at all times, and that contrary to the view held by many, "construction of capital goods has usually followed rather than preceded fluctuations in the output of consumption goods," and that instead of having a deficiency of investment money, we have, and have had in the last 15 years, a surplus.

With this data accumulated, the Brookings scholars sought to find out why the competitive theory of the private capitalistic had not worked to lower prices and thus increased the real income, as distinct from the monetary income, of the population.

Briefly stated, the competitive theory did not work because competition gave way to price-fixing by monopolies, trade associations and other combinations. Price maintenance worked for a while—and in fact is still working—in some industries, and there are many proposals that the Federal Government shall step in to maintain prices for large groups of producers. The profits of this actual price maintenance were not spent on capital goods and did not get into circulation among the masses. Thus, according to Dr. Moulton, the price-lowering processes, which should operate automatically, were increasingly blocked by "artificial obstructions."

The Case for Capitalism.

Dr. Moulton paints a rosy picture of America if it were not for these "obstructions" and "abuses" of the capitalistic system, but he does not say how they shall be eliminated. He remains attached, however, to the private capitalistic setup." He says: "To seek the acceleration of economic progress by means of price reductions is not to attack the system of private capitalism, but rather to return to the very logic upon which that system was justified and extolled by both lay and professional students of the economic process during the days when the system was assuming its present general character.

"The basic economic policy which we are enunciating, does however, definitely attack what we regard as a serious abuse of the profits system and the institutions of private capital which have grown up in modern times. This is the tendency to centralize economic advantage, to protect existing business enterprises by protecting the price structure. For more than 50 years this process has been developing through the devices of corporate consolidation, pools, trusts, cartels, trade associations, and code authorities. Particularly since the World War, and often with the active assistance of governments, efforts have been going forward to "stabilize" existing business situations and to underwrite the prosperity of individuals, corporations, or large business groups by attempting to stabilize prices. We believe the evidence is clear that such attempts, however, well intended, are dangerously shortsighted. They result inevitably in "freezing" situations which in the interest of economic progress must be left as fluid as it is possible to make them.

"Masses Not Classes."

"A certain amount of economic progress can be secured by institutions and practices which advance the interests and protect the prosperity of particular lines of business, of special occupational groups, of financial solidarities, all relatively few in number. But we need to obtain economic progress in a broader measure than this. We need economic progress compatible with the richness of our resources, the technical power put in our hands by modern scientific knowledge, and the labor power of a capable working force most of whom want to give their labor steadily and effectively in order that they may win the means to more ample living. We need economic progress that includes all our people, the unskilled laborer as well as the master of a trade, farmers as well as townsmen, those seeking to develop a new business as well as those entrenched in an old one—the masses, not the classes."

These laudable objectives can be approved by a majority of the population, certainly by the 71 per cent of the families with incomes of less than $2500 a year. In his denunciation, however, he does not include the tariff as a price-fixer and profit-maker for the few. And a careful reading of his book does not uncover any reference to the fixed charges the consumer must pay, some of which are fixed by the banker and some by the governments, national and local, such as interest rates, insurance rates, public utility rates and taxes, all of which enter into the $2500 a year and less budget.

The 30-Hour Week.

Aside from the conclusions, three of the most interesting parts of the books are chapters titled "Some Basic Misconceptions," "Wealth Equalization," and "Raising Money Wages as a Road to Progress." These are devastating criticisms of the solutions offered by other amateur and professional economists.

The chapter on "Some Basic Misconceptions" undertakes to answer some of the popular and political explanations of the depression, namely, that we have lived beyond our economic means; that we are suffering from general over-production; that curtailment of production will solve our difficulties, and that our present condition is due to economic old age.

Dr. Moulton's answer to the proposition that curtailment of production will bring prosperity is in reality an attack on the Black 30-hour week bill, which passed the Senate in 1933, and has many advocates in and out of Congress, particularly the American Federation of Labor.

Admitting that the universally 30-hour week would permit the employment of many workers, Dr. Moulton finds, however, that "a 30-hour working week would mean a production output, on the basis of full employment, substantially below the level of 1929."

If the 30-hour week were adopted, the Government, according to Dr. Moulton, would "unwittingly" say to the laboring classes: "You can reap henceforth no advantage from technological progress, other than greater leisure; you shall have no choice between more goods and services and more spare time; only insofar as you may be able to obtain a larger share of the fixed total wealth produced will it be possible for you to enjoy more of the material comforts and conveniences of life."

In the last analysis, says Dr. Moulton, the level of consumption achieved by the people is governed by the volume of goods and services flowing from productive sources into consumptive channels. The 30-hour week, in his opinion, would decrease, not increase, the flow.

Share-the-Wealth.

Without mentioning the late Senator from Louisiana, the Brookings president dissects Huey Long's share-the-wealth program and says that even if changed to a redistribution of income plan "the conclusion is inescapable that a redistribution of income so as to provide complete uniformity would be administratively impracticable." Long, of course, did not advocate "complete uniformity," but the geographic differences in this country pointed out by Moulton indicate that the Long plan would have been impossible to put into operation.

Dr. Moulton would leave the present disparities between the classes but would raise the living standards of the great masses.

"If we are to achieve the goal of satisfactory standards of living for everyone," he argues, "the first requirement is to increase progressively the total amount of the income to be divided. Only as the aggregate national income increases from 80 billions a year to 100 billions, to 150 billions, to 200 billions, will the goal of a high standard of living for everyone be attained.

"The distribution of income from year to year is of primary significance not for its momentary effects upon the well-being of the masses, but for its possible cumulative effects in promoting a fuller utilization of our productive facilities and a consequent progressive increase in the aggregate income to be available for distribution. We are not interested in maintaining a static situation in which the total income, even if equally distributed, would be altogether inadequate; we are interested rather in producing a dynamic situation in which increasing quantities of newly created goods and services would become available for everyone."

Favors Wage Increases.

Under the title, "Raising Money Wages as a Road to Progress," the book says increased wages in dollars is the most obvious method yet devised to spread purchasing power.

"It is the method," Dr. Moulton says, "which has been steadfastly pursued by labor organizations in this and other countries, and it is the method which has been officially experimented with under the auspices of the National Recovery Administration."

Although the Brookings Institution has been a constant and effective critic of the NRA, Dr. Moulton finds that the wage increase arguments of the NRA were theoretically sound—but for conditions other than those to which they were applied. He lays the failure of the NRA to the fact that 80 per cent of industry had deficits when the plan was tried; on the failure of bankers to co-operate; the increase of prices before the increase of wages, and the rush of industry in the summer of 1933 to speed up production before the imposition of the codes.

Conceding that "wage increases as a rule are granted only under pressure—exerted by a general scarcity of labor or by the power of labor organizations," Dr. Moulton adds: "No one can study the long struggle of labor in this and other countries to achieve the goal of progressively higher standards by means of higher money wages without being impressed with the terrific economic, political, and social costs involved, and the meager results that have been achieved. The time would seem to be opportune for giving the most thorough consideration to other means of accomplishing the ends in view — means which might work in accord rather than at cross purposes with the competitive system."

Organized Labor.

The fundamental trouble with organized labor's struggle for higher money wages, according to Dr. Moulton, is that even when successful it penalizes the farmer and the unorganized worker. He points out that of the 49 million workers in the United States in 1930, only 3.4 millions, or fewer than 7 per cent, were members of any labor organization.

"It is thus evident," he observes, "that as yet, and in all probability for many years to come, the procurement of higher wages through labor organizations cannot be counted on to effect a broad nation-wide increase in the purchasing power of the mass of the people. It can at best benefit only certain groups. In so doing it tends to affect other groups adversely."

Presents St. Louisan's Plan.

In place of organized labor fighting with employers for increased wages, Dr. Moulton suggests that profit-sharing by employers offers many advantages. He admits, however, that this plan has at best only limited applicability. In the appendix, he offers a profit-sharing plan advanced by Harry B. Wallace, president of the Cupples Co., of St. Louis, which combines taxation and profit-sharing. This plan is as follows:

1. Increase the Federal income tax on corporations from 15 to 25 per cent.

2. Allow any corporation which (a) pays as extra compensation to all of its employes, in proportion to their salaries or wages, an amount equal to 10 per cent of its profits, up to, but not in excess of 50 per cent of the salaries of wages paid, (b) maintains minimum wages and maximum hours and child labor regulations satisfactory to the Federal Government, and (c) pays to the Federal Government a tax of 13¾ per cent, an exemption from the remaining 1¼ per cent of Federal tax.

"Higher corporation income taxes are inevitable," the Wallace suggestion says. "Would it not be better for corporations to pay part of their profits to those who have helped create them than all of the amount taxed to the Government?"

A 10 per cent distribution of corporation profits would have been for the year (ending in June), according to Wallace, as follows:

Figures on Profit-Sharing.

1928— — — — — — — —	$1,061,600,000
1929— — — — — — — —	1,165,300,000
1930— — — — — — — —	642,800,000
1931— — — — — — — —	368,300,000
1932— — — — — — — —	215,100,000
1933— — — — — — — —	286,495,400

Dr. Moulton does not give profit-sharing his wholehearted approval, explaining that while it might stimulate efficiency, develop more satisfactory industrial relations and contribute to a more satisfactory division of income, more information is needed about corporate income and corporate practices before a "plan of broad general applicability can be soundly and scientifically conceived."

His solution is price reductions, and while he does not say how they shall be brought about, he is committed to that above all other plans.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.

FINDING of the Brookings Institution as to why the American business machine ceased to function effectively in 1929:

"In the prosperity period of the twenties there was a great increase in production efficiency; but there was not corresponding reduction in selling prices —indeed retail prices did not decline at all. Instead of vigorously reducing prices as costs were reduced, the practice prevailed over broad and basically important sections of American industry to hold prices at or near existing levels, or even to advance them when the current of demand ran strong. Thus the volume of sales was prevented from attaining the dimensions it might have reached.

"Instead of tapping the vast sources of potential demand residing in the unfilled wants of the American people, price policy tended to freeze the market at existing levels. Instead of endeavoring to expand sales through price reductions, we sought by high pressure salesmanship and installment credit to induce people to buy more than they could afford. Despite such temporary stimulation of demand and the expansion of sales abroad by means of credits and dumping policies, American industry in general continued to have a substantial margin of unutilized productive capacity.

"Had the volume of sales been expanded as a result of price reductions, unit costs would have been reduced and profits might well have been larger. The business manager who progressively reduces selling prices as technological improvements are made need have no real concern over the long-run trend of profits. The history of business enterprise shows that under such conditions profits usually take care of themselves. Even if profits should not actually increase, a contribution is nevertheless being made through the expansion of wealth production toward raising the level of material well-being—which is the ultimate purpose of an economic system."

LEAGUE REPLIES TO HULL ON RAZING TRADE BARRIERS

Assembly President Voices Hope of Co-operation in Overcoming Difficulties.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Sept. 28.—Dr. Eduard Benes, president of the League of Nations Assembly, replied today to Secretary of State Cordell Hull's message expressing American interest in a proposal at Geneva to remove restrictions from international trade.

Dr. Benes expressed the hope "that the community of interest and unity of view which are thus shown to exist between the policy of the United States and the recommendations of the Assembly on economic and financial questions may find expression during the coming month in a close co-operation and joint endeavor to overcome the difficulties which have so long confronted the world."

Secretary Hull said in his message: "The world will note the leading conclusion of your committee is that the adoption of more liberal international trading policies is 'indispensable' to further recovery."

Movie Stars at Premium As Production Picks Up

Double Feature Programs Keep Film Mills Busy — Established "Names" See Chance to Boost Salaries to Half Million a Picture.

BY H. H. NIEMEYER.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 28.

REPORTS from all over the country indicate that the movie business has picked up tremendously. Almost as many fans are putting their cash on the line as did in the good old days of 1928 and 1929 and, as a result the studios are standing on their feet again. After a half-hearted fight against the double feature program—a fight which now seems to have faded out for good and all—more pictures are in the making than ever before. Not only are the larger film factories turning out more products but independent studios are springing up over night. Almost anywhere you go in the outskirts of Hollywood these days, or evenings, you are pretty bound to stumble upon a quickie company turning out an outdoor scene. With practically every movie house in the country showing two films daily—and a few of them three—the demand is way ahead of the supply.

There is no lack of story material. If the magnates cannot get, at the moment, a new picture idea they turn back to the better of the silents, call in the caged dramatists to provide dialogue and start shooting. A lot of the old-timers are being remade now and a lot more are to follow.

There is, however, a decided lack of new starring talent as evidenced by the passing around of the big names from studio to studio. Every effort is being made to provide new box office names but, so far, there are no William Powells, Garbos, Dietrichs, Colberts, Beerys, Crawfords and the others of that standing. Plenty of promising material is in sight to be sure but, so far, the old timers continue to bask in the electric lights.

THE producers view the situation with something akin to alarm. The old timers, knowing their worth, are getting ready to demand more money. True they get kings' and queens' ransoms now but they are disturbed over the fact that a large part of their income will have to be paid out in taxes next year and they want someone to chip in.

They point to the fact that the highest paid entertainer in the world is only indirectly connected with pictures and they contend that the movies are better able to pay for entertainers than anyone else. According to a trade paper, which is a sort of Bible among cinema folks, Edward (Major) Bowes, with his air programs, his stage shows for movie houses stocked with amateur performers and a few side lines, is collecting $20,000 every Saturday night for 52 weeks in a year. Chaplin, Pickford, Fairbanks and Jolson probably, at one time or another, each made a million dollars in a single year but it was always a sort of gamble; never by way of a straight weekly salary amounting to that sum. Incidentally there is no movie star approaching that figure today. Garbo, Dietrich and one or two others are being paid enough, per picture, to reach that sum if they made more pictures but the studios hold them down to a couple of films a year.

A half million dollars for each picture is what some of the older stars are set upon demanding when their present contracts run out. Strange to say it is not Hollywood but England which has taken the lead by paying Gracie Fields $250,000 a picture, with a possibility of letting her turn out four of 'em in the next 12 months. Garbo's $250,000 per picture is still the top salary here, but she is definitely limited to two a year.

The rank and file of the British players' pay falls considerably under the same class of actors in Hollywood but London is calling rather loudly with cash for stars. Marlene Dietrich is going abroad for at least one film at a big raise in pay, Ann Harding is considering an overseas offer and Claudette Colbert is flirting with a British proposition. There are others, too.

ACCORDING to Government reports, about 20 Hollywood stars were paid from $150,000 to $300,000 last year. It was not a particularly good year either, and since then, raises of from 25 to 40 per cent have been admitted in several instances. There was a time when Tom Mix drew down his $17,000 a week, but that was via a circus as well as films. Nobody has yet reached the $500,000 paid to John McCormack for his "Song of My Heart" or the same amount turned over to Al Jolson for "Hallelujah, I'm a Bum." Neither picture justified, by the way, such salaries through the box office.

There was John Gilbert's million dollar contract but that covered a period of years. John Barrymore was paid off in big figures, too, but the impression out here is that the publicity of his ridiculous affair with the Barrie girl has ended his chances of ever reaching the top again. What hurt Barrymore more than anything else, Hollywood points out, was the continuous reference to his age. The fans, say the wise ones, want their romantic stars young.

If Miss Barrie, on the other hand, wants to come into films, she can get in at a fat salary right now—for one picture at least.

Broadway Active As New Season Gets Under Way

BROADWAY producers have been late in getting started this year, but shows are now bobbing up with increasing frequency. As yet, none has captured the universal fancy of public and reviewers.

"At Home Abroad," a new Shubert revue, nevertheless, is off to a good start. Its principals include Beatrice Lillie, Ethel Waters, Herb Williams, Eleanor Powell (the film star of "Broadway Melody of 1936") and Paul Haakon, former Municipal Opera dancer. The show is made up of a series of travel sketches, presented in the manner of "As Thousands Cheer."

Two significant, even if not yet highly popular dramas, are on the boards. They are "Winterset," the new Maxwell Anderson play, and "If This Be Treason," an anti-war piece presented by the Theater Guild. Anderson, again writing his dialogue in verse, pictures a group of social castaways living at the foot of Brooklyn Bridge, with one seeking to clear the name of his father, who has been legally executed for the murder of a paymaster during a holdup. Reminiscent of the Sacco-Vanzetti case, about which Anderson wrote in his "Gods of the Lightning," the play, after criticism of weak judicial systems and police controlled by political machines, comes to a tragic finish. Richard Bennett and Burgess Meredith have principal roles.

"If This Be Treason" offers a situation in which a President of the United States is opposed to a war with Japan and when faced with impeachment because he opposes it, sets out for Nippon to carry his personal olive-branch. His skillful handling of the situation eventually results in victory. The Rev. John Haynes Holmes was one of the authors of the play.

METROPOLITAN reviewers found themselves sentimentally pleased with "Remember the Day," story of a 14-year-old boy, who falls in love with his school teacher and feels the world collapsing about him when he discovers she loves a man her own age. Francesca Bruning takes the role of the teacher and Frankie Thomas that of the boy.

"Life's Too Short," drama of the domestic life of a young couple during the earlier stages of the depression, and "A Touch of Brimstone," about a theatrical producer's domestic affairs, despite worth of production, are generally accounted as unimpressive.

Civic Music League Series to Open Nov. 19

A final schedule for the Civic Music League concerts at the Municipal Auditorium sets the opening of the season for Nov. 19, when Kirsten Flagstad, Norwegian soprano, and the admitted "sensation" of last year at the Metropolitan Opera in New York, will be heard. She will be making her first American tour, immediately before the opening of the opera season.

Second in the series is the Moscow Cathedral Choir, with Nicholas Afonsky as conductor and M. Zaporojetz, singing actor, as soloist, on Dec. 10. The team of Emanuel Feuermann, cellist, and Mischa Levitzki arrive for joint recital on Jan. 14, the Jooss European ballet on Feb. 11 and Poldi Mildner, highly popular at her piano recital at the Auditorium last spring, will come back on March 10.

Lubitsch Plans Negro Operetta.

"The Chocolate Princess," planned as the first operetta ever to be filmed with an all-Negro cast, is to be produced under the direction of Ernst Lubitsch.

The two opening productions of the Little Theater's repertory season will be "The School for Husbands," a translation by Laurence Langner and Arthur Guiterman of the Moliere comedy, and "Wunderkind," by Gretchen Damrosch and Samuel Chotzinoff. "The School for Husbands" will open on Nov. 7, "Wunderkind" on Nov. 11.

With an increased subscription list, the Little Theater will run each play three nights a week for four weeks, giving 12 performances instead of 10, as was the custom last year.

Four New Soloists For Symphony Season

FOUR soloists who have not appeared before with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will be presented in the course of its forthcoming season, which begins on Nov. 8 and 9, and ends April 9 and 11, in Holy Week.

Heading the list of newcomers is Lawrence Tibbett, baritone widely known for his opera, radio, motion picture and concert work. Although he gave a recital at the Odeon several years ago, he has never sung with the Symphony. He will appear at the concerts on Dec. 13 and 14.

The Symphony Society also is bringing to St. Louis Robert Casadeus, young French pianist, who has appeared in every country of Europe and in South America. He made a short tour in the United States last spring and will come to St. Louis for concerts on Jan. 24 and 25.

Raya Garbousova, young Russian woman violincellist, will be the Symphony soloist on Jan. 3 and 4, in the course of her first American tour. On Feb. 7 and 8, Paul Wittgenstein, one-armed piano virtuoso, will exhibit the extraordinary skill which made him a sensation of the Boston Symphony season last winter. Wittgenstein, an Austrian, lost his right arm in the World War. Several composers, including Strauss, Ravel, Korngold and Prokofieff, have written music especially for him.

The first soloist is Sergei Rachmaninoff, pianist, whose appearance was one of the high lights of last season. Rachmaninoff will be heard at concerts on Nov. 15 and 16. Pianists to follow are Josef Hofmann, March 6 and 7, and Rudolph Ganz, former conductor of the orchestra, on March 27 and 28. Violinists include Fritz Kreisler, Nov. 29 and 30; Nathan Milstein, Jan. 10 and 11, and Scipione Guidi, concertmaster of the orchestra, on Feb. 28 and 29. Max Steindel, principal violincellist, will be soloist Dec. 6 and 7.

The orchestra's first concerts, on Nov. 8 and 9, will offer an all-orchestral program. Other such concerts are to be given on Nov. 22 and 23, Jan. 31 and Feb. 1, Feb. 14 and 15.

Vladimir Golschmann, conductor, is expected back from Europe in the next few weeks to begin rehearsals. Golschmann, who will be entering on his fifth consecutive season here, has spent the summer in France studying and arranging programs, with occasional excursions to the principal European musical festivals. As usual, he will bring back a selection of modern works for first performance during the winter.

The St. Louis Symphony Chorus of 200 voices, will begin rehearsals Tuesday night, under the direction of William B. Heyne. It will be heard in pre-Christmas concerts on Dec. 20 and 21 with Helen Traubel, soprano, as soloist. On April 3 and 4, it will sing Verdi's "Manzoni" Requiem, with Jeanette Vreeland, soprano; Rose Bampton, contralto; Dan Gridley, tenor, and Keith Falkner, baritone, as the solo group.

Opening of the season ticket sale is set for tomorrow at the Auditorium box office, although reservations may be made also at the Symphony Society office on the fourth floor of the building. The subscription sale has already equaled that of last year, according to Arthur J. Gaines, manager of the orchestra.

56 Boxes for Opera "Horseshoe."

Seating arrangements for the St. Louis Grand Opera Company performance beginning Oct. 31, in the new Convention Hall at the Municipal Auditorium, provide for 56 boxes in a "golden horseshoe" on the main floor, with ramps in the rear to raise the rearmost seats seven feet above those at the front. "Turandot," with Maria Jeritza and Gieuseppe Bentonelli, opens the season.

Big Cast for "Ziegfeld."

"The Great Ziegfeld," which has just been ordered into production, will have 105 speaking parts. The principals, of course, are William Powell as Ziegfeld, Luise Rainer as Anna Held, Fanny Brice as herself, and in addition, scores of famous show people in person or proxy.

"Broadway Melody" Lives Up to Celebrated Name

New 1936 Version of Early Screen Success Equals Predecessor in Entertainment Value—Russian Movie Comes to Grand Central.

By COLVIN McPHERSON

THE old glamour is there. For "Broadway Melody of 1936" is one of those rare motion pictures that lives up to promise. Making its bow, on Loew's screen, with the title song of the famous "Broadway Melody" of six, seven years ago, it has the full pulse that guarantees its success. It not only deserves its famous title, it gives that title an added luster. In its assembly of new material, it offers the thrills that come to first-nighters. Eleanor Powell makes her debut as the cleverest tap-dancer, with the possible exception of Jessie Matthews, among the gorgeous of gelatine-land. Count a fine gift for comedy and impersonation, of Katharine Hepburn, in her favor, too. Well up in the spotlight are the dance team of June Knight and Nick Long Jr., ours-truly of Forest Park, and the comedy-stepping pair, Buddy and Vilma Ebsen. For pure comedy, Jack Benny; his companion, Sid Silvers, the original of all "stooges," and Robert Wildhack, who has a repertory of snores. "Broadway Melody of 1936" is again backstage, with a musical comedy in rehearsal, a horsefly columnist annoying the impresario, who is too busy to see Cinderella. In order, the parts go to Benny, Robert Taylor and Miss Powell. The main stem itself is a busy street, an up-to-date street. Ensemble scenes, by Dave Gould of "Carioca" and "Continental" fame, are fast and furious, with the recurrent aid of mechanical contraptions, moving floors and disappearing scenery. Presuming to a greater grayness of beard than I possibly possess, I would say "Broadway Melody of 1936" is a history-maker and a star-maker. It may not be the greatest invention since the electric light, nor as fresh as a liquored Legionnaire, but it is showmanship supreme. As if that were not enough, Loew's has the Baer-Louis fight pictures. All we may say of them, critically, is that Maxie has had better parts in the movies, as for example, in "The Prizefighter and the Lady." And Joe Louis is no lady.

CHAPAYEV, THE RED COMMANDER. Foreign language films, meritorious and otherwise, are rare in St. Louis, therefore the appearance of an excellent Russian film is an event. "Chapayev, the Red Commander," opens today at the Grand Central, and will be shown again tomorrow evening and Tuesday evening. Having seen it some weeks ago at the S'Renco screening room, while its fate in St. Louis was still in the balance, I can advocate its worth. Its demerits, so far as we are concerned, are only that it is entirely in Russian and not as technically perfect as Hollywood films. Yet the Russian is scarcely harder to understand than the English of the Abbey Theater Players and a translation is printed on the film. "Chapayev," one of the best loved heroes of modern Russia, actually lived. He was a peasant genius who rallied a division, in the district around the Caspian Sea, and supported the Soviet cause, in the civil war days of 1919. The central government sent Commissar Furmanov to bring him under discipline. "Chapayev," therefore, has no more propagandist significance than would the life of Ethan Allen put on the screen. It is a thrilling, uncannily real drama, created by brilliant intelligence and cinema skill. Its star, Boris Babochkin, a kind of Slavic Walter Huston, has received the highest Soviet artistic award. He is amply entitled to it.

SHE MARRIED HER BOSS. Claudette Colbert's magnetic comic personality is displayed to full advantage in the main feature at the Ambassador and Fox theaters. Introduced as one of those genii of modern business, who sit at desks, answer 40 phones and straighten out all departments, she progresses into marriage with the department store executive, Melvyn Douglas, and applies her efficient methods to his household. The office suffers, Melvyn gets mixed up and Claudette's romantic life, except for the advances of Michael Bartlett, becomes a total loss. Later on, Melvyn gets silly drunk and wins her back. "She Married Her Boss" is bright comedy of a familiar type, spoiled somewhat by a finish where a drunken driver sweeps through busy streets. That definitely is not amusing. A grand part of the show is Edith Fellowes as a hellish little brat. "Thunder in the Night," the second feature, throws mystery around the murder of one of those husbands believed dead. Edmund Lowe does the detecting, when he is not spending his time trying to draw a laugh at the expense of a Hungarian police lieutenant, Gene Lockhart. Phil Cavanaugh, cabinet minister, and his frau, Karen Morley, are those saved from suspicion and scandal.

THE RETURN OF PETER GRIMM. The traditional Belasco-Warfield success is done over again, at the Shubert, with Lionel Barrymore as the nurseryman who interferes with true love. Unaltered in major respects, it keeps also the setting of the period in which it was first presented. Today's audience will find it dated but quite sufficient. "The Goose and the Gander" pictures California's smart set in a little mix-up over husbands and jewel-thieves. Good for a chuckle here and there, it has some interest for its settings, lovely gowns of the ladies, Kay Francis and Genevieve Tobin and various trifles. Municipal Opera patrons will recognize one of last summer's comedians, John Sheehan, as a member of a rascally duo at a gasoline station.

SUPERSPEED. Norman Foster invents something or other for automobiles and crooks interfere with a test. He goes down to the beach and Florence Rice lets him use the gadget on her speed-boat. But Mary Carlisle, that lemon-jello menace, trails after him. Final scene, Norman winning a boat race and putting his arm around Florence. "Dizzy Dames" is a shoddy musical, made by one of Hollywood's very minor organizations. The patter says that Marjorie Rambeau was known all over the world as a great actress, but had managed to keep that fact from her daughter.

TOP HAT. With the momentum of previous Astaire-Rogers pictures, plus several new and clever routines, "Top Hat" continues to attract at the Orpheum.

Gone but not forgotten by their CHILDREN AND MANY MORE WHO LOVED THEM.

GROSCH, CHARLES SR.—In loving memory of our dear husband, father, who departed this life Oct. 1, 1934.
So lonesome, since you are gone,
Seems to make my life all wrong;
Not to hear your voice or see,
Things the way they used to be,
Guess we miss most everything
Waiting all the time for thee.
Sadly missed by
WIFE, SON, GRANDCHILDREN AND FRIENDS.

HEIENBROCK, EMMA—In loving memory of our dear aunt, who died Sept. 27, 1934.
It was sad, indeed, the way you had to die,
Without a chance to say good-by;
Your spirit flew before we knew that you
From us had gone.
If you had raised your dying head
And bade us all a farewell,
The blow would not have been so hard
To us who loved you so well.
ANNIE AND LAURA.

KASDEN, CHAS.—Private; in loving memory of our dear son and brother, who gave his life for his country, Sept. 28, 1918:

She is not dead, but only asleep.
LOVING DAUGHTERS AND GRANDCHILDREN.

McTIGUE—In memory of Peter J. McTigue, who died suddenly Oct. 2, 1930:
Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind,
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they leave behind;
Loving and kind in all of his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days;
Sincere and true in heart and mind;
Beautiful memories he left behind.

SALESMEN WANTED

SINCERE MEN OF THOUGHT AND ACTION

Within the past few weeks, I have hired several men in St. Louis and surrounding territory who, today, will tell you they are in the most pleasant and profitable work of their lives. Maybe you, too, will meet our requirements and find that a connection with us will prove profitable to you.

We are painstakingly careful in the wording of our ads to see that no misleading statements are made—we know men are skeptical today—they have a right to be. We tell you our company is financially sound. Our men are making more than just a good living, and we ask you to investigate thoroughly. We tell you our company is growing rapidly—that last year was our best year in business. We have added men and women when other manufacturers were laying them off or reducing their pay. We have reduced no salaries nor laid anyone off for several years, all of which must convince you our mechanical specialties are not the ordinary kind. There must be something unusual about them. This year so far is the best in our history. We are breaking previous months' production records month after month right here in St. Louis and vicinity. Our products are something new, the need of which is universal and the demand greater than you can possibly imagine until you have seen and investigated them for yourself.

We have nothing to sell you. If you are acceptable, we do not ask you to do anything that other men in St. Louis are not doing successfully each day, but we do most emphatically state, if you meet our requirements as to character, references, etc., we will give you as good, if not a better opportunity than you have ever had to make a good honest, honorable, living for yourself and your family, on a compensation plan of bonus plus liberal commission, with no investment of any kind from you. The work is dignified and pleasant, and you will be glad to look your friend in the eye and tell him about it. The pay is exceptionally good.

If you earnestly want a job or an opportunity to better yourself, and are willing to put sincere thought and action into your work, we will be glad to meet you personally, Monday morning, 9:30 to 1:15 only, at Paul Brown Bldg., (Cor. 9th and Olive Sts.) Room 512.

Laura Gray Is Married To R. S. Jones

Bride Wears Grandmother's Wedding Gown and Pearl Brooch Used by Brides of Five Generations of Her Family.

MISS LAURA STEPHENS GRAY, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Ashley Gray, 9 Lenox place, and a descendant of one of St. Louis' old and prominent families, was married last night to Richard Stanley Jones, formerly of Shelbyville, Ind. The Rev. Dr. George H. Tolley of the Second Baptist Church performed the ceremony at the Gray home in the presence of the families and a few close friends.

Both the setting and the gowns of the bride and her sister, Miss Elise, her only attendant, were reminiscent of another age. Candles, which gave the only illumination during the service, gleamed from prismed girondelles reflected in mirrors framed in gold leaf, adding to the glow of tall cathedral tapers arranged in floor candelabra at the altar at one end of the Colonial living room. White chrysanthemums, ranging from pompoms to giant shaggy blossoms were clustered on old mahogany.

Preceded by the maid of honor, the bride and her father walked down the stairway, its balustrade covered with huckleberry foliage, through a ribbon aisle held by wicker posts. Windows back of the altar were concealed by green velvet drapery, foliage hung, against which were silhoutted tall vases of white chrysanthemums and a white satin prie-dieu. The wedding music was played by Paul Friess on an organ installed for the occasion.

The wedding gown, a creation of satin brocade and heavy silk, mellowed by age to a deep cream, was designed 54 years ago for the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Ben F. Gray. Crinoline stiffened the full, trained skirt with its dust ruffle of rose point lace, and the quaint basque bodice was whaleboned after the fashion of the period. A panel of gros grain, deeply shirred and embroidered with sprays of wheat, heavy with whole pearls, hung from the waist in front and revealed tiny pleating on a petticoat beneath. The low square neck line was partly filled in with rose point lace, pearl trimmed, and more of the lace cascaded from tight, elbow sleeves. As her only jewelry the bride wore a fine old pearl brooch which has been used by five generations of brides on both sides of her family. Her wedding veil, deep cream tinted tulle, was fastened to her hair by a band of orange blossoms.

Miss Tankersley Becomes Bride of William Houser

Ceremony Performed by Candlelight in Grace Episcopal Church—Bride and Attendants in Gowns of Victorian Design

THE frills and furbelows of the Victorian era, again popular in house and fashion design, made their appearance at a wedding Friday night, when Miss Marilyn Jane Tankersley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Troy Tankersley, 636 Sherwood drive, Webster Groves, became the bride of William Douglas Houser. Mr. Houser is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bond Houser of Troy, O. The ceremony was performed by candle light at the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church by the Rev. Dr. Loren M. Edwards.

The bride, who walked down the illuminated aisle with her father, wore a Victorian gown of ivory slipper satin, made with a squarecut neck line fastened with pearl clips, a fitted bodice and a full skirt. The gown was fastened with tiny satin buttons from the neck to the end of the built-in train. An unusual note in the costume was a cluster of three gardenias at the top of her head, from which fell the voluminous tulle veil, and the gardenias which decorated the veil itself. The bride carried a nosegay of the same blossoms, combined with lilies of the valley.

Miss Jacqueline Tankersley, who served her sister as maid of honor, was gowned in light colored copper taffeta, and the gowns of the bridesmaids, Miss Marie Taylor Spink, Miss Mary Virginia Stocker and Miss Betty Fitzgerald, also of taffeta, varied in the copper tints to deep bronze. They were fashioned alike, with upstanding folds of the material outlining the square necks and short, tight sleeves. The maid of honor wore a rust-colored velvet sash, and a matching ribbon about her hair, and the bridesmaids had short off-the-shoulder jackets with a fold gathered in the front by buttons, and peplums in the back. They wore bonnets with pleated brims to match their dresses and carried nosegays of zinnias and pompoms, blending the copper tints. The bride's mother wore black velvet and Mrs. Houser black net. Both had corsages of gardenias.

Rea Baker, Kansas City, was best man, and the ushers were Bond Houser Jr. and F. Douglass Houser, twin brothers of the bridegroom; James Townley, Kansas City; Charles Bart Hawley, Cincinnati, and Robert Coles Raetze, Stamford, Conn.

A background of woodwardia fern and palms filled the chancel of the church, and at the pulpit were two large vases of white

Miss Von Catinelli Engaged to Marry Austrian Nobleman

THE engagement of Miss Rachelle von Catinelli Edle von Obradich-Bevilacqua, director of the art department of Maryville College, and Alexander von Wuthenau, nephew of the late Archduke Franz Ferdinand and the late Archduchess Sophie of Austria, has been announced.

The formal announcement was made recently at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Georg Ahrens in Mexico, D. F., where Miss von Catinelli, as she is known to her students, has been visiting, and where she met her fiance this summer. Dr. Ahrens, former German Consul in St. Louis, is now counselor to the German Legation in Mexico City.

The prospective bride is the daughter of Arthur Catinelli Edler von Obradich-Bevilacqua, Rear Admiral of the Imperial Austrian Navy, and Mrs. von Catinelli, the former Anna de Luppis. She was educated at the Sacred Heart Convent of Pressbaum, near Vienna, and studied art at Kunstgewerbeschule, well-known Viennese academy. She came to St. Louis four years ago.

Alexander von Wuthenau is the son of Count Carl Adam von Wuthenau, who is living at present on his estate, "Hohenthurm," near Halle, Saxony. The mother of the bridegroom-elect was the late Countess Chotek, sister of Archduchess Sophie, whose assassination with her husband was one of the most significant events leading to the World War.

Mr. von Wuthenau was educated at the Benedictine Abbey in Ettal, Bavaria, and later became a doctor of philosophy in diplomacy. He is former secretary of the German embassies in Washington and Buenos Aires. On resigning recently from the diplomatic service, he became interested in the restoration of Spanish American art in old and New Mexico. He will arrive in St. Louis early in October and the wedding will take place here later in the month.

Miss Dorothy Dobson Will Marry Nov. 7

AN IMPORTANT early November wedding will be that of Miss Dorothy Dobson, daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. R. Calvin Dobson, 84 Arundel place, and Robert Blemker Brooks Jr., for which the bride has selected Thursday, Nov. 7. Dr. Dobson will perform the ceremony at 8:30 in the evening at the First Presbyterian Church, of which he is pastor. The personnel of the bridal party has not been completed and will be announced later.

Mr. Brooks is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Brooks, 6048 West Cabanne place.

Debut Reception.

Miss Ann Harwood Russe, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick William Russe, 5247 Westminster place, will be presented to society at a reception at her home Tuesday, Oct. 15. Guests will be invited to call between 4 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon.

Kaine-Pirrung Wedding Oct. 26

THE wedding of Miss Henriette Catherine Pirrung, daughter of Mrs. Clifford W. Gaylord, 816 South Hanley road, and Lawrence Stewart Kaine of New York, will take place at 4:30 o'clock the afternoon of Oct. 26 at the home of Col. and Mrs. Gaylord. A limited number of close friends will be invited to the ceremony, which is to be followed by a reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carnavon Flynn of Pacific Palisades, Cal., the latter formerly Miss Jane Pirrung, will arrive in St. Louis in a few days to take part in the wedding, and the bride, who has spent the summer in New York, will announce the completed plans on her arrival here next week.

Mrs. Flynn is to be matron of honor, and Miss Martha Nicolaus, Miss Josephine Scullin and Mrs. Warren Kaine of New York, the bridegroom's sister-in-law, are to be bridesmaids.

Warren Kaine will be his brother's best man, and Mr. Flynn, Gilbert Pirrung, the bride's brother; W. Stanley Moore, cousin of the bridegroom, and Roger Garris, both of New York, are included in the list of groomsmen.

After a honeymoon, the destination of which has not been disclosed, Mr. Kaine and his bride will live in New York. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Laurence F. Kaine of New York.

Frances Charlot Is Honor Guest

AN outing at the Dardenne Gun Club near St. Peter's, Mo., has been planned for this evening by Mr. and Mrs. Stuart M. Butler, 6369 Wydown boulevard, in honor of Miss Jeanne Frances Charlot and a group of the season's debutantes and their escorts. Miss Charlot is the debutante daughter of Mrs. Theodore Ferguson Fowler, 43 Kingsbury place.

The party will leave the Fowler home at half after 3 o'clock and reach the gun club on the Missouri River in time for a hayride before dark. Supper will be served buffet style and on the lawn if weather permits.

The debutantes will be attired in their newest country tweeds, bright sweaters, soft slouch hats and walking shoes.

Parties at Dardenne early in the debutante season have become almost traditional, because hostesses feel their informality gives the young men and women an excellent opportunity to become acquainted.

Several seasons ago Miss Louise Goddard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Goddard, 21 Brentmoor, gave a party at the club, during which each debutante was introduced individually to the assembled gentlemen, asked embarrassing questions, and expected to perform a parlor trick on a moment's notice. Early in the fall of 1932 Miss Anne Goddard, a younger sister of Miss Louise, invited a group of debutantes to Dardenne and pre-

Autumn Brides and Veiled Prophet Maids of Honor

Veiled Prophet Maids at Supper

EACH maid of honor in the Court of Love and Beauty for the Veiled Prophet ball, to be held at the Coliseum Wednesday night, Oct. 9, will receive an invitation tomorrow for the supper dance in the gold room of Hotel Jefferson, following the coronation ceremonies.

The supper dance, in honor of the Veiled Prophet Queen, originally was a private party given by the queen's family for its immediate circle of relatives and friends. It has grown in popularity and proportion until it has become an elaborate social function with an attendance of more than 1000 guests.

Celebrated first in the old St. Louis Club, the supper dance has had its setting in the gold room of Hotel Jefferson for the last five years. When it was first held there, about 700 guests were comfortably accommodated. Last year there were 1341 guests. Reservations this year will be limited to the capacity of the gold room and the crystal room.

Maids of honor receiving invitations have been requested to invite their escorts immediately. The young men invited by the maids of honor will be distinguished by a special insignia, which they will receive on their arrival in the gold room. This insignia will permit each escort to dance with any other maid of honor besides his hostess without a formal introduction.

Special tables will be reserved for maids of honor and their escorts near the ivory room where the dancing takes place. These tables will be specially decorated and will bear place cards. Every year, since the installation of the special tables, question has arisen among some of the guests as to who is privileged to be at the tables. The Veiled Prophet has let it be known that they are for the maids of honor and their escorts, only.

A table on the stage of the gold room will be reserved for the Veiled Prophet Queen, her special maids of honor and their escorts. Tables for guests will be placed in the gold room. These tables will seat six, eight or 12 persons. Other tables will be placed on the balcony overlooking the gold room for parties of four and six. Additional parties will be seated in the crystal room.

After the ceremony a reception for the bridal party and families was held at the home of the bride's parents. Miss Bayle Bride Of J. Q. Strong

THE wedding of Miss Jane E. Bayle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Bayle Jr., 7390 Westmoreland drive, and Jules Q. Strong, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jules E. Strong, 7527 Westmoreland drive, took place yesterday morning at 10 o'clock at Our Lady of Lourdes Church, with the Rev. Francis O'Connor officiating.

The altar was adorned with bouquets of white chrysanthemums and was lighted by tall white tapers. Palms and ferns banked the chancel, where more of the candles and white chrysanthemums were arranged.

Mr. Bayle gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of ivory satin made on long clinging lines. The gown was designed with a high neckline and long tight satin sleeves. The skirt fell into a graceful train. The tulle veil was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Kathryn Darcey of Urbana, Ill., was maid of honor, and Miss Dorothy Gately of Chicago and Miss Jane Noland were bridesmaids. Hamilton Strong was best man for his brother. William O. de Witt and James P. Hockok were groomsmen. Gene Strong, another brother of the bridegroom, and George Van Bleck of Chicago, cousin of the bride, were ushers.

The bride's attendants wore gowns of dark green crepe with off-the-face brown velvet hats and brown accessories. They carried bouquets of bronze chrysanthemums. Mrs. Bayle was gowned in black crepe trimmed with silver. She wore a black hat and a corsage of orchids. Mrs. Strong, mother of the bridegroom, wore a gown of powder blue crepe with a hat to match and a corsage of gardenias.

Mr. Strong and his bride will live at 619 Westwood drive.

In addition to the out-of-town members in the bridal party other out-of-town guests here for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. James V. Van Bleck and Miss Phoebe Bayle, Hinsdale, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lamy, Miss Patsy Gateley and Miss Jane Webster, all of Chicago.

The bride attended Sacred Heart Convent and was graduated from St. Mary of the Woods, Indiana. Later she attended Washington University. Mr. Strong is a graduate of St. Louis University Law School.

"Dressmaker" details accent the feminine charm of the new daytime shoes. Graceful "ribbons" of grosgrain outline a smart design on one classic model.

Another presents a new tucked effect with narrow strippings of patent leather. But whether it is stitchery or buttons, perforations or straps, trimming detail is discreetly handled this season.

We hardly need mention that this calls for the finer craftsmanship that has always been a custom with Hanan.

IN A town where all too few souvenirs of feudalism survive a nice touch is achieved, for the knowing at least by the uniforms of the elevator men and starters in the Cameron Builing at Thirty-fourth Street and Madison Avenue, on the south slope of Murray Hill. The site was occupied in the elegant eighties, according to our informant, by the brownstone mansion of Sir Frederick Cameron, and a great resort of fashion it was, too. Sir Frederick's daughter, Anne, inherited the property, and, when she divorced Belmont Tiffany, became known as Mrs. Cameron Tiffany. A generation age she replaced the family home with a tall office building, retaining the top floor and penthouse as her residence, something new in those days and the subject of a great deal of talk in print and out. Nowadays she lives farther uptown, but the staff of the Cameron Building still wear uniforms trimmed with strips of Scotch plaid, the Cameron colors, to be exact!

It may very well be that this colored evening-dress nonsense has actually come to stay, despite the gallant efforts of this department, which is still holding out for black and white in the last line of trenches. We are willing to admit that we wore a crimson dinner waistcoat to the opening of Archibald McLeish's drama "Panic," last season, but the Communist element was reported to have bought out the gallery and, if the worst came, we were prepared to throw open our jacket and disclose ourselves at last as Mad Bebo, the People's Friend. The fact that by the time the riot was to have started most of the audience was quietly asleep in its fauteuils obviated the necessity for this radical gesture.

But the colored-dress menace seems unabated. At the opening of "A Slight Case of Murder" we distinctly saw two crimson dinner waistcoats, with ties to match, and at the premiere of Bea Lillie's "At Home Abroad" there were a number of lurid vests and several blue and yellow kummerbands, Jimmy Shelton is reported by spies to have been seen abroad in a Nile green sash and tie to match, and there are rumors of similar madness all over the place. Miss Bayle Bride Of J. Q. Strong

THE wedding of Miss Jane E. Bayle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Bayle Jr., 7390 Westmoreland drive, and Jules Q. Strong, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jules E. Strong, 7527 Westmoreland drive, took place yesterday morning at 10 o'clock at Our Lady of Lourdes Church, with the Rev. Francis O'Connor officiating.

The altar was adorned with bouquets of white chrysanthemums and was lighted by tall white tapers. Palms and ferns banked the chancel, where more of the candles and white chrysanthemums were arranged.

Mr. Bayle gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of ivory satin made on long clinging lines. The gown was designed with a high neckline and long tight satin sleeves. The skirt fell into a graceful train. The tulle veil was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Kathryn Darcey of Urbana, Ill., was maid of honor, and Miss Dorothy Gately of Chicago and Miss Jane Noland were bridesmaids. Hamilton Strong was best man for his brother. William O. de Witt and James P. Hockok were groomsmen. Gene Strong, another brother of the bridegroom, and George Van Bleck of Chicago, cousin of the bride, were ushers.

The bride's attendants wore gowns of dark green crepe with off-the-face brown velvet hats and brown accessories. They carried bouquets of bronze chrysanthemums. Mrs. Bayle was gowned in black crepe trimmed with silver. She wore a black hat and a corsage of orchids. Mrs. Strong, mother of the bridegroom, wore a gown of powder blue crepe with a hat to match and a corsage of gardenias.

The ceremony was followed by a small wedding breakfast at the Bayle home. Chrysanthemums in autumn shades decorated the rooms and the bridal table, centered by the wedding cake, was decorated with white chrysanthemums.

Mr. Strong and his bride will live at 619 Westwood drive.

In addition to the out-of-town members in the bridal party other out-of-town guests here for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. James V. Van Bleck and Miss Phoebe Bayle, Hinsdale, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lamy, Miss Patsy Gateley and Miss Jane Webster, all of Chicago.

The bride attended Sacred Heart Convent and was graduated from St. Mary of the Woods, Indiana. Later she attended Washington University. Mr. Strong is a graduate of St. Louis University Law School.

of the bride. The bodice, close fitting, was designed with a taffeta fichu caught in front with cameo brooch which has been in the Gray family for many years, and was twisted over the upper arms. The full, floor length skirt was worn with a sash. Miss Gray carried a bouquet of red roses centered with a white gardenia. Newell Munson of Chicago, the bridegroom's roommate at Harvard, was best man.

At the reception which followed the ceremony, Mrs. Gray received in plum colored crystelle velvet and orchids. Mrs. Stanley Jones of Shelbyville, the bridegroom's mother, wore black silk net and gardenias.

Women's Race At Steeplechase

A RACE that promises to compete in popularity with the Mississippi Valley Gold Cup race at the seventh annual Bridlespur Steeplechase race meeting at Huntleigh Downs Saturday is the Eaquestirenne, the riders to be St. Louis' finest horsewomen, trained in the hunt field.

The start for this event is at the northeast corner of the Huntleigh Downs course, and the finish is at the top of Heartbreaker Hill in front of the grand stand. The course is over rolling ground with a curve at the bottom of the first hill. The women jockeys, dressed in the stable racing colors, are expected to go to post for a fast and hard-fought race. Nine horses, barring late scratches, will face the barrier to travel a distance of five furlongs. They are all thoroughbreds, with good track records, and the owners have selected their women jockeys with care. Mrs. Adalbert von Gontard will ride her horse, Mast Lady; Miss Elsie Rauh will again ride Traveling Tot, owned by Koehler Wrape; Mrs. Willard Shelp will ride Prince Apollo, owned by August A. Busch Jr.; Mrs. Lyle T. Johnson, who rode in last year's race, will ride her three-year-old Radiant Bud or Otto Spaeth's Main Line; Miss Jane Northrup will ride Kansas, owned by Frank Singer. Mrs. Willette McCormich, Miss Henriette Pirrung, Miss Mary L. Simpson and Miss Mary Pettus are late entries for this feature race.

Among the out-of-town guests who will be here for the meet and its attendant festivities will be G. Herbert Walker of New York, formerly of St. Louis, who will serve as presiding judge. He will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Johnson. Mr. and Mrs. von Gontard will entertain Mr. and Mrs. Horace G. Flannagin and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Reissinger of New York. Anderson Fowler, gentleman rider, who will ride his horses, Charioteer and Peacock, in the timber and brush races, will be the guest of Harry Langenberg Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Scott Sharpe will entertain Peter Vischer, publisher of Polo, and Paul Brown, famous hunting artist from Long Island, at their home, Hunting Hill.

The men's dinner will be held at the Bridlespur Hunt Club Friday night and the hunt ball will be held at the club the evening of the races.

TWO of the three Collinsville residents killed in the tragic grade-crossing accident described in the news story reproduced at the right had the foresight to carry Post-Dispatch All-Coverage Accident Insurance.

Benjamin Plotch and Rudolph Palacek were the men who had the prudence to avail themselves of this low-cost protection. This consideration for dependent loved ones will result in each widow receiving $1500.00 as beneficiary of her late husband's policy. Drafts have been issued and will be delivered promptly when the formal proof-of-claim blanks have been completed.

In this machine age one lives surrounded by perils—grade crossings; swift-moving, death-dealing traffic servants like locomotives, heavy trains and automobiles; lesser hazards at home, at work, on the street. The least one can do is to protect his family and himself from the consequences of loss of earnings in the event of death or disability from accidental cause.

There's a humane, as well as a selfish, reason for carrying Post-Dispatch All-Coverage Insurance. Its benefits derive from premium income, and you entitle yourself to personal satisfaction from the knowledge that fellow humans benefit from your support of the plan. It is a plus service—made available to new and old Post-Dispatch readers without profit to this newspaper.

A Dangerous Grade Crossing.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WITH United States Highway No. 40 closed for much-needed widening west of Collinsville, traffic has been greatly increased on Black Lane, which connects Highway 40 with the Washington Park-Caseyville road in the vicinity of the Fairmount race track. Use of Black Lane for heavy traffic has this serious danger—it forces drivers to cross the Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio railroads at unguarded grade crossings. The Pennsylvania crossing is extremely hazardous, for empty cars on sidings obstruct the view of southbound drivers so they must pull onto the track before they can see in either direction. If these cars are not removed, it will be a miracle if there is not a grade-crossing tragedy at this death trap. COMMUTER.

From the Post-Dispatch, July 16, 1935

Collinsville Molders Driving to Work When Collision Occurs at Grade Crossing.

VIEW OBSTRUCTED, NO WARNING SIGNAL

Fourth Man Hurt—Wreckage Scattered 150 Feet—Letter Recently Cited Danger at Tracks.

Three men were killed and a fourth was injured when their automobilye was struck by a Pennsylvania milk train at Black Lane crossing near Caseyville, Ill., at 6:30 a. m. today. The crossing is three miles east of Collinsville.

The dead were: Ben Plotch, 30; Rudolph Palacek, 38, and Louis Felthauer, 21, all of Collinsville.

Charles Plotch, 28, 509 Summer avenue, Collinsville, brother of Ben Plotch, survived the crash and is in St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, suffering from sever cuts and bruises.

The men were on their way to work at the Southern Malleable Co., 2000 Bond avenue, East St. Louis, where they were molders. The train, eastbound, was traveling at high speed. There are no gates or warning signals at the crossing and a watchman is on duty there only during periods of heavy traffic over Black lane, a detour to Highway 40. The view of the curving tracks, from the direction in which the automobile was approaching, is obstructed by rising ground and a railroad shanty. Persons early on the scene said vision was obstructed further by freight cars, which were later removed from a siding there.

Palacek was driving the closed car, according to Charles Plotch. The latter, asked by a Post-Dispatch reporter if the occupants of the machine had seen the train, replied only that "the brakes were not very good," then burst into tears and was unable to complete his statement.

The automobile was demolished and scattered beside the tracks for about 150 feet. The men were thrown out and all except Charles Plotch were crushed. The bodies were taken to a Collinsville mortuary.

Letter Cited Danger.

The train was stopped following the crash and members of the crew picked up the bodies and assisted Charles Plotch.

The Post-Dispatch, under "Letters From the People," last July 16 published a letter signed "Commuter" calling attention to the dangerous situation at the Black lane grade crossings of the Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio Railroads, parallel tracks. The letter read in part as follows: "The Pennsylvania crossing is extremely hazardous, for empty cars on sidings obstruct the view of southbound drivers so they must pull onto the tracks before they can see in either direction. If these cars are not removed, it will be a miracle if there is not a grade-crossing tragedy at this death trap."

Near Fairmount Track.

The scene of the accident is about half a mile southeast of Fairmount Race Track and Black lane and is used by persons driving to the track, due to repairs now underway on the main highway. In October, 1933, William Gentry Sheldon, 4467 Lindell boulevard, wealthy electric apparatus manufacturer, and his wife, Elizabeth, were killed when their sedan was struck by a Baltimore & Ohio train while they were returning home from the race track by way of Black lane.

3260 SCOUTS SERVED LEGION CONVENTION

They Act as Guides, Messengers and Aids; One Is Interpreter for Frenchman.

The St. Louis Boy Scout Council reported yesterday to Col. H. D. McBride, chairman of the Scout Committee for the Legion Convention, that 3260 boys participated in messenger and guide service during part or all of the convention.

The following group services, and the number of Scouts assigned to each, were reported: in the convention halls 385 boys were ushers or orderlies; at the 20 Legionnaire registration places 376 were on duty; 683 Scouts worked on the parade detail; 300 were in first aid service, and 285 were aids during the music and drill contests.

Many more Scouts were assigned individual duties, such as that of Scout Walter Waddington who was interpreter for Joseph Granier, official representative of the French war veterans and the French Government. A reserve of about 50 Scouts was kept at Legion Headquarters, Broadway and Olive street.

One Scout, whose name was not learned, beat out a fire which someone had carelessly started in a wagon loaded with waste paper on North Twelfth boulevard Tuesday. When persons in the crowd realized that the boy's quick action may have prevented serious trouble they sought to congratulate him, but he had gone.

District commissioners and field executives will meet at noon Tuesday at the St. Louis Lunchroom to make plans for the annual achievement roundup for the council. Col. H. D. McBride, commissioner, will preside.

Col. McBride said yesterday that a principal objective in scouting activities in the council this fall will be advancement in rank among the Scouts. He said the aim will be to maintain the record of achievement in which the St. Louis percentage of First and Second class Scouts is considerably higher than that of the national organization.

Willard R. Cox has been named chairman of the Merit Badge Show for the third successive year. The show will be held Dec. 5, 6 and 7 at the Arena, with 174 troops participating.

South District held its annual rally and field day yesterday in Tower Grove Park. The campfire which concluded the day's program was conducted by Troop 180, Rose Fanning School, and Troop 198, St. John's Episcopal Church. The cub packs of Woodward School and Meramec School gave a cub stunt, and Troop 249, Mason School, presented another entertainment.

A new cub pack was organized Friday evening at St. Peter's Evangelical Church, 4015 St. Louis avenue.

Sea Scout Ship "Normandie" will be invested Tuesday evening by Sea Scout Ship "Polaris" at Normandy High School.

Ship "Polaris" made both Scout and Sea Scout awards to members at presentation ceremonies Friday evening. Kennedy Smith received an Eagle badge, and Eagle Scouts Kenneth Wulfert and Harrison Johnson were awarded merit palms. Twenty-nine merit badges and a like number of Sea Scouting insignia were presented. Angus T. Lochhead was made a quartermaster.

SINGLE TAXERS SAY THEIR IDEA IS REMEDY FOR DEPRESSION

Delegates to New York Convention Predict Revival of Henry George Doctrine.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—A belief that the nation is about to witness a sweeping renaissance of the land theory of Henry George was expressed by his followers at their annual congress, ending tonight. The doctrine now is being preached by the Henry George School of Social Science in New York and extension classes in 42 cities. George held that only land is wealth and that only land should be taxed.

John L. Monroe of Chicago, director of the classes, predicted an organization that would reach 100,000 persons within the next year. He said interest is growing due to recent processing taxes on industry, sales taxes and new corporate levies.

Lancaster Greene, New York broker and co-chairman of the congress, said: "I'm convinced this Henry George doctrine is the answer to unemployment, depression and heavy taxation."

No silicitors are employed in the campaign, begun three weeks ago, and the committee is pedending on voluntary contributions by mail. Fordyce said contributions received ranged from $1 to $1000.

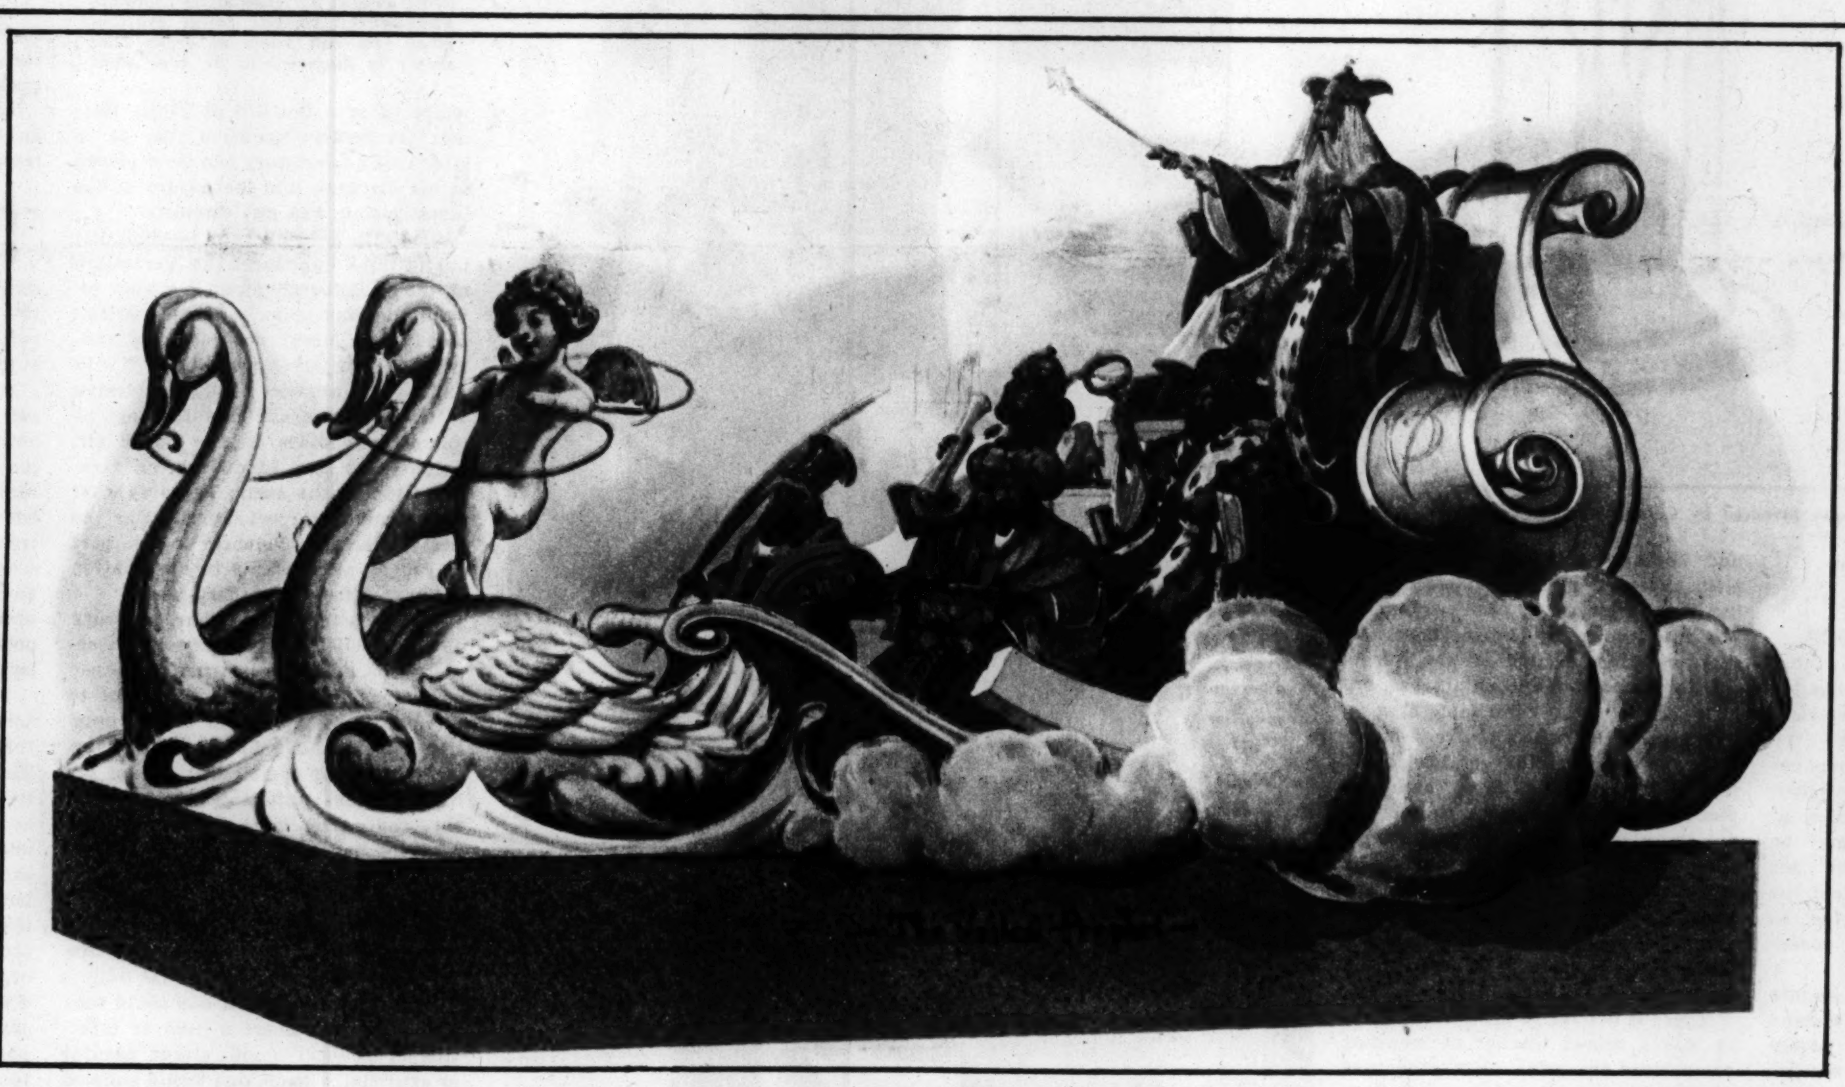
Scenes from Toyland for the Veiled Prophet Parade



A FOREHAND glimpse of scenes from "Toyland," to appear on St. Louis streets on October 8, in the fifty-seventh visit of the Veiled Prophet, is presented in color on this page from sketches made by the designer, Oscar E. Berninghaus, well-known artist of St. Louis and Taos, New Mexico.

Tens of thousands of spectators view the annual parade, in which the floats pictured here will be seen this year, and thousands attend the annual ball on the following evening, when the Prophet ceremoniously selects his Queen for the coming twelvemonth. The ball opens the St. Louis season, but its invitations are hardly more keenly coveted by the socially inclined than is standing room along the five miles of streets traversed by the parade.

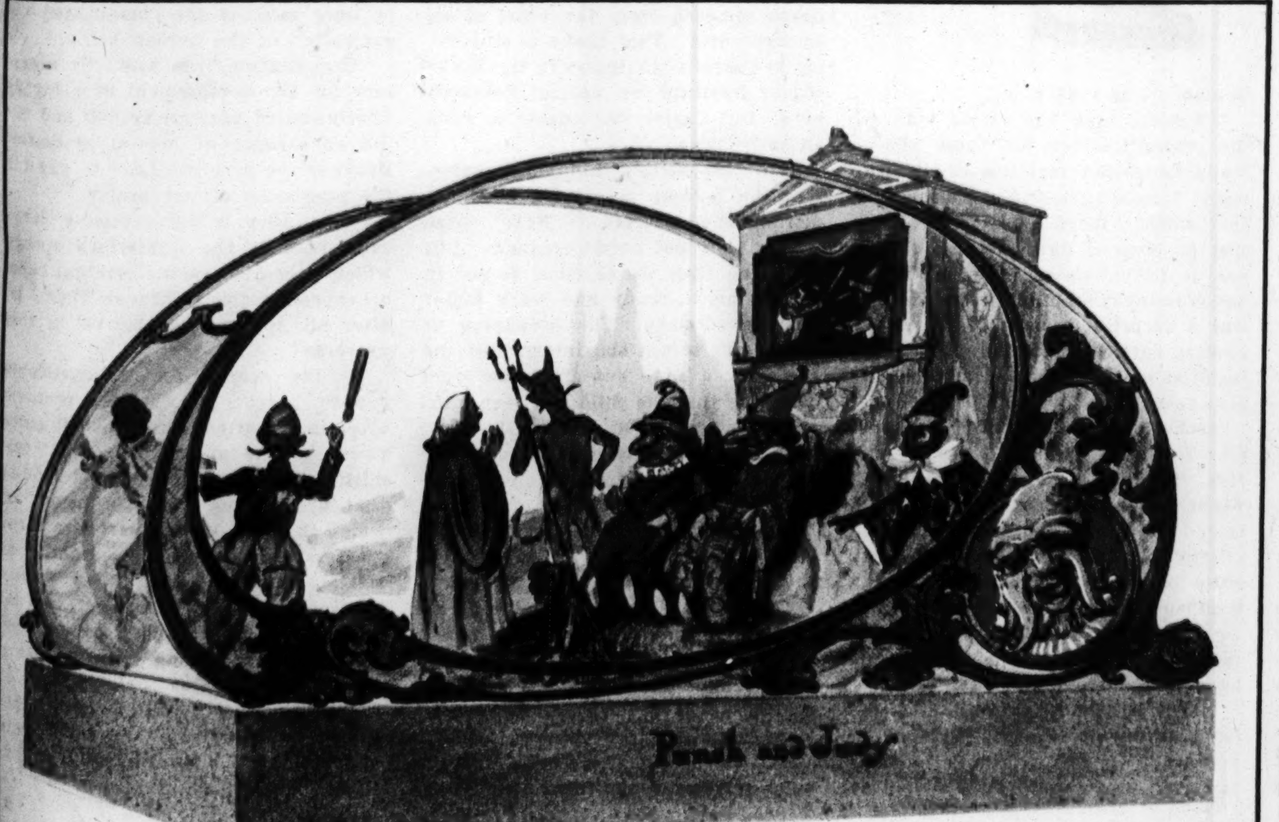
For that evening St. Louis traditionally gives itself over to the carnival spirit. Thousands of visitors pour into the city for a stay of one day or several, centered in the few minutes during which the colorful floats of the parade pass their respective points of vantage. It is a night of excitement particularly for children, and it is to children, and to memories of childhood, that the 1935 parade is addressed.

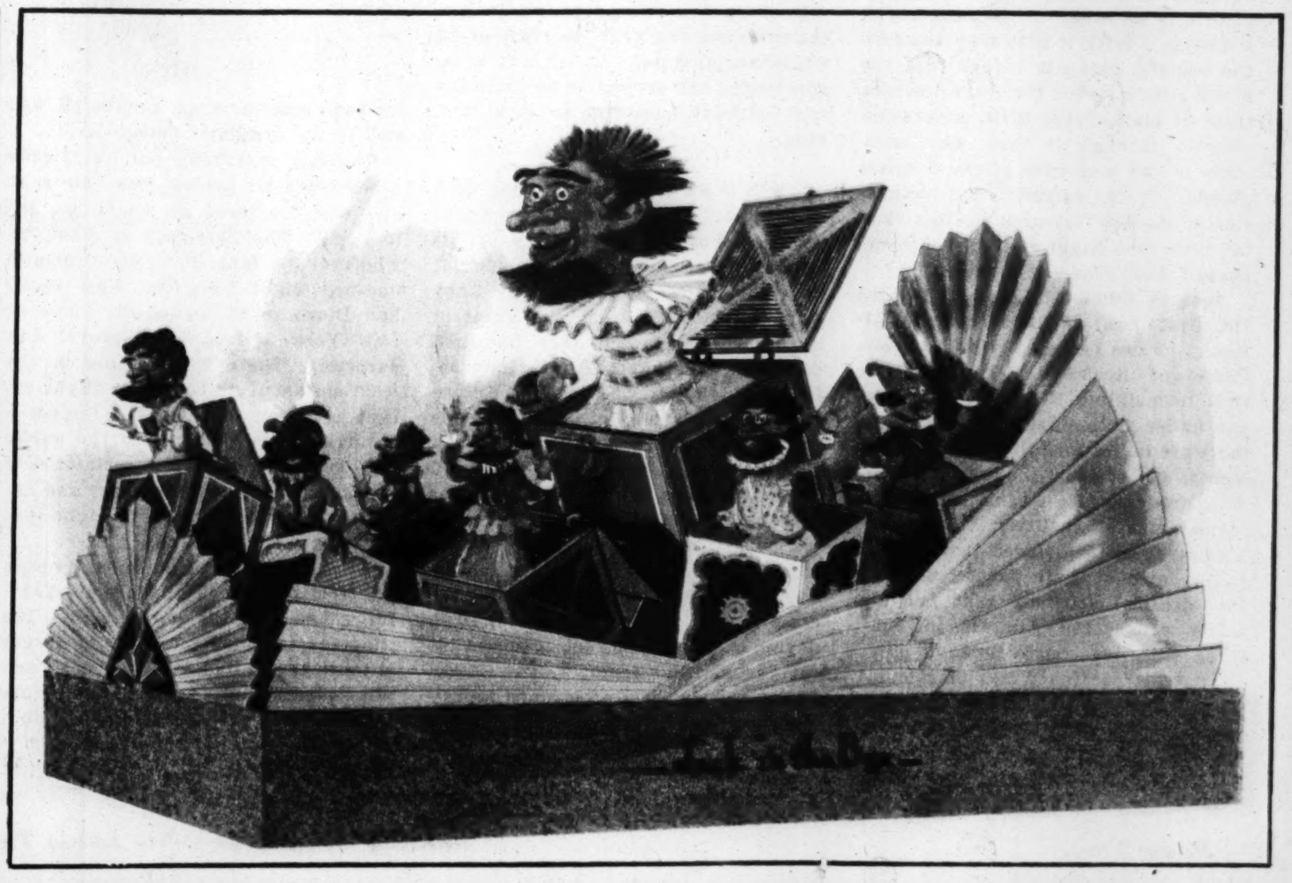
A Gamut of Childish Dreams Reflected in the Floats Which Will Make Up This Historic Procession.

Though the Prophet's dress, his mien and the details of his ceremonial are fixed by the traditions of half a century, the trappings of his entourage vary picturesquely from year to year. Next week he will arrive in a cloud-chariot drawn by swans and guided by the winged boy-god Cupid.

All the fascinating gamut of childish dreams will be run by the 19 floats to follow him—dolls and drums, hobby horses and wooden soldiers, boats and storybooks and bobsleds—and the last float will picture the workshop of the author of all toys, Santa Claus himself.

Of this gay and fantastic train have been selected, for color reproduction, the Veiled Prophet's chariots, the candy canes and lollypops, the impish jack-in-the-box and the medieval but still beloved Punch and Judy.





LINDBERGH'S ARTIFICIAL HEART

Entry of the Famous Flyer Into the Field of Physiological Science and How It Has Resulted in a Device With Which the Growth of an Organ, or the Progress of a Disease, Is Brought Directly Into View.

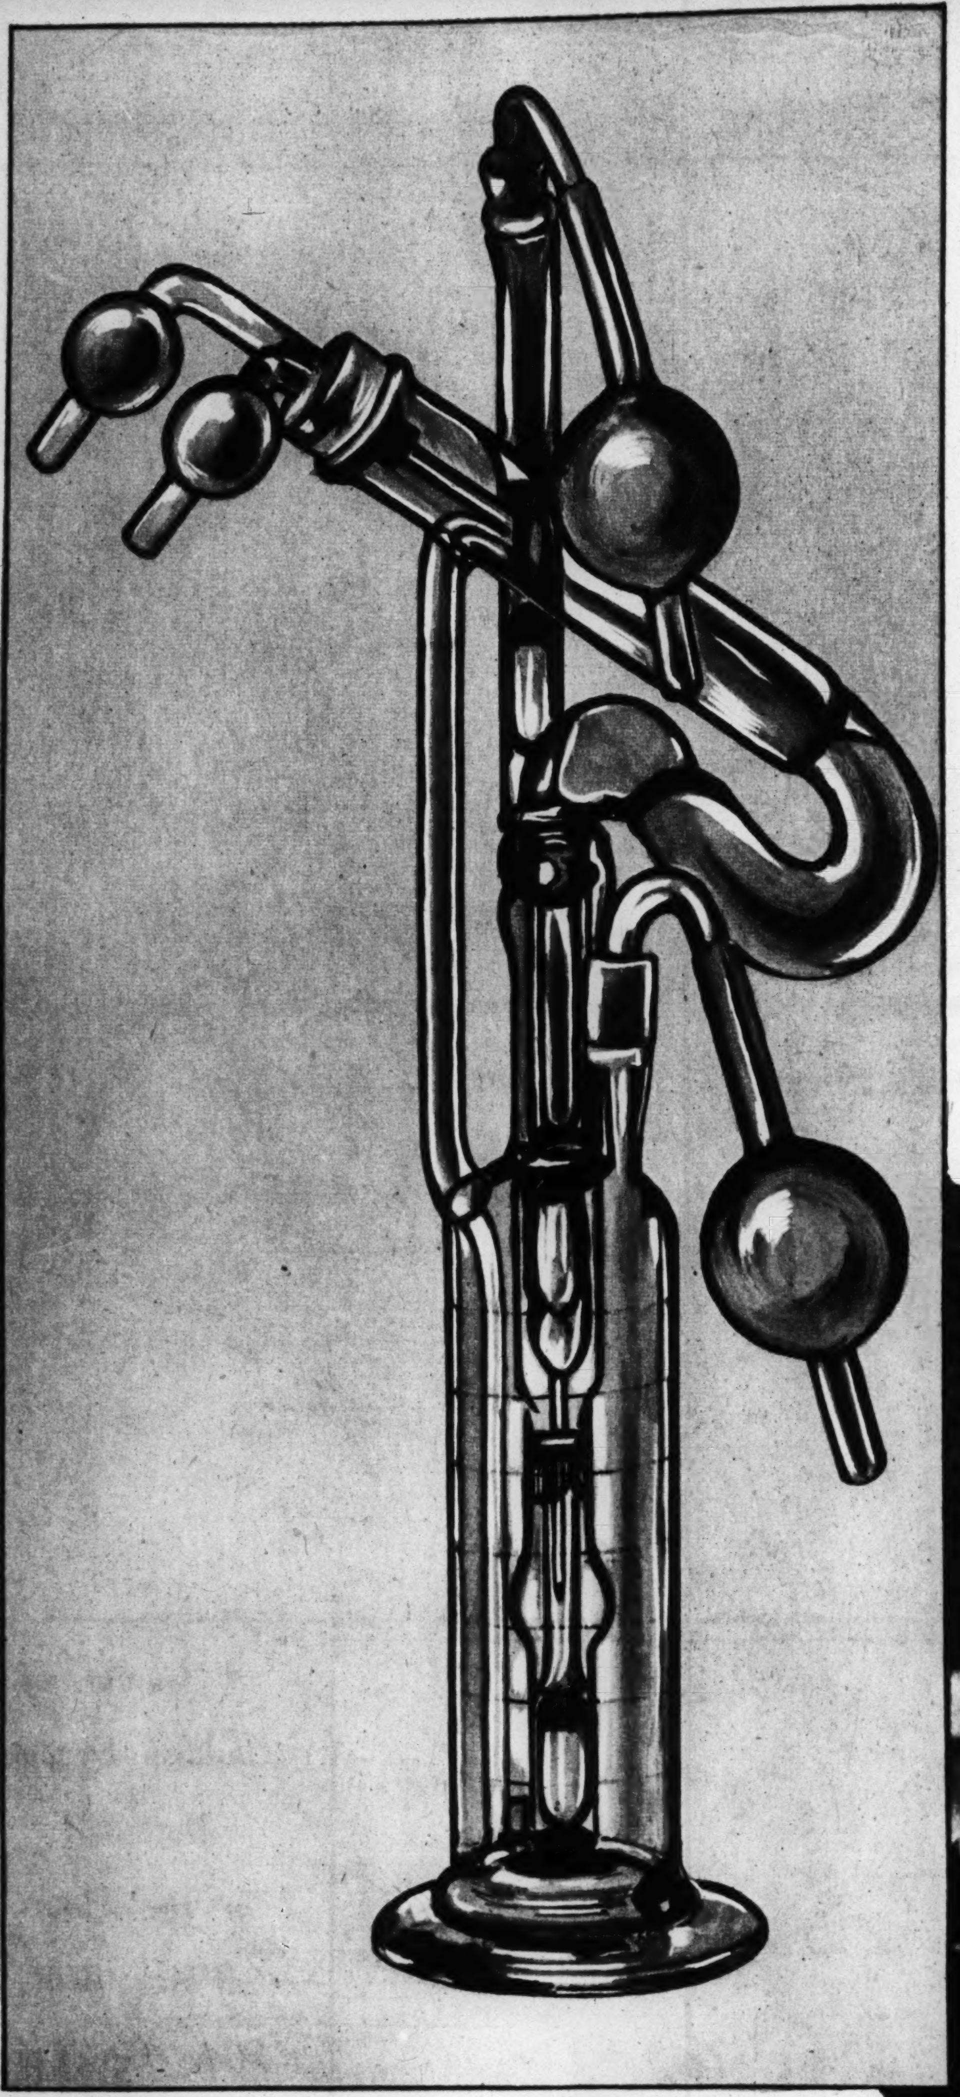


Diagram of the "robot heart invented by Colonel Charles Lindbergh.

Lindbergh's working diagram of "robot heart": O, organ chamber; E, pressure equalization chamber; R, reservoir for artificial blood; F, float valves automatically operated by pressure changes in pulse cycle; G, gas or "artificial air" inlet with direct connection to equalization chamber; V, one-way valve letting gas into but not out of reservoir; C, constricted outlet, maintaining minimum reservoir pressure at blood pressure of living animal; T, "glass artery" through which rising pressure forces artificial blood into real artery of organ (not shown in diagram) to be kept alive.

From a recent snapshot of Colonel Lindbergh.

NEW YORK.

LONG after the Paris flight has become an historical footnote, in the opinion of some observers, the memory of Charles A. Lindbergh may be honored for his achievements in the laboratory, of which the greatest so far is his recently announced invention of the "robot heart."

It is the newest weapon of science in its unending struggle to understand the human body and conquer its enemy, disease; a complicated weapon which technicians the world over have striven to devise for 123 years.

By means of it, say Lindbergh's professional collaborators, scientists may be enabled to watch at first hand the growth of an organ or the progress of a disease. With it they may measure the organic products turned into the blood stream, with their far-reaching train of marked but little understood effects; through it they may solve some of the mysteries of the ductless glands. It has extended the boundaries of medical research no less than the inventor's flight of eight years ago opened new vistas of aviation.

Just as Colonel Lindbergh became the first man to fly across the Atlantic, he has become, with Dr. Alexis Carrel of Rockefeller Institute, the first to maintain life in an entire organ under glass outside the body. And there are indications that both achievements, worlds apart though they seem, were products of the same mental and temperamental qualities. Friends of Lindbergh are convinced that the key to his evident flair for science was the identical attribute that put him safely across the Atlantic in 1927, three miles off course in 3000 miles.

That extraordinary feat of calculated precision was minimized or wholly overlooked in the world-wide stir that followed his landing at Le Bourget. To the world of orthodox thoughtfulness he was an ingenuous boy who had implausibly survived to accomplish an epoch-making but essentially irrational objective. "Lucky Lindy" was the headliners' phrase; luck was the factor in the minds of the world.

Only his personal acquaintances, or, at least, those who knew something of his past, considered another and much more obvious factor—brains. But now, with at least three excellent pieces of laboratory work that could not conceivably be attributed to anything but the exercise of the intelligence, a good many lab men, particularly, have been impelled to re-examine the facts and see if that factor didn't have something to do with his record as an aviator.

There is not far to look. His mother was a school teacher of manifest competence and poise. His father was distinguished through 10 years in Congress by a more than liberal viewpoint and vigor of mind and will alike. His grandfather was a member of the Swedish Parliament. Lindbergh himself dropped a college course in mechanics after one year—because of an experimental thirst that led him, after completing one project, to go on to the next without bothering to turn in a report.

HE WAS "an obscure young mail pilot" when he made his flight to Paris—but not one of his friends, from the moment he took it up, doubted its accomplishment. They were convinced that, however complex its hazards, he would have discerned them all, and reduced them, long before the take-off, to a degree of certainty comparable with his routine mail flight between St. Louis and Chicago. This faculty of seeing and coolly weighing all the contingencies in advance was one of two characteristics that marked his flying career from its beginning. The other, or perhaps it was only another phase of the same quality, was an almost inhuman degree of detachment and precision, so marked that, for example, it could unforgettably impress a seasoned reporter—who had watched the masters since Lincoln Beachey—in a mere half-hour's incidental stunt flying in a reconditioned old "crate" at a motor-boat regatta, when Lindbergh was still in his pre-Paris "obscurity."

Probably everybody but his friends—wherever his project was known at all—was convinced he would not get to Paris. The East paid no attention whatever to him until his dramatic one-two flight from the West coast, San Diego to St. Louis, St. Louis to New York, stirred its approval and surprise. There was nothing in the least spectacular about that flight except precision, but in that respect—occurring in a field where the public had come to expect few certainties—it suggested the swift accuracy and unerring force of a Dempsey's right-and-left before the knockout.

After his return from Paris, he took off from New York on July 20, 1927, for a home-coming tour by air. His itinerary included most of the larger cities in the United States, with a complicated schedule in each, but before he started he casually announced that he would return to New York at 2 p. m. October 20. The "Spirit of St. Louis" landed again at New York on October 20 at 1:59 p. m.

Whatever luck had to do with it, the connection between these abnormally developed faculties of discernment, forethought and precision and that rubric "three miles in 3000" is just as obvious now as their usefulness in the laboratory. And while the announcement of the "robot heart" was a surprise to most of the news-reading public, Lindbergh placed those faculties at the service of science several years ago.

Archeology was the first to benefit. That was in 1929, when he and Mrs. Lindbergh, on a "good-will" flight in Central America, sighted and later carefully photographed and charted the location of several "lost" cities of the Mayas in the Yucatan Peninsula. Archeologists said then he had accomplished in 25 hours a task that, by ordinary methods, would have taken five years.

His first connection with Rockefeller Institute occurred in 1928, when he flew to Quebec with anti-pneumonia serum provided by it in a vain attempt to save the life of Floyd Bennett. It became known a year or so later that a laboratory had been placed at his disposal, but the nature of his investigation was not disclosed.

In 1931, a brief note in scientific publications announced his perfection of the "Lindbergh pump," a step toward the maintenance of an artificial blood circulation, now actually consummated in the "robot heart." In 1933, using a device of his own design to trap bacteria and minute fungi on microscopic slides in the upper air, Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh, on vacation flight in the Arctic, gathered what a Government expert described as the first "concrete evidence of the part played by air currents in distribution of fungi between Northern lands."

But with these exceptions, his work at Rockefeller Institute was kept secret. The help was instructed to keep away from his laboratory and not to attempt to engage him in conversation. Even among his associates, few were aware of the significance of his investigations until the recent disclosure that, after more than a century, a means had been devised for the artificial culture of a living organ.

THE idea has always intrigued scientists. Back in 1812, the physiologist, C. J. J. Le Gallois of Paris, wrote that "if one could substitute for the heart a kind of injection of arterial blood, either natural or artificially made, one would succeed easily in maintaining alive indefinitely any part of the body whatsoever."

Artificial blood came in time. As far back as 1912, Dr. Alexis Carrel used it to sustain life in a fragment of tissue removed from the heart of an embryo chick. That tissue is still living in Carrel's laboratory in the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research here. But Carrel was unable to keep an entire organ alive.

Into this setting Lindbergh came. How he became associated with the distinguished Carrel, a Nobel prize winner, has not been revealed. But daily the flyer drove from Jersey to Manhattan to study and work under Carrel's tutelage. The kidnaping of the pupil's infant son interrupted the work for a time but after the cruel discovery that the child had been murdered, the pupil returned to his work. Undoubtedly the cloistered atmosphere of the great institution helped mitigate the tragedy. But each day, when he put aside his apron and tools, the pupil checked up on the progress of the kidnaping hunt.

Carrel's pride in the genius of his pupil is unconcealed. During a recent visit to Paris he said of Lindbergh: "He is not only a great flyer. He is a great savant."

In differentiating between his own tissue culture, in the case of the embryo chick, and the inherent possibilities of the "robot heart," Carrel said: "As is well known, tissues and blood cells grow like bacteria in flasks containing appropriate media. The techniques for the cultivation of tissues are somewhat analagous to bacteriological techniques, although far more delicate.

"But it is through the employment of complex mechanical and surgical procedures that whole organs are enabled to live isolated from the body. Tissue culture deals with cells as units of bodily structures; the new method deals with cellular societies as organic wholes."

Among the far-reaching applications of the invention Carrel lists these:

(a) The manufacture of the ductless glands' hormones outside the living body.

(b) The isolation of the substances necessary for the growth, differentiation and functional activity of these glands.

(c) The discovery of the laws of association of organs; this through culture of two, three or more diverse organs in the same medium.

(d) The production of disease in an isolated organ or artery, and its treatment under ideal circumstances.

TWENTY-SIX experiments, done jointly by Carrel and Lindbergh, have proved the worth of the instrument. Using cats and adult fowl, the pair kept alive for experimental periods thyroid glands, ovaries, adrenal glands, spleens, hearts and kidneys.

In their report, the distinguished pair wrote: "From the present experiments it must merely be concluded that an entire organ, such as an ovary, has been maintained alive outside the body. It not only survived, but increased in size and weight. This increase was due to the appearance of new cells and tissues. It is therefore probable that this method provides important uses in physiological chemistry, physiology and pathology."

Super-optimists have reported the Lindbergh advance as heralding eventual immortality for the human race. That it provides immortality, in a limited sense, for the excised organs, is quite true. That is, as long as someone tends the motor that pumps the artificial blood that supplies the "robot heart" that feeds the organ, the organ lives. But that it supplies a process for keeping the entire human organism perpetually alive is not claimed by its sponsors. Carrel himself is on record as saying that, in his opinion, human beings cannot hope for physical immortality, at least on this earth. Nor, conversely, does he string with those who scoff at the religious promise of immortality. That isn't in his field, he says.

What blocks physical immortality, he once said, is the complicated organization of the human being.

"Organization," he said, "is necessary for the development of a highly differentiated nervous system and for the appearance of mental processes. Death is the price we have to pay for the possession of our brains.

"This price is not excessive, however, because the mysterious energy which is created by the cerebral cells, or expresses itself through them, is, after all, the greatest marvel of this universe."

In the search for a practicable "robot heart" the crucial problem arose in the attempt to transmit pulse power to the apparatus without admitting germs. Lindbergh got around that by devising a "robot heart" of which the only moving parts are three glass valves, easily sterilized and kept sterile, and by setting up a wholly separate pump of which the essential feature is a pulsating oil column, effectively transmitting pulse pressure but blocking outside contamination.

Pulsations in the oil column are actuated by compressed air, at a rate and pressure controlled by an electri-

ASIDE from being bitterly sorry for what he did to get there, Marshall Bascombe doesn't seem to be unusually miserable. He seems not to mind being in prison. Thirty years isn't too long a term. He feels, they say, that he has just exchanged one bondage for another. He is still miserable over having shot Marie Meggett, but he is resigned to the consequences and not especially sorry to have left this town. It is hard to say why this should be so.

Osage is pretty much like any other town around here. Aside from the fact that it is a county seat, has a population of nearly 3000 and is the only place in Mitchell County served by two railroads, there is little in this town to mark it out from hundreds of others that relieve the horizontal plain neatly laid out in four-square wheat fields along the Minnesota border line. To the passing salesman driving up in his dusty coupe it exhibits a front befitting its pretentions: A bank, an express agency, a couple of telegraph offices, a courthouse and a postoffice. It is the usual Main street scene. That those who know it better should find here the casual, thoughtless cruelty of small towns everywhere is no more remarkable than that Chicago and St. Louis should manifest the varied cruelty of the big city.

Marshall Bascombe was born here and has lived here all his life—27 years. That his story reads like a tragic novel by Thomas Hardy is owing not to the fact that he is the son of relatively humble people, that his father serves in a simple capacity as caretaker of the cemetery. It is because he is an abnormal young man born into a community that has the usual respect for normality. He is a dwarf. The fact that he has been doomed to see the beauties of Osage from the underside may have something to do with the fact that he has never cherished any particular love for the place. To others it is a good town and getting better all the time.

They called him "Shorty," not out of callous indifference but because that seemed an obvious nickname. He stopped growing when he was 12 years old and never got taller than three feet nine inches. Perhaps it is just as kind to keep things like that on the surface. His friends in Osage seemed to think so. Bascombe, the dwarf, was never allowed to forget his deformity. No one pretended to consider him like others, an equal in a community of six-footers. After all, he was going to have to live with his misshapen body for the rest of his life. Why shouldn't he learn to accept it?

Bascombe accepted it. He had to. But he did so with an ever mounting sense of despair. His bitterness grew and curdled in him. Whenever he heard himself called "Shorty" he winced inwardly. It was the penalty of being born abnormal in a world that worships conformity—even in appearances. In a community like this, where differences stand out with relentless clarity, it was particularly hard to be dissimilar.

The one thing that made it seem less unbearable was the fact that he could escape whenever he wanted to. He thought so, at any rate. From the time he first half realized what he was up against he was certain that some day he would commit suicide. He knew within himself that he needn't and couldn't go on being thoughtlessly despised, despising himself and letting an insensate hatred rise up and smudge out everything else in his nature. Even when he was a little boy he thought that suicide was his only escape. But even so, he fought against it. Blindly and irrationally he sought to prove that he was as normal as anyone else.

AT SCHOOL they tortured him with their kidding. He learned to play a good game of baseball. He wrestled as well as boys twice his size. Those who knew him best said, by gosh, Shorty could hold up his end at a party. But his desperate efforts to be regular were just funny to those who saw him casually in the street. When he went to the barber shop, one of the young giants who lounged there would pick him up in his big, rough hands, brown from the sun of the wheat fields, set him on his broad shoulder or trundle him like a baby. It was a sort of game with the big guys. They'd toss him back and forth across the shop like a sack of feed. Nothing he could say would stop them. And suddenly, overwhelmed with a consciousness of his complete impotence and his humiliation, he would be unable to force back the tears of rage. That was a good joke, too. Then the barber would shout, "You're next, Shorty," He would clamber into the chair. And no amount of protest would keep them from giving him a board to sit on—like a child.

He used to help his father work in the cemetery. That was the only work he could get and it gave him a chance to escape from the role of freak. His father understood him, knew how hard he tried to avoid being considered eccentric, how desperately he was trying to face the outside world and make them realize that in spite of his size he really wasn't very different from anyone else. Together they would discuss the possibility of his going away and joining up with a circus. At any rate he wouldn't need to feel his deformity at every point in the environment of a circus. But his mother and father were both set against this. They were determined that he should fight his battle for himself until he had convinced everyone that he wasn't a freak. To join a circus would be to admit surrender. Privately he prayed for help—and wished he could die.

ONE evening, sunk in the gloomy plot of the novel "Of Human Bondage," he stopped at a lunch counter. As the screen door slammed behind him he was greeted by the usual repartee: "Hya, little one." "How's the big Shorty?" "How's the little giant?" It was all in good humor, but about as funny to him as drip torture and thumb screws. But the dwarf was still thinking about the book and didn't pay much attention. He waved an absent-minded greeting, climbed on a stool at the counter and opened his book again. Without looking up he ordered coffee and a bun. He buried himself in the story of that other unfortunate, the sensitive, club-footed hero of Somerset Maugnam's book. He knew they probably thought him a little queer to be reading a book in the lunchroom, but he was too depressed to care what they thought. Reading had become his only escape, his only consolation for the nightmare of his reality. . . .

"Here's your coffee. Take your nose out of that book." A friendly voice pulled him out of his imagined London into the sudden fact of Osage. He looked up and found himself facing an unexpectedly pretty face. Marie Meggett, although the niece of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Tubbs, who are well known here, was a newcomer. Bascombe thought he had never seen anyone so lovely.

"I guess you're Shorty Bascombe," she said, smiling graciously.

"That's me," he answered, involuntarily curt. "What about it?"

"Oh, nothing." She was disarmingly apologetic and obviously friendly. It occurred to him that as he sat on the high stool with only his head and shoulders showing, he must look almost normal to her. As a matter of fact, his head and shoulders are unaffected by the abnormality that has deformed the rest of his body. His face is neither particularly prepossessing nor unattractive.

She asked him what he was reading. He told her—a little defiant. No, she said, she hadn't read it. But she had seen the movie. They talked about the story for a while and the dwarf couldn't resist the temptation to mention the resemblance he saw between his own fate and that of the hero who was led into a tragic life by his deformity. He was still bitter. And suddenly, without knowing why, he found himself telling her of his own bondage, of the wretchedness he lived in every day. That he was a little ashamed of his frankness, of the fact that he knew he was whining, made him a little aggressive. But the girl was tolerant and interested. He promised to come back and talk to her again.

Marie Meggett.

And then the inevitable happened. The dwarf forgot himself so far as to fall in love. He came back to the restaurant time after time. He found a hitherto unknown self-confidence as he sat on the high stool. It made him feel for the moment as if he amounted to something. The stature he borrowed from the stool seemed to erase his deformity—while he sat there. When he had to step down all that would disappear. And the waitress was one of the only people, aside from his parents, who was sure to listen to him.

But Marshall Bascombe wasn't the only young man in Osage who could appreciate her. Marie Meggett was quickly becoming one of the most popular girls in town. At a beauty contest held here last Fourth of July she won second place. That occasion was a turning point for Shorty. For just after the prize had been awarded someone in the crowd saw the dwarf rapturously applauding with the rest. And picked him up, held him high in the air over the heads of the laughing spectators.

"Hey, Marie," the man shouted, "your boy friend wants to congratulate you." From his miserable height the dwarf looked down at the laughing faces of the crowd. And pretended to laugh with them.

TWO days later, at Marie's twenty-second-birthday party, he decided to show her his affection. He would present the birthday cake. . . It was a tremendous one. The biggest he could get. Lighted with 22 candles and one for good luck. When he suddenly appeared in the doorway carrying this edifice of a cake, it was impossible not to smile. Someone guffawed outright. In a moment the room was rocking with laughter. It rolled and pealed through the house. It drenched him, pelted him, as he waddled painfully across the floor, weighed down by his glaring burden of candles and icing. The dwarf broke out in a cold sweat, but he marched on down the floor. After all, they were good-humored about it, he knew. They tried to mask their laughter in applause. They patted him on the back as he set the cake down triumphantly on the edge of the table. And Marie thanked him and seemed delighted, which made up for the fact everyone else considered him a joke.

Encouraged by this—though not quite daring to present her publicly with the wrist watch he had bought as her real birthday present—Bascombe decided that next day he would do what he had never dared to do before. He would ask her for a date.

This step, to foxtrot time, is counted "1-2-3-and-4." Start feet together, step L. R. L. on counts "1-2-3." Then swing R. across L. and side step with L to counts "and-4," raising right foot. The dotted outline of feet shows they do not touch floor. The light gray shows position at completion of last step.

Continue count "1-2-3-and-4." Right foot is free. Step to R. on count 1, swing L. across R. on count 2, step R. back on count 3. Raise L and hold at "and-4" count with a swing as shown.

Count this step "1 and 2—3 and 4." It is a regular waltz turn. Left foot is free so step L. forward, R. to the side and close with L. on counts "1 and 2." Now R. back and L. to the side and close R. at counts "3 and 4."

A New Dance From California in Which a Man May Have Two or Three Girls as Partners, All Doing the Same Steps.

SAN FRANCISCO.

EVERYTHING flourishes in California, even the wallflower. It is something that grows in any climate. It is one of several things besides the weather of which Mark Twain might have said everybody talks about it and nobody ever does anything about it. But at last somebody has arisen in California to do something about it.

He is Albert H. Ludwig of San Francisco. That shy nocturnal blossom, the wallflower, is a matter of professional interest to him. He is a dancing teacher. He has been teaching here for 20 years, he has been president for three years of the California Association of Teachers of Dancing and the Western Society of Dancing Masters; he was appointed an instructor at a recent convention of the Dancing Masters of America; he is an associated students' instructor at the University of California, and he has made a particular study of wallflowers.

Ludwig read about wallflowers in books, heard about them in "psychological" lectures and in more or less malicious jokes and when cats got together; saw them in moving pictures, comic or sad, and felt for them, with a keen sense of pity, at parties—many parties, nearly every party he ever went to.

Always, he discerned, downcast or brazen, they suffered. And they were by no means necessarily the least attractive of the party. Very often it happened that the wallflower was quite attractive, but an "extra girl" (if not an extra man)—somebody's sister, or some girl's chum, or a visitor from out of town, at the party without a "date" and restrained by some extraordinary inhibition from taking possession of someone else's date.

Wallflowers got along beautifully until somebody turned on the radio and the guests paired off, and then, for at least a part of the evening, and that part discernibly painful, they were left out. And they were almost wholly indigenous to informal parties. They rarely appeared in formal affairs or hotel ballrooms or night clubs, for they didn't go there without dates.

And therein lay the germ of an idea, which Ludwig developed and ultimately expounded the other day at the annual meeting here of the Western Society of Dancing Masters. His solution was a dance hardly suitable for a public dancing place until the hours when informality is practically running wild, but, he argued, just the thing to put an extra kick into a private party and get all the wallflowers off their seats—without going to the kittenish extremes of playing games. With a candor that might easily be fatal to a hostess, he called it the "wallflower dance."

"As soon as the dancing starts," he pictured, tugging at the heart-strings of his professional colleagues, "some girls will be left without partners. One may patiently twiddle her thumbs and wait for an invitation. One helpful miss may hie herself to the kitchen and become an extra nuisance in the food preparation. A third may dash upstairs to put on another unnecessary layer of makeup. And it is not rare to find a girl, in such a fix, busy drinking her sorrows under the table.

"Then, too," he went on, glancing round at the saddened faces of the dancing masters, "it is possible to stumble on one of those rare parties where there is a shortage of females, and a long line of glum stags greets the eye of every dancer.

"In my profession, such circumstances as these are brought home to me several times each day. Since the stories I hear from wallflowers are heart-breaking tales, I pondered the problem and finally evolved a new dance to help them out."

His new dance is simple enough for any adequate dancer to learn. Once the essential idea is grasped, variations can be added endlessly. To the rhythm of a foxtrot, waltz, tango or what you will, three or even four persons can sway and step and tap together as easily as two. Unlike the usual dance position in which the partners face each other, all the members of the wallflower group face in the same direction in an open position; instead of following with the opposite foot, the woman partners do exactly the same steps with the same foot as their leader; and instead of placing their arms in clasp at one side, the arms may be clasped in front, held at the side or placed on the hips.

"I feel that this idea of mine must be classed as a novelty dance," Ludwig says, "but yet, not in the ordinary sense of the word. Even though only a limited number of dances in an evening might be announced as wallflower numbers, these would be the ones to make the evening a success. For some people, it would just instill a novel form of fun into each party, but for the extra girls it would be the saving grace in an otherwise pathetic loneliness.

"For instance," he explains, getting up to illustrate his point, "if I had one girl on either side of me, neither one could feel that she was the extra, the wallflower, just tagging along. They would both be equal partners of mine and neither would feel conspicuous. We could dance off and even add another girl or two if we felt so inclined.

"That is the advantage of the open position, and although people may think it a bit difficult to follow in this style, they will soon see, after a few stumbles, that it is easy to learn and a very pleasant way to dance."

At the convention Mr. Ludwig presented a number of figures that he had worked out. The teachers who attended the meeting, much impressed, discussed the possibilities in detail.

"One figure to a foxtrot might go something like this," Ludwig says, illustrating nimbly. "Let three partners start with the left foot and take three walking steps forward. Then all place the right foot across the left, then step back on the left, place the right to the right side, then cross the left in front of the right, and step back on the right foot.

"THIS completes half of the figure. Now a waltz step in foxtrot time. Since the left foot is free, all step forward on it, then on the right, then close with the left. Next, step to the right on the right foot and bring the left up to it. Then the same step is repeated twice while turning to the right and after the second repetition the group will be in its original position and the figure will be finished.

"Another type of figure, with a little more dash in it, begins with the left foot in a forward two-step action. Then the right foot steps forward and the left closes to it. Then with the right foot, tap a back-brush and then step on it. Then with the left foot tap once, tap a brush-back, and then hold it in a swing. Then repeat the whole thing to complete the figure." (A "brush" is a simple swinging of the foot backward or forward, which brushes the floor in passing.)

Certainly it interested the dancing masters.

Detached commentators have suggested, however, that the new idea will have to be launched under some other title than the "wallflower dance" if it is to accomplish its purpose.

For a moment Mr. Ludwig has forgotten the original purpose of the dance and has gone into a "stance" with one of his partners.

HOLLYWOOD.

THE motion picture fans know very little about Luise Rainer. She has only made one picture here, or anywhere else, for that matter, but the film barons of Hollywood look upon her as a great find, who is expected to become a rival of Garbo and Dietrich. For Luise is a semi-foreigner, an Austrian-born-and-bred girl, whose father came to the United States years ago, became an American citizen and then returned to his native Vienna to settle down in business and raise a family. Rainer had never been on the stage, nor had his wife, Eay Rainer, or any of their ancestors, so it is something of a mystery as to how his daughter came into her undoubted acting ability.

But she has it. At 16 years of age—she is now 23—Luise, with no training, not even in school dramatic organizations, stepped upon a stage in Dusseldorf for an audition and spoke the lines of a scene which had been handed her a bare half-hour previously. Ten minutes later she had a contract and was on her way to a career which sent her flashing across Europe as a wonder child of the theater. She played leading roles in the dramas of Shakespeare, Ibsen, Pirandello and others with Max Reinhardt's players in Vienna, Paris and London, and then burst forth as a star in her own right.

"THIS is an awful kangaroo court out here!"

So said a murderer and bank robber after his conviction before Circuit Judge Ransom Albert Breuer by a Franklin County jury at Union, Missouri, long known as a scene of justice not only for local cases but for causes celebres sent out from St. Louis on a change of venue.

Regardless of the feeling of the burglarious and murderous gentleman, the people and the bar of Judge Breuer's circuit in Gasconade, Osage and Franklin counties have shown a diametrically opposite attitude towards this hard-working, Lincoln-like figure of the rural bench.

Since the Republican primary of 1910, in which he was nominated for the first time, he has never had an opponent for nomination or election. He defeated his predecessor in that primary, but was forced to defend a contest in the Supreme Court of Missouri before being seated. Only two other Circuit Judges of the State have been on the bench longer than he—E. M. Dearing of Potosi and C. H. Skinker of Bolivar, both first elected in 1910, after serving a year by appointment. Judge Breuer entered his fifth six-year term the first of this year.

If you ask him how he has achieved this long record, he says: "I don't account for it; I do my duty as I see it, right or wrong, regardless of politics or religion."

Even lawyers whom he has decided against will tell you that he is fair and well versed in the law. "He reminds you all the time of Lincoln," says one veteran practitioner; "he is just as deliberate as old Abe Lincoln, and has the same wisdom."

The fact is that Judge Breuer is something of the ideal figure of a hink it a bit difficult to follow in his style, they will soon see, after few stumbles, that it is easy to earn and a very pleasant way to ance."

At the convention Mr. Ludwig preented a number of figures that he ad worked out. The teachers who ttended the meeting, much impressed, discussed the possibilities in etail.

"Another type of figure, with a little ore dash in it, begins with the left oot in a forward two-step action. hen the right foot steps forward and e left closes to it. Then with the ight foot, tap a back-brush and then tep on it. Then with the left foot p once, tap a brush-back, and then old it in a swing. Then repeat the hole thing to complete the figure." A "brush" is a simple swinging of the oot backward or forward, which rushes the floor in passing.)

Certainly it interested the dancing asters.

Detached commentators have suggested, however, that the new idea will ave to be launched under some other tle than the "wallflower dance" if it to accomplish its purpose.

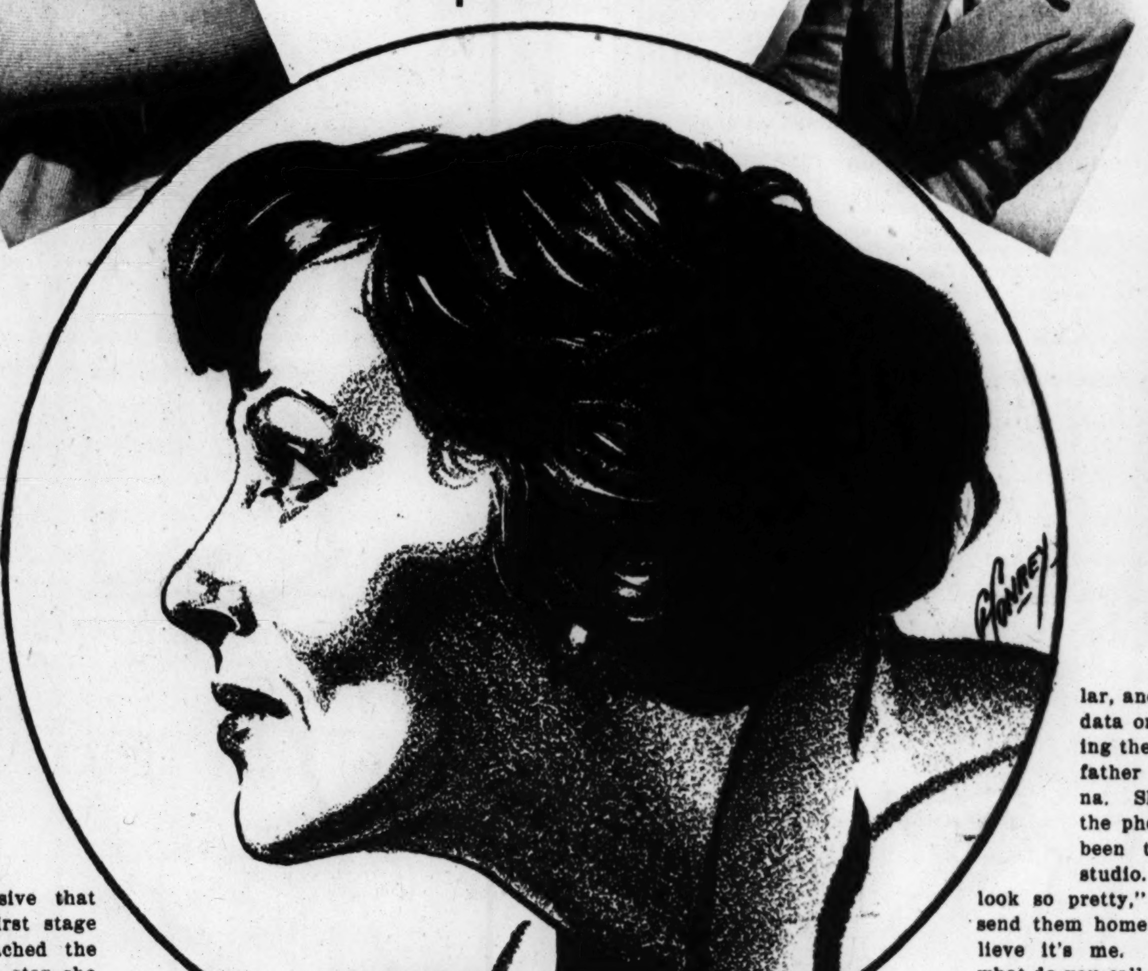
SKETCHES FROM LIFE

High Lights on Unusual Personalities

LUISE RAINER
RANSOM ALBERT BREUER

New Hollywood Sensation Who Began Her Acting Career With Only Half an Hour's Preparation



Sketch and five poses of Luise Rainer.

HOLLYWOOD.

THE motion picture fans know very little about Luise Rainer. She has only made one picture here, or anywhere else, for that matter, but the film barons of Hollywood look upon her as a great find, who is expected to become a rival of Garbo and Dietrich. For Luise is a semi-foreigner, an Austrian-born-and-bred girl, whose father came to the United States years ago, became an American citizen and then returned to his native Vienna to settle down in business and raise a family. Rainer had never been on the stage, nor had his wife, Eay Rainer, or any of their ancestors, so it is something of a mystery as to how his daughter came into her undoubted acting ability.

But she has it. At 16 years of age—she is now 23—Luise, with no training, not even in school dramatic organizations, stepped upon a stage in Dusseldorf for an audition and spoke the lines of a scene which had been handed her a bare half-hour previously. Ten minutes later she had a contract and was on her way to a career which sent her flashing across Europe as a wonder child of the theater. She played leading roles in the dramas of Shakespeare, Ibsen, Pirandello and others with Max Reinhardt's players in Vienna, Paris and London, and then burst forth as a star in her own right.

Immensely attractive without being pretty, Luise Rainer has personality, that intangible something which apparently has registered as well in "Escapade," her single movie so far, as it did on the stage. And she has eyes. Wonderful, wide-open, dark ones, which are so expressive that they, alone, secured that first stage tryout, and before she reached the more dignified position of a star she was advertised pretty generally in Europe as "The Girl with the Eyes."

It was during a performance of Pirandello's "Six Characters in Search of an Author" that Luise was "discovered" by the American movie makers. Director Clarence Brown of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer forces saw her in Vienna and, as a result, she came to this country with a long-term movie contract.

But she spoke very little English. Her first job was to learn that language, a task which she went about feverishly. First, she settled down in a small home on the beach near Hollywood with a servant and a dog. Then she began to study. In two months she was ready for her part in "Escapade." Johnny, her dog, which she brought from Vienna, hasn't learned English yet. He is a scotty, but understands only German, and it is only when she talks to him that his mistress uses her native tongue these days. She finds speaking over the telephone a great help to her language lessons. "When you talk to someone, directly," she says, "and you forget words, you can use gestures and be understood. You can't fall back on gestures over the wire."

Little Miss Rainer—she is five feet two and weighs 115 pounds — is essentially a dramatic actress. On the stage she rarely plays anything but intense roles, and her great ambition is to be seen in a drama, or a film, of the life of Joan of Arc. Off the stage she is anything but dramatic. She dances and sings and plays on the beach and goes to see only comedy motion pictures. Her favorite entertainers are the Mills Brothers and her favorite American song is the one about Mrs. Otis regretting her inability to go to lunch in 40 or 50 verses—if you can call them that. A child at heart, she is never still. She babbles eagerly with anyone over the new sights of Hollywood. She is enthusiastic about American pies in general and apple pie in particular, and has collected all the data on the subject of making them to send back to her father and mother in Vienna. She is amazed, too, at the photographs which have been taken of her at the studio. "They make me look so pretty," she said. "When I send them home my family won't believe it's me. They think I have, what do you call it, a 'doublet,' to pose for me."

She hasn't paid much attention to American men, so far. Her only compliment to any member of the sex was rather a left-handed one. "They told me that when the warm weather came I must have Johnny plucked. So I took him to a place where they pulled all his hair out. He looks terrible, but when his hair grows he is a regular William Powell among dogs."

SHE likes, immensely, the American method of dressing. Perhaps it would be better to say the Hollywood method. She runs around in slacks all day and was amazed to find that she could walk down Hollywood boulevard in them without attracting the least bit of attention. The few "party clothes" she has bought are very simple affairs, for she hates dressing up. She would rather, she says, spend her money for art objects and phonograph records.

She enjoys getting out and seeing things, alone. The amusement parks along the ocean front are a never-ending source of enjoyment and she takes ride after ride in the roller coasters and down the chute-the-chutes all by herself. The restaurants and eating stands built to look like great derby hats and ice-cream freezers and what-not fill her with wonder. "I thought when I arrived here that it must be carnival week, like we have in Vienna every year," she explained. "I spent every minute I could spare dashing from a funny-looking place to a funnier-looking place at first, because I thought they would all be torn down or moved away before I could get around to see them all."

She had some difficulty learning to drive her small car, because, as she says, "Americans drive on the wrong side of the road." But now she takes long trips into the mountains alone and enjoys everything she sees.

Childish to an extreme in most things, she occasionally does talk seriously—about music, about playing Joan of Arc, about pictures. "I can see how easy it would be for an actress to become what you call 'Hollywood,'" said she. "They make so much of you here for no reason at all. People I never heard of and who never saw me even in the one movie I have made, learn, somehow, who I am and come up and ask me to write my name in a little book. Why? I don't know. Perhaps it is an old American custom."

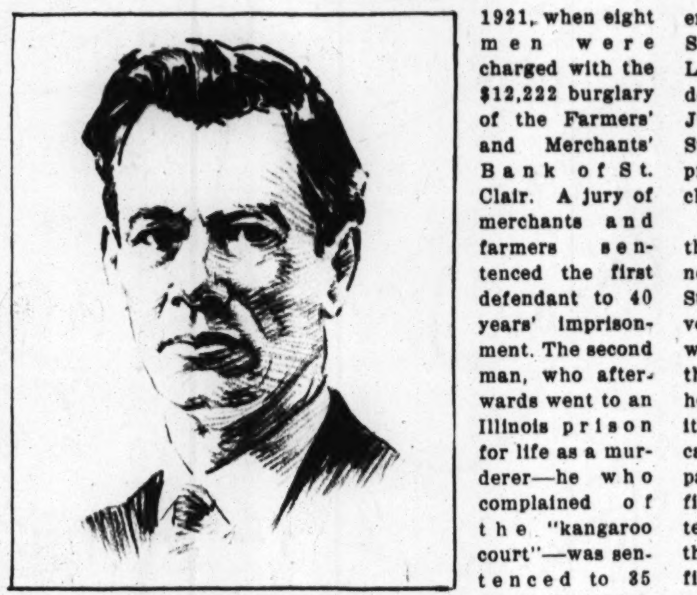
THE MISSOURI JUDGE WHO "REMINDS YOU OF LINCOLN"



Judge Ransom Albert Breuer

"THIS is an awful kangaroo court out here!"

So said a murderer and bank robber after his conviction before Circuit Judge Ransom Albert Breuer by a Franklin County jury at Union, Missouri, long known as a scene of justice not only for local cases but for causes celebres sent out from St. Louis on a change of venue.

Regardless of the feeling of the burglarious and murderous gentleman, the people and the bar of Judge Breuer's circuit in Gasconade, Osage and Franklin counties have shown a diametrically opposite attitude towards this hard-working, Lincoln-like figure of the rural bench.

Since the Republican primary of 1910, in which he was nominated for the first time, he has never had an opponent for nomination or election. He defeated his predecessor in that primary, but was forced to defend a contest in the Supreme Court of Missouri before being seated. Only two other Circuit Judges of the State have been on the bench longer than he—E. M. Dearing of Potosi and C. H. Skinker of Bolivar, both first elected in 1910, after serving a year by appointment. Judge Breuer entered his fifth six-year term the first of this year.

If you ask him how he has achieved this long record, he says: "I don't account for it; I do my duty as I see it, right or wrong, regardless of politics or religion."

Even lawyers whom he has decided against will tell you that he is fair and well versed in the law. "He reminds you all the time of Lincoln," says one veteran practitioner; "he is just as deliberate as old Abe Lincoln, and has the same wisdom."

The fact is that Judge Breuer is something of the ideal figure of a country jurist. Unassuming in manner, quizzical in expression, given to few words, unless occasion arises to make talk worth while, he has a heavy thatch of black hair, steeled with gray, and the skin of an outdoor man. His expression is determined, but there is a twinkle in his eye. A black slouch hat usually tops his sparse figure; modes in tailoring apparently don't concern him. His manner is homespun, but fails to conceal a keen intellect. One feels that he is natural, not a poser.

A tradition of rural justice was established at Union even before Judge Breuer took the bench. First, in the '90s, there was the Maxwell-Preller case. Maxwell murdered Preller in the old Southern Hotel here and fled to Australia; he was hanged at Union. Arthur Duestrow, who killed his wife and child in St. Louis in 1896, paid the penalty on Union's gallows. In 1902 William Rudolph and George Collins robbed a bank and killed a detective; they, too, got the noose.

JUDGE BREUER has a way of cutting through technicalities and brushing aside vexatious delays. Lawyers appearing before him in the handsome courthouse at Union, the modern building at Linn or the picturesque older seat of justice on a bluff at Hermann have become accustomed to his crisp order, "Overruled," disposing frequently of motions and objections. A long succession of widely-known attorneys have pleaded causes in his court, indulging in spread-eagle oratory, to the delight of jurors and spectators alike. This chronicler once saw an overflow audience on porches and in windows across the square when some of the best of the orators raised their voices in final arguments on a warm day, before the old-fashioned Franklin County Courthouse was razed.

Judge Breuer keeps order in the courtroom, but not in the strict manner of a metropolitan tribunal. Counsel, litigants and spectators may go in shirtsleeves at will; they may converse in discreet tones or read the papers cautiously; they may not smoke, but they may—and many do—chew. Two St. Louis newspaper men, well known to the Judge, once entered his court at Hermann at the start of a case, when few persons were present. Peering over the bench, he greeted them: "Have you boys seen our jail?" For a moment they thought he was serious.

One of the first big cases before Judge Breuer was a libel suit by a public official against a city newspaper, tried at Hermann early in his first term.

Possibly the next attracting general attention was the trial of three youths for murder of a Berger garage proprietor, Benjamin Schobe, in 1920. One of the defendants received a life term, while the others were hanged at Union the next year. The only other person Judge Breuer ever had to sentence to death was a Negro hanged at Hermann last April for the murder of two railroad detectives.

The Judge showed his mettle in 1921, when eight men were charged with the $12,222 burglary of the Farmers' and Merchants' Bank of St. Clair. A jury of merchants and farmers sentenced the first defendant to 40 years' imprisonment. The second man, who afterwards went to an Illinois prison for life as a murderer—he who complained of the "kangaroo court"—was sentenced to 35 years. The third, hoping for the leniency sometimes shown by city Judges and fearing a Franklin County jury, pleaded guilty. "Forty years," said the Judge, to the consternation of the defendant and his counsel. Three years later, when the statute of limitations had run, this fellow obtained release by habeas corpus because the indictment had averred that he entered the bank "unlawfully" and "burglariously," but failed to say "feloniously." The third and fourth juries gave two other defendants 20 and 25 years, respectively, while the State dropped charges against three, but at least two of the prisoners were freed after the Supreme Court reversed their convictions.

The criminal cases growing out of the wrecking of the Night and Day Bank in 1922 were transferred to Judge Breuer's court. The bank was closed after the cashier misappropriated $754,000. Charges against several directors were dropped by the State. Holding court in a hotel at Linn because the old courthouse was destroyed by fire early that day, the Judge became exasperated over the State's delays in prosecuting the bank president, and the State dropped charges against the president.

When a jury at Union convicted the cashier, Judge Breuer pronounced sentence at once, despite the State's objection that this might prevent further prosecution. "That's the way we do it here, gentlemen," said the Judge. The Supreme Court upheld him on this point, although later it reversed and remanded the case because an instruction to the jury, prepared by the Circuit Attorney's office, was faulty. Another jury acquitted the cashier on this charge, but in the meantime two other sentences of five and three years were imposed. He served four years and five months in the penitentiary, being freed five years ago.

Then there was the case of Jimmy Hogan, St. Louis gangster and ex-convict, charged with the robbery of Erris Pillow, Negro bank messenger, in 1921. Like others whose cases were transferred, he alleged there was prejudice against him in the city. At his first trial he was sentenced to 15 years' imprisonment, but the Supreme Court reversed the case. A second jury deliberated for hours, unable to reach a verdict. Judge Breuer, anxious to finish the case, insisted that the jurors try much longer than usual to agree. The third jury also was hung for more than 24 hours. A fourth jury had a harder time; the Judge kept sending word to them—"Try!"—but he was forced to discharge the jurors after 63 hours. The fifth jury acquitted Hogan in 1926.

Two officers of a coal company, charged with defrauding the city through short-weight deliveries, took a change of venue to Union in 1928. As the trial began it was found the indictment specified the wrong dates for the contract in question. Judge Breuer sustained a defense objection to admission of the contract in evidence, forcing the State to dismiss the case, but the Judge refused a defense plea for a directed verdict of acquittal, holding, "If it's a bad indictment, there's no jeopardy."

More than one city lawyer, going to this circuit on a big case, accustomed to working perhaps five hours a day in the courtroom, has been surprised to find night sessions frequent in Judge Breuer's jurisdiction and a working day from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. not unusual.

RANSOM BREUER, born at Red Bird, in southern Gasconade County, on Washington's birthday, 1870, was named for an uncle, not for General Ransom of Civil War fame. He is one of six brothers, two of whom became lawyers, two physicians and two farmers. The other lawyer is Louis H. Breuer, former United States District Attorney. The Judge was graduated from the State Normal School at Cape Girardeau and for eight years taught rural schools in Gasconade and Crawford counties. Then he studied law at Washington University, being admitted to the bar two months before receiving his degree in 1898. He served two terms as Prosecuting Attorney of Gasconade County, 1901-04, and six years as County Collector, 1905-10. In 1931 he was elected president of the Missouri Conference of Circuit and Appellate Judges at a meeting in St. Louis. He is married, has a son and three daughters, and lives on a hill at the edge of the Old Worldly little city of Hermann.

LATE AUTUMN MODES

Woolens, Silks and New Hat Silhouettes

NOW that the excitement over the first Fall clothes has abated somewhat, the world of fashion, always looking ahead, will be interested in knowing what Paris will sponsor for the coming Winter months. Advance whisperings indicate that we are to expect interesting things in the way of new fabrics and colors.

Rodier materials, for instance, show a strong Moroccan influence. Molyneux will sponsor a grey-green-blue oil color, also a changeable taffeta in dark green and red on a faille ground and will use heavy sheers and crinkle crepes in silks. Schiaparelli and Molyneux will both show daytime frocks in a new lastex material.

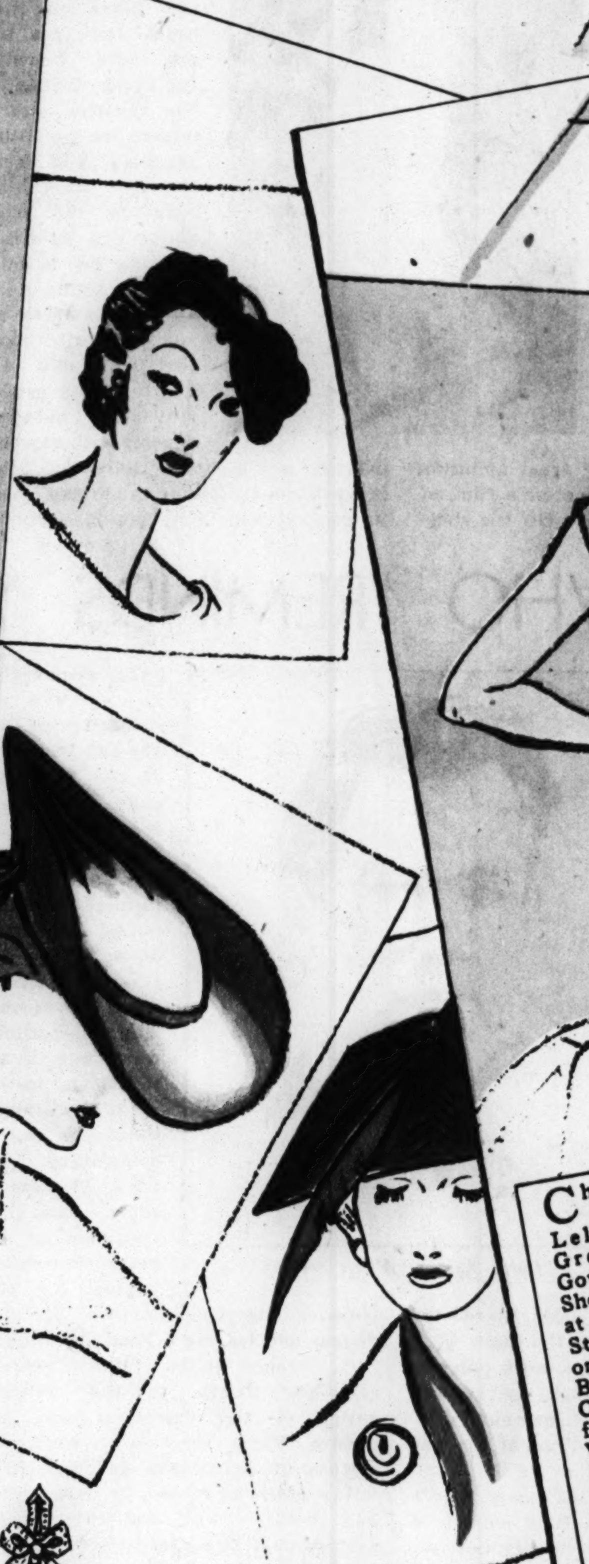
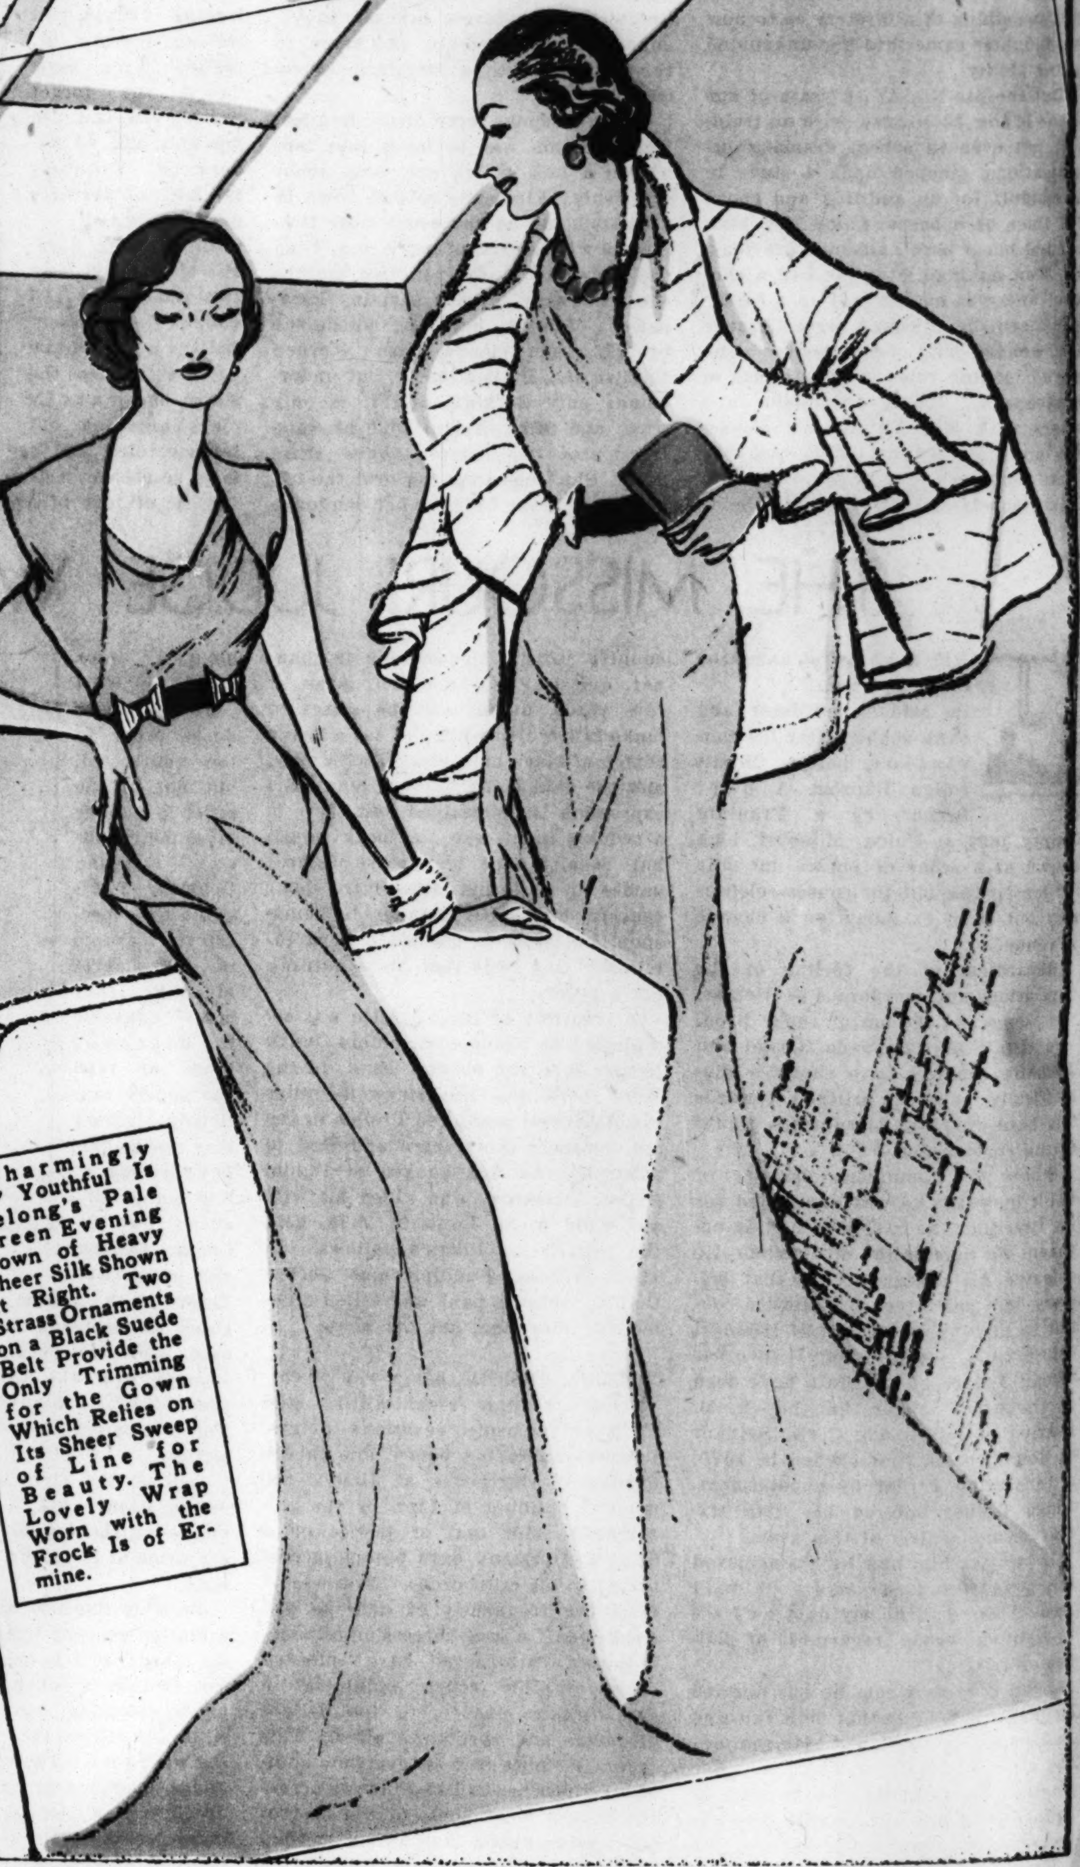
Drawn by Grace Corson, Paris.

A Smart Costume for Late Fall Combines a Frock of Hunter's Green Wool with a Short Black Seal Jacket. As Shown in the Sketch Above, the Dress Is Buttoned to the Waist in Back, Has a High Draped Collar, Tucked Shoulders and a Large Gold S-shaped Buckle on the Belt. The Seal Jacket Has Broad Stitched Revers and a Peplum of Green Wool. The Handbag Shown Above Is One of the Smartest of the New Numbers in Dark Brown Heavy Calf and a Stunning Evening Accessory Is a 3-inch Diamente Brooch. To the Right Is Shown One of the New Evening Gowns, in Pale Yellow Metal-Thread Crepe with a Large Diamente Ornament at the Waist. Two Long Panels Are Gathered at the Waistline and Form a Short Train.



Interesting Silhouettes Are Revealed in the Three Hats Shown Above. The Suzy Model in Purple Velvet With Its Green Velvet Crown Is in the New Draped Effect, and the Normandie Is Responsible for the Boat Silhouette of the Rust-Colored Felt. The Square Felt at the Right Has Overlapping Stitched Corners Turned Back and Caught With a Quill. To the Left One of the New Jewelled Earrings in the Italian Manner.



Charmingly Youthful Is Lelong's Pale Green Evening Gown of Heavy Sheer Silk Shown at Right. Two Strass Ornaments on a Black Suede Belt Provide the Only Trimming for the Gown Which Relies on Its Sheer Sweep of Line for Beauty. The Lovely Wrap Worn with the Frock Is of Ermine.

A WHIZZING tiny speck came shooting almost straight down from an altitude of 20,000 feet. Spectators at the Farmingdale (Long Island) airport held their breath as Jimmy Collins, young, curly-haired, blond test pilot, dropped the new model navy bomber at a speed in excess of 400 miles an hour.

It was the last of a series of 12 dives, for which Collins was to get $1500. Furthermore, it was to be the end as far as he was concerned of what aviation terms the "test racket." Collins had just obtained a job on a New York newspaper as a columnist at $100 a week. That afternoon, just before he went up, Collins had remarked to a photographer that "the next one is going to be my last." Then he had paused, smiled and commented, "At that, it might be."

The motor roared thunderously and the whistling wires screamed at 8000 feet as Collins jerked the stick back to pull out of the terrific dive. The nose of the ship shot up. The left wing snapped off and started floating lazily down like an autumn leaf. The nose of the bomber went down again and the ship spun round and round toward the earth. The powerful engine ripped out. Behind it came the fuselage with Collins unable to jump from the twirling mass of wreckage.

"Pull me out, boys," Collins gasped, trying to smile. "I'm all through."

One of them started to wipe the blood off his face as they lifted him. "Never mind that—I'm done," Collins said as he died.

That was last March 22. The October before that he had written a piece for a New York column under the caption "I Am Dead," describing the final plunge that he himself was to take in a few months. It is the last chapter in "Test Pilot" (Doubleday, Doran & Co., Inc.), made up largely of his writings in periodicals and newspapers.

The chapter concludes as follows:

"Down.

"Down.

"A roar of flashing steel and a streak of glinting . . . oh, yes; oh, yes, now . . . breaking wings. Too frail . . . the wings . . . the dream . . . the evil days. . . .

"The cold but vibrant fuselage was the last thing to feel my warm and living flesh. The long, loud diving roar of the motor, rising to the awful crashing crescendo of its impact with the earth, was my death song.

"I am dead now."

And he wrote that chapter, that prophecy which he was to fulfill, from an actual experience in 1929. The ship he was testing at that time lost both wings at once. The sudden lurch of the midair failure snapped his head against the instrument board and knocked him unconscious. He regained his senses thousands of feet later and jumped, only to be threatened by the falling wreck as his parachute opened.

The general impression is that test pilots are a hard-boiled set of daredevils, with no nerves and less worries. But Jimmy Collins, in his writings, reveals several times that he had an imagination and a sense of realization. He said

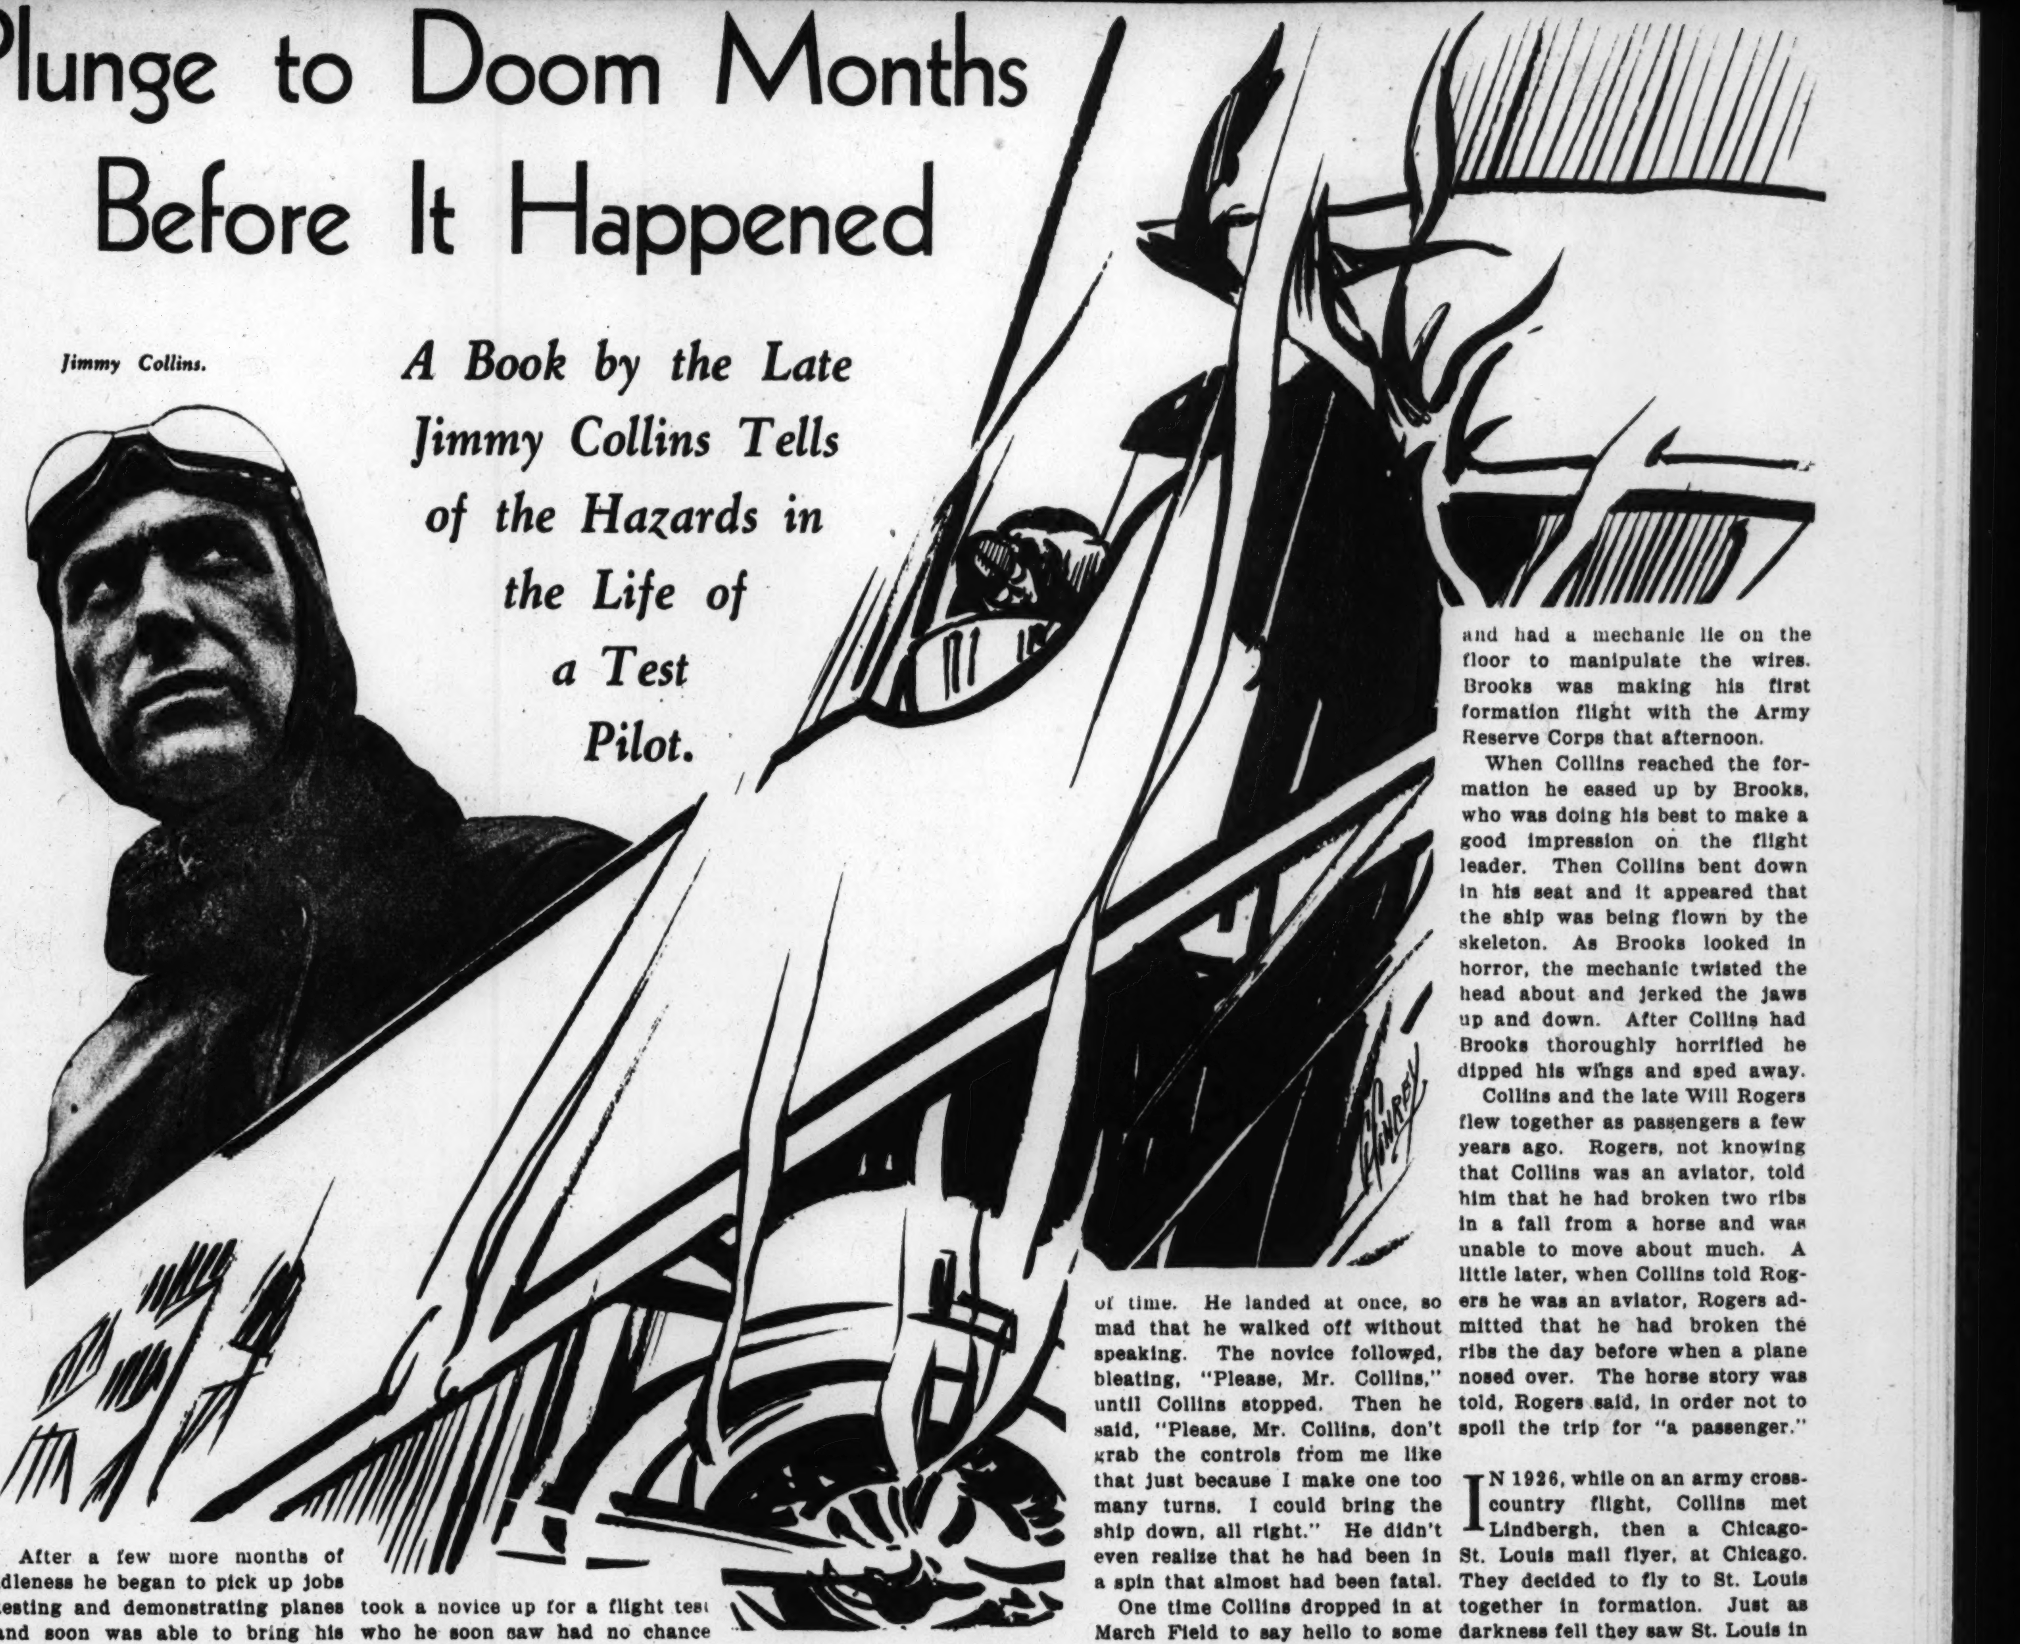
Described His Plunge to Doom Months Before It Happened

A Book by the Late Jimmy Collins Tells of the Hazards in the Life of a Test Pilot.



Jimmy Collins.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Staff

A WHIZZING tiny speck came shooting almost straight down from an altitude of 20,000 feet. Spectators at the Farmingsdale (Long Island) airport held their breath as Jimmy Collins, young, curly-haired, blond test pilot, dropped the new model navy bomber at a speed in excess of 400 miles an hour.

It was the last of a series of 12 dives, for which Collins was to get $1500. Furthermore, it was to be the end as far as he was concerned of what aviation terms the "test racket." Collins had just obtained a job on a New York newspaper as a columnist at $100 a week. That afternoon, just before he went up, Collins had remarked to a photographer that "the next one is going to be my last." Then he had paused, smiled and commented, "At that, it might be."

The motor roared thunderously and the whistling wires screamed at 8000 feet as Collins jerked the stick back to pull out of the terrific dive. The nose of the ship shot up. The left wing snapped off and started floating lazily down like an autumn leaf. The nose of the bomber went down again and the ship spun round and round toward the earth. The powerful engine ripped out. Behind it came the fuselage with Collins unable to jump from the twirling mass of wreckage.

The fuselage crashed into the center of a little cemetery. A group of boys rushed to the twisted pile of canvas, steel and wood.

One of them started to wipe the blood off his face as they lifted him. "Never mind that—I'm done," Collins said as he died.

That was last March 23. The October before that he had written a piece for a New York column under the caption "I Am Dead," describing the final plunge that he himself was to take in a few months. It is the last chapter in "Test Pilot" (Doubleday, Doran & Co., Inc.), made up largely of his writings in periodicals and newspapers.

The chapter concludes as follows:

"Down.

"Down.

"A roar of flashing steel and a streak of glinting . . . oh, yes; oh, yes, now . . . breaking wings. Too frail . . . the wings . . . the dream . . . the evil days. . . .

"The cold but vibrant fuselage was the last thing to feel my warm and living flesh. The long, loud diving roar of the motor, rising to the awful crashing crescendo of its impact with the earth, was my death song.

"I am dead now."

And he wrote that chapter, that prophecy which he was to fulfill, from an actual experience in 1929. The ship he was testing at that time lost both wings at once. The sudden lurch of the midair failure snapped his head against the instrument board and knocked him unconscious. He regained his senses thousands of feet later and jumped, only to be threatened by the falling wreck as his parachute opened.

The general impression is that test pilots are a hard-boiled set of daredevils, with no nerves and less worries. But Jimmy Collins, in his writings, reveals several times that he had an imagination and a sense of realization. He said there were times after this accident when he awoke suddenly at night. "No special dreams of horror," he wrote. "Just the delayed action of some subterranean mechanism of fright in my subconscious brain."

Collins was born at Warren, Ohio, in 1904. When he was five years old his father, a bricklayer, died, and when he was 16 his mother, who had been working as a scrubwoman, seamstress and cook, died. Young Collins then went to work nights in a rubber factory at Akron. He managed to get through the first year of college, thus acquiring enough education to enable him to pass the examinations for the Army Air Service Primary Flying School.

In his class of 105 were Charles A. Lindbergh and Philip Love, the latter now a pilot for the Union Electric Light and Power Company and a Major commanding the Thirty-fifth Division Aviation Corps at Lambert Field, St. Louis. In March, 1925, after a year of training, they were among 18 graduated from the Army Advanced Flying School, Kelly Field, San Antonio, Texas. The others had been "washed out"—disqualified, in other words. Collins, Lindbergh and Love and one other flying cadet were the four best aviators in the class, chosen to specialize in pursuit flying.

ON GRADUATION there was nothing for Collins to do but accept his discharge and a commission as a Second Lieutenant in the reserve. Unable to get any job that would require his newly-acquired ability, he went back to the rubber factory when his money ran out. Two months was all he could stand; he quit. A six-month tour of duty at Selfridge Field, Mount Clemens, Michigan, was a landfall a few weeks later.

Then he went to Detroit, where he was told he could begin as a mere cog in the Ford automobile factory, work up to the aviation plant and then be assigned as an aviator. After a week of standing in line he was given a badge and told to report to a certain department the next morning.

The next morning, as he sat in the street car looking at the men across from him, he studied their faces and thought about the future. His eyes recorded hunched shoulders, lifeless eyes and wooden expressions. He felt his self-respect and pride oozing out. Even the rubber factory was not as bad as that. He got off at the plant and watched the men file in. He shuddered and took the next trolley to town. Returning to Selfridge Field, he swallowed his pride enough to enlist as a cadet. Two months later he was given a regular commission and became an instructor at Brooks Field, Texas.

Everything would have gone smoothly had he not begun to read George Bernard Shaw and all the articles he could find in magazines and papers on Socialism. In April, 1928, being a confirmed pacifist and Socialist, he decided that "the only moral thing I could do was to get out of the army." After a few months as an inspector with the aeronautic branch of the Department of Commerce and later as chief test pilot with a private company, he became vice-president of a small aviation corporation. The depression came and he resigned in 1930. From time to time he found employment as a private pilot for rich men. He became interested in Communism and finally lost a good private piloting job, "being discharged for radical activity by my rich boss."

After a few more months of idleness he began to pick up jobs testing and demonstrating planes and soon was able to bring his wife and family from Oklahoma, where they had been living with her parents.

Collins had his share of narrow squeaks before he finally died. Once, when an inspector for the Department of Commerce, he took a novice up for a flight test who he soon saw had no chance of passing it. He landed him at once, and then the man pleaded so hard for another chance that Collins gave in and went up again with him.

This time the novice put the plane into a spin, dropped it to 200 feet and turned the ship over on its back. Collins knocked the throttle open with his left hand as he grabbed with both for the stick. Collins' violent grab enabled him to plunge it forward and stop the spin just in the nick of time. He landed at once, so mad that he walked off without speaking. The novice followed, bleating, "Please, Mr. Collins," until Collins stopped. Then he said, "Please, Mr. Collins, don't grab the controls from me like that just because I make one too many turns. I could bring the ship down, all right." He didn't even realize that he had been in a spin that almost had been fatal.

One time Collins dropped in at March Field to say hello to some of his old army friends. Three of them insisted that he take a rear seat in one of the planes and accompany them on a trip to Mexicali, on the border. While there they met a Mexican Captain and all but Collins had quite a few drinks with him. The Captain, standing outside the hangar, waved to them as the three planes left the airport for home. The leader of the formation thereupon led the two other ships in some diving passes at the Captain.

They were having a lot of fun dusting their wings on the ground—that is, all of them were but Collins, who was sober. The pilot of his plane was sticking his wing in too close to the leader's wing for Collins' comfort. As the plane had dual controls, Collins resorted to applying a little pressure in order to ease the wing away from the leader's in some of the passes and pull the nose up in some of the dives.

WHEN the planes got back to March Field, Collins' pilot began to tell Collins what a self-possessed person he was not to have taken the controls from him during the rash farewell exhibition. He went on to say that had he been sitting in the back, sober, and had Collins been drunk in front he most certainly would have taken the controls, regardless of flying ethics. As a result, Collins decided that he had a most subtle touch when it came to handling the controls.

Dual controls and a skeleton enabled Collins to play a grisly joke on a friend, Pete Brooks. Collins stuck the skeleton in his back seat, wired so its head could be turned and its jaws moved up and down, and had a mechanic lie on the floor to manipulate the wires. Brooks was making his first formation flight with the Army Reserve Corps that afternoon.

When Collins reached the formation he eased up by Brooks, who was doing his best to make a good impression on the flight leader. Then Collins bent down in his seat and it appeared that the ship was being flown by the skeleton. As Brooks looked in horror, the mechanic twisted the head about and jerked the jaws up and down. After Collins had Brooks thoroughly horrified he dipped his wings and sped away.

Collins and the late Will Rogers flew together as passengers a few years ago. Rogers, not knowing that Collins was an aviator, told him that he had broken two ribs in a fall from a horse and was unable to move about much. A little later, when Collins told Rogers he was an aviator, Rogers admitted that he had broken the ribs the day before when a plane nosed over. The horse story was told, Rogers said, in order not to spoil the trip for "a passenger."

IN 1926, while on an army cross-country flight, Collins met Lindbergh, then a Chicago-St. Louis mail flyer, at Chicago. They decided to fly to St. Louis together in formation. Just as darkness fell they saw St. Louis in the distance. A plane came up to them, turned around, and almost touched Collins' ship. The pilot was Phil Love, flying the mail to Chicago. Lindbergh signaled for a landing and they came down on an emergency field.

Lindbergh then took his parachute off and gave it to Love, saying, "You'll need this getting the mail on into Chicago tonight." Turning to Collins, he explained, "It's the only one in the company and I won't need it for the few miles on into St. Louis."

Collins also was acquainted with Major James H. Doolittle of St. Louis, now connected with the Shell Petroleum Corporation. Sitting in a moving picture show one time he saw Doolittle's face flashed on the screen in a news reel made just after he had failed to better the Los Angeles-New York record for transport planes. Doolittle explained that he had not done justice to his ship and concluded by asserting that it was "just another piece of bum piloting" that had led him 200 miles out of his course.

Shortly after that, Collins met Doolittle and asked him about the trip. Doolittle, talking shop to a fellow professional, went into details, involving supercharger, efficient gasoline consumption, radio beams and ice.

"I could immediately see," Collins wrote, "that 200 miles off under the conditions he had had to contend with had not been bad at all. I wouldn't have blamed him if he had explained to the public a little more than he did. But when he said to them without a shadow of an alibi, 'It was just another piece of bum piloting,' I thought it was pretty swell."

cally operated valve. The oil column acts on the intake of a "control gas," made of oxygen, carbon dioxide and nitrogen; this artificial air, which the organ "breathes," thus provides the "heart-beat" to maintain circulation of the artificial blood.

The oil column is so handled that excess "control gas," after it has been through the apparatus, can bubble off at low pressure (or between heartbeats), but the compressed air cannot force its way in through the oil. The control gas is humidified by passing through water—like the smoke in a Turkish hubble-bubble—and cleaned by passing through sterile filters before it reaches the "robot heart."

This, as explained, is really a "robot lung" as well as a "robot heart." It has three glass chambers. The organ to be kept alive is put in the topmost. The lowest is the reservoir for artificial blood. The middle chamber is used to equalize "blood pressure." Gas, driven into the reservoir by the rising piston of oil, forces the blood through an outlet at the bottom into an outside "glass artery" and around to the upper chamber, where the "glass artery" connects with the real artery feeding the living organ. As the oil column falls and pressure is released, the blood trickles down into the middle chamber on its way back to the reservoir.

Suppose the apparatus is set for a pulse rate of 60 to the minute and blood pressure of 120 systolic (peak) and 60 diastolic (low). Sixty times a minute the rising oil column forces in the control gas at a pressure equal to that of a 120-millimeter column of mercury. The gas passes directly into the middle and lower chambers, forcing artificial blood through the "glass artery" to the upper chamber and through the real artery to perfuse the organ.

Rhythmically the oil column falls. With it, pressure in the equalization chamber falls to zero, for its connection with the gas line is open. But the line to the reservoir is equipped with a valve opening only as pressure rises, and a constricted outlet which retards the escape of gas and hence maintains pressure in the reservoir, and in the arterial system of the organ, at the required minimum of 60 millimeters.

Only the inside arterial pressure is so maintained. Pressure in the upper chamber, outside the organ, remains in theory near zero. After perfusing the organ, the nutrient fluid trickles out on the floor of the chamber. As pressure drops to zero in the equalization chamber, a floating valve opens and the blood trickles into that chamber. Thence it returns to the reservoir when rising pressure closes the upper valve again and opens a lower valve between the equalization chamber and the reservoir, at the same moment when another pulse surges through the organ to complete the cycle.

Perhaps some of the wizardry of Carrel, absorbed by the receptive Lindbergh, made the remarkable invention possible. An anecdote will illustrate this scientific legerdemain. Several years ago, after Carrel had startled his associates by transplanting kidneys from one cat to another, a reporter called at Rockefeller Institute for details of the operation. Carrel refused to be interviewed.

"I don't know myself what Carrel is up to now," said one of his colleagues. "But it's a wise cat that knows his own kidneys around here these days."

The Tragedy of the Dwarf Who Loved the Beauty Prize Winner

He went home after the party and lay awake all night thinking about it and about her. Alone, he was even able to work up an insane hope that she reciprocated his affection sufficiently to be willing to share his unenviable fate—in short, to marry him.

The next day, sitting on his high stool at the lunch counter, he forgot to give her the wrist watch. With a sudden surge of courage, forgetting he had only intended to ask for a date, forgetting everything, he told her that he loved her and asked her to marry him. His blurted-out proposal caught her unprepared. Suddenly he halted his appeal. She was looking at him in a way he had never seen her look before. And then she laughed. "Why, Shorty, you're mistaken. . . . I don't love you. . . . I'm sorry for you, but I couldn't marry you. . . ." And then, unable to stop the terrible words: "You're a dwarf."

Bascombe kept himself from toppling off the stool. He was afraid, he said afterwards, that he was going to faint. "It was like a thunderbolt," he said. "I just looked at her. Just looked. And she was standing there, laughing at me. And I had the wrist watch I bought for her in my pocket."

Slowly he clambered down from the stool, trying not to stumble. He went out of the cafe, heard the clap of the screen door behind him, walked down Main street and off into the country. For two days and nights he lay in the fields, lost in loathing for himself and hatred for the world, insanely rolling his deformed body on the dry earth. For those two days he ate nothing and slept little. Then he made up his mind. Now was the time to kill himself. It was Tuesday evening. Somewhere he got a revolver. He decided ("that's the state I was in") to shoot himself while she watched. Outside her house, he crouched in the hedges, waiting, intending to call to her. But when she appeared in the window and sat down in a chair, he was suddenly overwhelmed with hatred.

"AT THAT moment," he said later, "she was the symbol of all my hatred for big people. I was mad at the whole world. I took the gun out of my pocket. Before I knew what I was doing I fired. And Marie fell."

An hour after the shooting Bascombe gave himself up to Sheriff Charles Kathan. He was put in jail, charged with assault to kill. The waitress, although she has since recovered, was then in a serious condition. For two days he sat in his cell, brooding despondently. Then he called for the County Attorney, told him he didn't see any reason for waiting. He wanted to plead guilty and get it over with.

For once they were kind to him. That Saturday they took him right over to Charles City, where court was then in session. He was taken before the Judge and pleaded guilty of assault with intent to murder.

Judge T. J. Beardmore pronounced sentence. Iowa law made an indeterminate term of 30 years' imprisonment mandatory. The Judge looked down at the little figure standing bravely before the bench. "Which would you prefer," he asked, "Anamosa Reformatory or Fort Madison Prison?"

"I want to go to Fort Madison," Shorty said. "The men there are older. I've had enough of young people."

HICKORY HOLLOW FOLKS

And the Things They Do

By WALTER QUERMANN

BETTY BUNNY HAS A SHOCK

THE CHARACTERS

BETTY BUNNY—A surprised little rabbit.
HILDA HOARDER—A gossipy little squirrel.
BILL BUNNY—Betty's unfortunate husband.
BECKY BEAR—A bear cub.

Everyone in Hickory Hollow is talking about the strange actions of Bill Bunny. The other day Becky Bear walked down Main street carrying Bill in her arms. Bill told everyone they met that he was playing the part of a doll in order to get Becky to carry him wherever he wanted to go. This, of course, wasn't true. What really happened was that Becky was lonesome for her missing bunny doll and couldn't resist the temptation to use Bill as a substitute when she found him asleep under a tree. Bill feels very foolish at being treated like a doll, and is afraid everyone will laugh at him if they know the truth. Betty Bunny wasn't home when Becky and Bill paraded through town, but she is hearing all about it from Hilda Hoarder as

THE PLAY BEGINS

HILDA HOARDER—I'm telling you the truth. She was carrying him as she would carry a doll.

BETTY BUNNY—Well, you certainly surprise me. Bill isn't lazy at all. He likes to run. Maybe he was joking.

HILDA HOARDER—It didn't look like any joke to me. (Betty is bewildered. She can't understand Bill's acting like that. She thinks very hard.)

BETTY BUNNY—If he wasn't joking, why would he be acting like that? I hope he isn't sick. I'll see if I can find them. Maybe he'll tell me. (She hops away, wondering and worrying. After a while she hears Bill and Betty talking. She approaches quietly and peeks from behind a tree. There is Bill, seated on Becky's knee.)

BETTY BUNNY—There they are, all right. I'll listen to what they are saying. (What she hears nearly kills her.)

BECKY BEAR—Now be a nice little baby. Mamma is going to teach you how to talk. Now, what does the moo cow say? Tell me, or I'll spank. (Poor Bill, he's been spanked by Becky before and knows just how hard she can hit so he mooes as loud as he can.)

BECKY BEAR—That's fine. Now, what does the doggie say?

BILL BUNNY—Bow-wow-wow. Gr-r-r. .

BECKY BEAR—Good. Now one more. What do the birdies say? (Poor Betty sees her Bill whistle and flap his arms like wings.)

BETTY BUNNY—Well, I never would have believed it if I hadn't seen it. There is only one answer for all this. Poor Bill is hopelessly crazy. What will become of us now? Mercy, this is terrible.

A roar goes up from the throng as Red's educated toe sends the ball squarely between the goal posts.

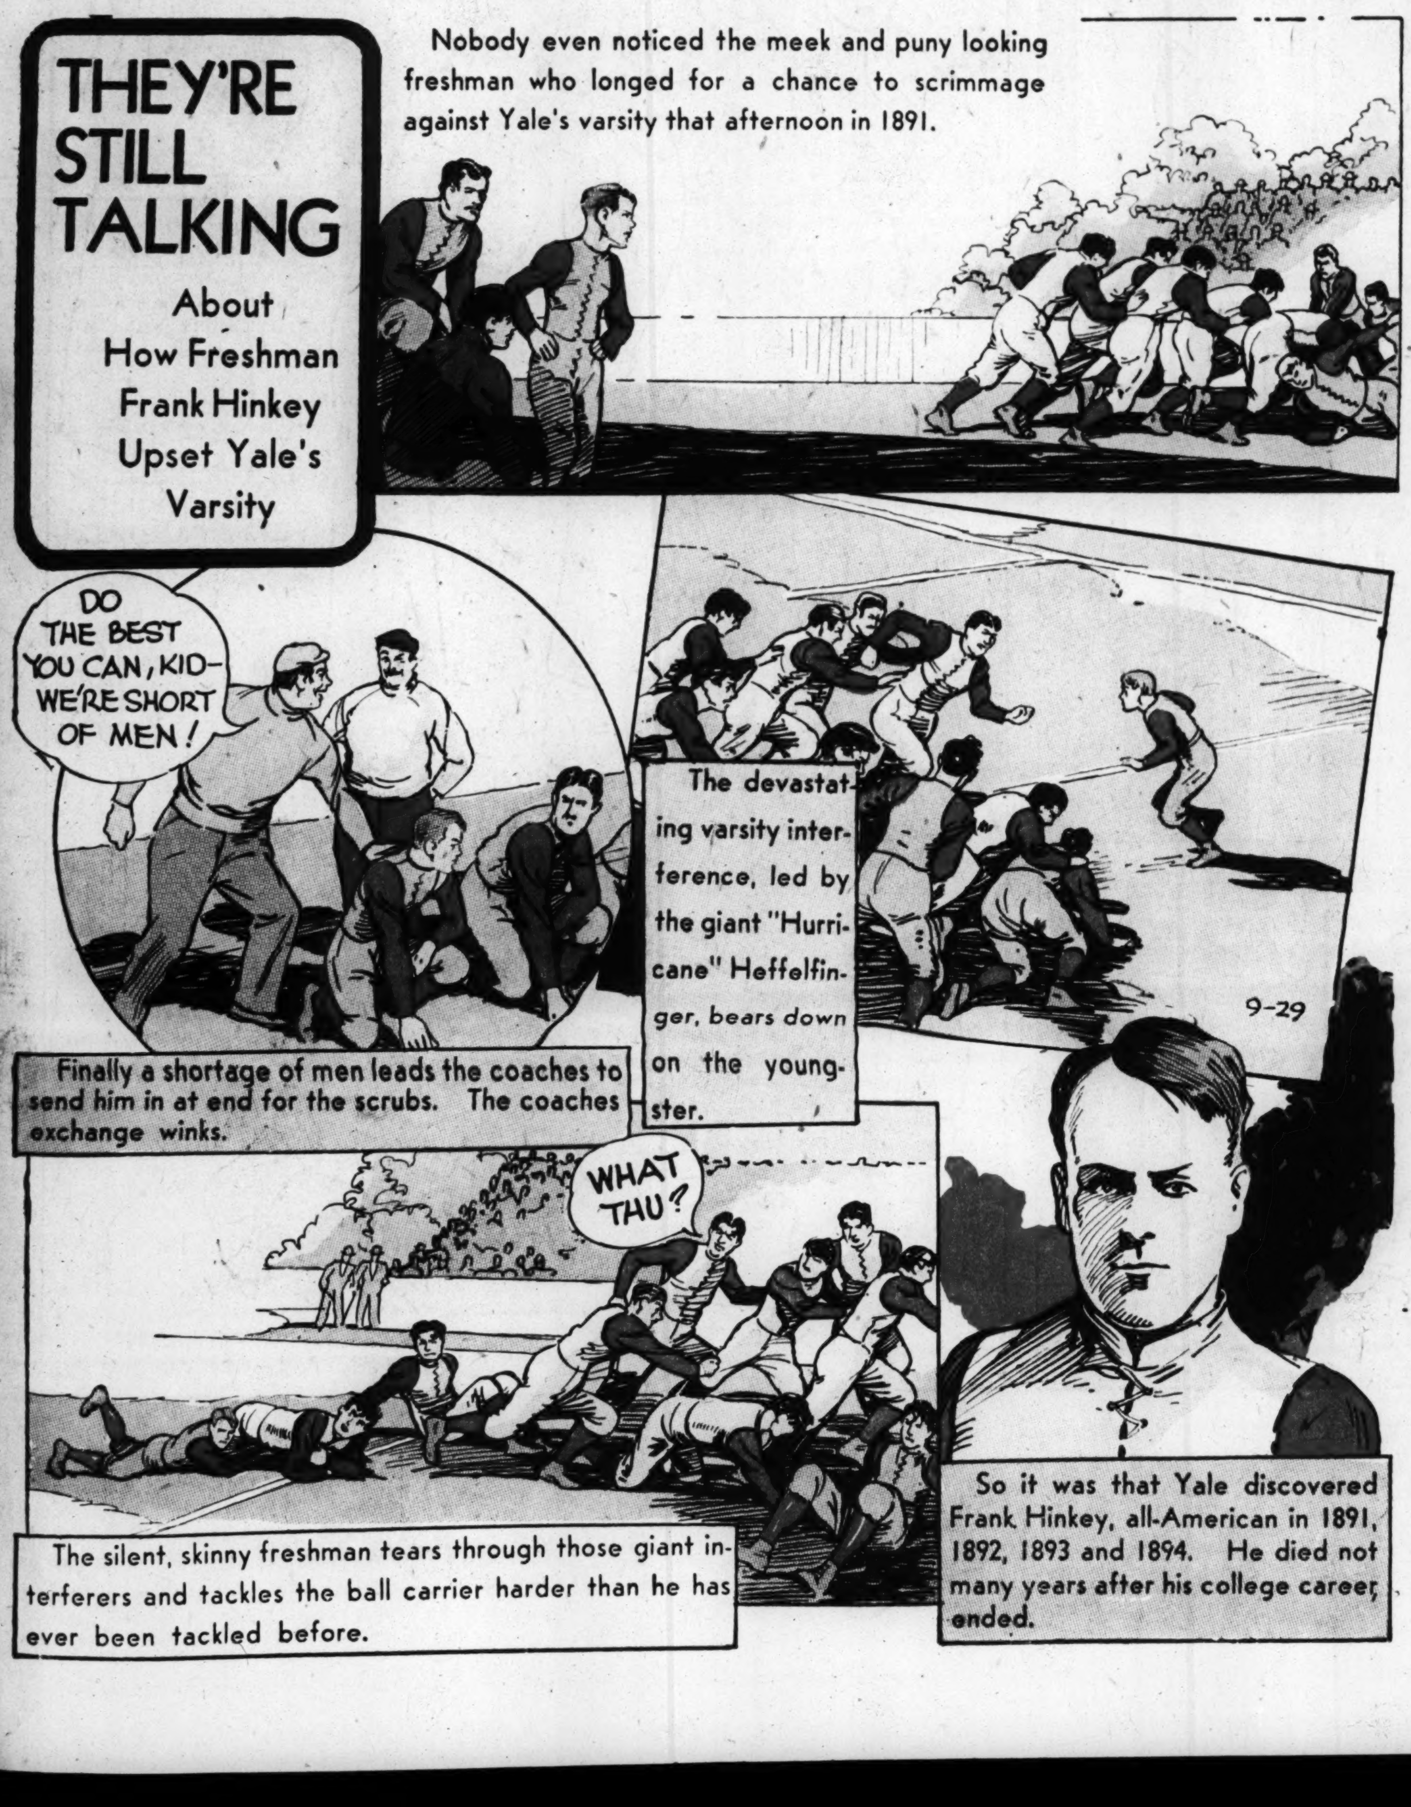
About How Freshman Frank Hinkey Upset Yale's Varsity



DO THE BEST YOU CAN, KID-WE'RE SHORT OF MEN!
WHAT THU?

Nobody even noticed the meek and puny looking freshman who longed for a chance to scrimmage against Yale's varsity that afternoon in 1891.

Finally a shortage of men leads the coaches to send him in at end for the scrubs. The coaches exchange winks.

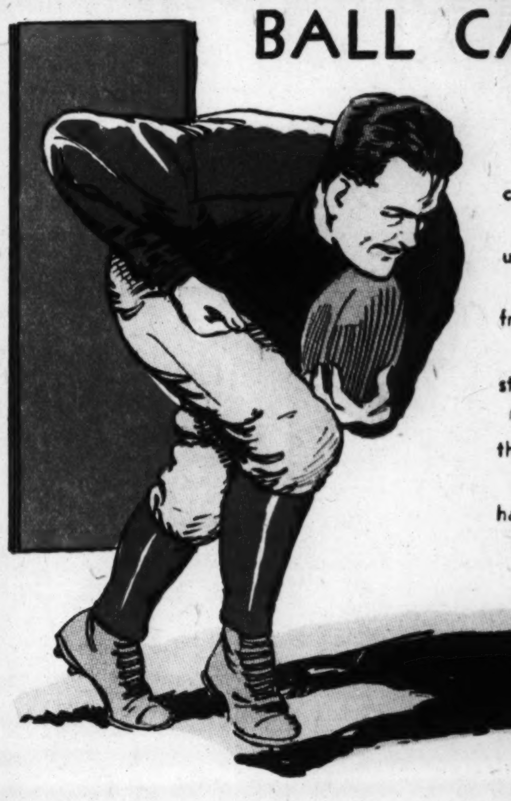
The devastating varsity interference, led by the giant "Hurricane" Heffelfinger, bears down on the youngster.

The silent, skinny freshman tears through those giant interferers and tackles the ball carrier harder than he has ever been tackled before.

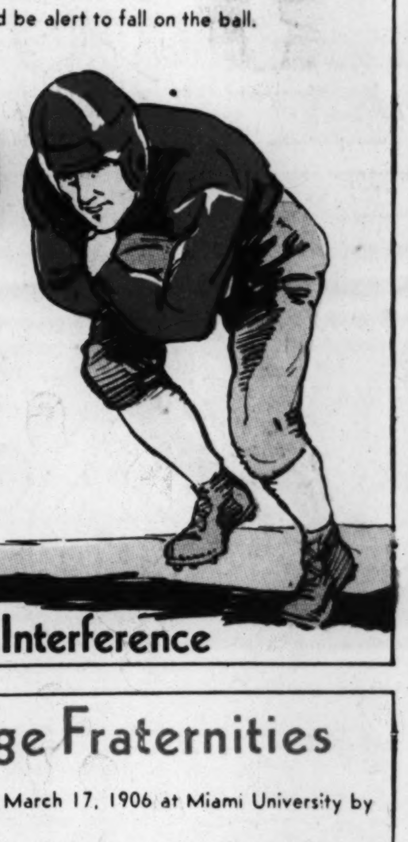
So it was that Yale discovered Frank Hinkey, all-American in 1891, 1892, 1893 and 1894. He died not many years after his college career ended.

Football ...... By NED BRANT

BALL CARRYING



Here you find the correct form of the ball carrier. A low, powerful running stride is used. The ball should be in the arm away from the tacklers. The carrier should be instructed to yell "ball" when he fumbles, so that his teammates will be aware of the mishap and be alert to fall on the ball.



This is the proper method of carrying the ball when hitting the line. The carrier has a low, driving position, the ball held securely with both arms. If the runner goes low, the ball will be effectively concealed. Live up to the rule, "Two hands on the ball when tackled."

How To Promote Sound, Restful Sleep Tonight . . .

New Vitality, New Energy Tomorrow

OVALTINE is a delicious pure food concentrate recommended by thousands of physicians and used in 54 different countries today. It was originally created in Switzerland as a strengthening food for invalids, convalescents, and the aged.

Then physicians noted that, when taken as a hot drink at bedtime, it was also a remarkable aid to sound, restful sleep. As a result, throughout the world, Ovaltine has become the most widely used drugless aid to natural sleep.

Great numbers of letters from delighted users are regularly received. For example, Mr. Edward Felker of Erie, Pa., writes:—"Usually I have lain in bed from 2 to 3 hours before going to sleep. The first night after taking Ovaltine I went to sleep almost at once after I hit the pillow. After I had taken it for 3 nights, my nerves were much steadier and my brain much more clear. You may use this letter as an honest testimonial. It is unsolicited and written in good faith."

Another letter, from Mrs. A. Collamer, c/o Hospital, Atkinson, Nebr., says, in part:—"I find Ovaltine very beneficial in cases of nervousness, especially when taken at bedtime. After a hard day's work, a cup of Ovaltine in hot milk relaxes the nerves amazingly and does away with tossing and restlessness while sleeping."

These letters cover, of course, only two individual experiences. Naturally, we do not claim or guarantee that similar results will occur in every case where Ovaltine is used. But these statements are so typical of thousands we have received, that we believe a thorough trial of Ovaltine is justified by every intelligent person in cases of nervous exhaustion and sleepless nights.

So outstanding are the results accredited to Ovaltine that, during the World War, it was used as a standard ration for invalid, nerve-shattered soldiers. And thousands of nervous people, men and women, use it regularly to restore vitality when fatigued.

BRITAIN GIVES ITS POSITION ON SANCTIONS BY LEAGUE

GIVES STAND IN NOTE TO FRANCE

French Official Says England Has Asked Paris if It Will Penalize Italy in Case of Invasion of Ethiopia.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 30.—A French official said tonight Great Britain had asked "specific questions" of France regarding this nation's action in "specific cases that might arise" in connection with application of sanctions under the League of Nations Covenant.

Great Britain, it was indicated, has asked France flatly if she is ready to join in sanctions against Italy in the event that Premier Mussolini's forces invade Ethiopia in disregard of the League's recommendations.

Officials said France automatically would be obliged by the League Covenant to take sanctions against Italy if that nation made an "unprovoked attack" against Great Britain while Great Britain was carrying out orders of the League.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—A note by Sir Samuel Hoare, British Foreign Secretary, assured France yesterday that Great Britain was true to the principles of the League of Nations "and not to any particular manifestation thereof."

It disclosed that these two points will have a bearing on future Franco-British relations:

1. Mere failure of Germany or any other nation to fulfill the terms of various treaties regarding armaments or boundaries of Europe does not call for application of sanctions under the League Covenant;

2. Sanctions only "apply to positive actions of unprovoked aggression, and even then "the nature of the action appropriate to be taken" may vary.

Text of British Note.

The text of the note delivered to the French Ambassador follows:

"1. In the inquiry which you were so good as to address to Sir Robert Van Sittart on Sept. 10, your excellency expressed the desire of your Government in connection with the present dispute between Italy and Ethiopia to learn to what extent they might be assured in the future of immediate effective application by this country of all sanctions provided in article XVI of the Covenant in the event of violation of the Covenant of the League of Nations and a resort to force in Europe, and you referred in particular to the eventuality of a resort to force in Europe on the part of some European state, whether or not that state might be a member of the League of Nations.

"2. I have the honor in reply to invite your attention to the words which I used in the course of my speech to the League Assembly at Geneva Sept. 11. I then declared His Majesty's Government, the United Kingdom, would be second to none in their intention to fulfill within the measure of their capacity the obligations which the Covenant lays upon them; and I added that ideas embodied in the Covenant, in particular the aspiration to establish a rule of law for international affairs, had appealed with growing force to a strain of idealism in the British national character and they had indeed become part of the national conscience.

Fidelity to the League.

"3. As your excellency will also recollect I further took the opportunity in the course of my speech at Geneva to repudiate any suggestion that the attitude of his Majesty's Government was one of other than unwavering fidelity to the League and all it stands for, and I drew attention to the fact that the recent response of public opinion in this country showed how completely the nation supported the Government in its full acceptance of the obligations of League membership, which was oft-proclaimed as the keynote of 'heir foreign policy. I added that to suggest or insinuate that this policy for some reason was peculiar to the Italo-Ethiopian conflict would be a complete misunderstanding. Nothing
